Record Vote Seen After Slow Start

Rain Dampens Early Polling

An expected record number of voters today were picking the captain and crew to sail the good ship British Columbia into the 1970s.

Rain slowed early voting on the Mainland in the provincial election but some polls in Victoria and Saanich and the Islands did a brisk business in spite of it.

And area voters were coming out along with the sun at mid-morning to begin setting a steady pace expected to result in a record turnout of voters by 8 p.m.

Television coverage of election results begins on Channels 2, 6 and 8 at 8 p.m.

Generally cloudy and showery weather across the province will last through the day and a few thunderstorms are expected in the Interior.

NO INCIDENTS

Early voting was "quite heavy and steady" in Victoria; "fairly heavy" in Saanich and the Islands; "picking up" in Esquimalt and "lighter than usual" in Oak Bay.

The expected record turnout will reflect the almost 400,000 increase in eligible voters since the 1966 election.

No serious incidents were reported from area polls and provincial registrar of voters Ken Morton said things appeared to be going smoothly all across the province.

The number of voters arriving at the polls and finding their names not on the voters' list appeared to be reduced this time because of the enumeration carried out earlier this year.

HOLIDAYS CITED

In Oak Bay returning officer Ken Murphy said voting was lightest in the Gordon Head area.

The large number of people on summer holidays is also believed to have slowed early voting—a vacationer isn't likely to leap out of bed at 8 a.m. to cast his vote, one official suggested.

About 116,000 people are eligible to cast ballots in the four area ridings, being contested by 16 candidates. Polls close at 8 p.m.

A considerable increase in absentee balloting—B.C. residents visiting Victoria can vote here if they missed the advance poll in their own ridings—has been reported.

The election will tell whether Premier W. A. C. Bennett's biggest-ever gamble at the polls has succeeded with the 1,151,806 voters eligible in the province.

This is the sixth time the premier has asked for a mandate since Social Credit crushed the Liberal - Conservative coalition government of Byron (Boss) Johnson in 1952 to form a minority administration.

Mr. Bennett, who celebrates his 69th birthday a week today, is risking a five-seat majority in the 55-seat legislature in an election some observers say could result in a minority government.

But the premier, who still had two years to run in the mandate he won in a 1966 provincial election, has never been wrong before. Mr. Bennett is predicting Social Credit will win 33 to 45 seats.

Legislature standings at dissolution: Social Credit 31, NDP 17, Liberals six, one seat vacant. Standings following the Sept. 12, 1966, election: Social Credit 33, NDP 16, Liberals six.

LOST A SEAT

(Social Credit lost one of its two seats in the Vancouver South riding in a byelection to the NDP's Norman Levi. The vacancy is due to the resignation of former attorney-general Robert Bonner in the Cariboo riding prior to issuance of the election writ.)

There are 177 candidates running for the 55 seats in B.C.'s 29th legislature, including full slates by the three major parties.

The hopefuls also include seven independents, four Communists and a lone Progressive Conservative—party leader John de Wolf.

Opposition Leader Tom Berger and Liberal leader Pat McGeer, both making their election debuts as leaders of their

CHARLES

Top Navy Job To Islander

A Vancouver Islander who began his naval career as an ordinary telegraphist in November, 1939, will take over command of Canadian armed forces on the Pacific coast.

Commander H. A. Porter, 49, of Chemainus, will be promoted to rear-admiral and become commander of Maritime Forces Pacific Sept. 11.

The new admiral succeeds Rear-Admiral J. A. Charles, 51, who will take up duties as deputy comptroller-general in Ottawa Sept. 22. Charles has been in command of West Coast operations since Aug. 1, 1966.

With his new appointment, Porter becomes the second Vancouver Islander to rise from the ranks to admiral. He leaves Halifax where he was senior Canadian officer afloat.

BOY SEAMAN

The first was Rear-Admiral P. D. Budge, 3096 Cadboro Bay, who began his service career as a boy seaman and retired in 1962 while chief of naval personnel at Ottawa. His last West Coast appointment was Commodore of HMCS Naden, from 1954 to 1958.

Porter rose from the ranks in 1942 when he was selected for officer candidate training and promoted to sub-lieutenant.

A specialist in communications, Porter also qualifed as a pilot in naval aviation. Part of his wartime service was spent on the destroyer Kootenay.

Various appointments have seen Porter in command of the ocean escorts La Hulloise and Lauzon, and officer in charge of the communications school at Halifax.

CADET TRAINING

In 1955 he became director of naval communications at Ottawa. Two years later he came to Esquimalt to act as armed forces co-ordinator of B.C. centennial activities. He later became commander of

70 Protest Death Of Picket

VANCOUVER (CP) — About 70 persons, half of them oil workers, marched with placards Tuesday night outside the Shelburn refinery in North Burnaby to protest a picketer's death early Tuesday.

James Gordon Harvey, 43, father of eight and a Shell employee for 16 years, died after being hit by a truck entering the plant at 1:30 a.m.

Immediately following Harvey's death, Neil Reimer of Edmonton, Canadian directors of the oil workers' union announced that all negotiations across Canada were suspended.

In Vancouver, union officials cut picketing in the strike to a minimum to guard against trouble. They also suspended plans to picket service stations located near Pacific 66 stations that are not involved in the dispute.

However, there was no traffic into the plant as the protesters waved signs that read "scabs are killing" and "company hires killers."

RCMP said Harvey was picketing by himself when the accident happened.

Three fellow-pickets drinking coffee in a parked car nearby witnessed the accident. They said he was crossing Kensington, which leads to the refinery, in an unmarked crosswalk parallel to Hastings when he stopped and bent down as though tying his shoelace.

At that moment, a large tractor-trailer tanker owned by Trimac Transportation System and driven by David Slobodian of Saskatoon made a right hand turn towards the refinery and Harvey was hit.

'I Planned This Murderous Attack'

VIENNA (CP)—Colman Losonczy, the Hungarian-born Canadian who said he set fire to the Canadian Embassy Tuesday was quoted by Vienna police today as having told them "not even 2,000 dead would move me as long as I am able to revolt against Canada".

Friedrich Kuso, Vienna's chief of security, told reporters Losonczy said this when told the fire caused the death of two persons and injured 23 others.

Police said there no longer is any doubt that Losonczy committed the attack. Kuso showed reporters two letters written by Losonczy. One police found in his suitcase deposited at the Vienna Western railway station; the other he mailed to the Austrian interior ministry Tuesday.

Both letters, Kuso said, were filled with filthy words against Canada. Both were written in French.

Kuso said they amounted to this:

"I very well planned and calculated this murderous attack. The murderous attack against the Canadian Embassy is the final act of my personal tragedy. It is an act out of despair and the deed of a revolting slave against the capitalist extortionist state Canada. Canada is like England. I want to kill as many English as possible for all the humiliations and suppressions I have suffered. My deed is designed as a protest against the tyranny and against Canada."

Losonczy had walked up to a police official at the site of the blaze and said: "I have set the fire." But one witness who said he had seen a man who threw the gasoline-filled bottles, said this man did not look like Losonczy.

WITNESS CHANGED MIND

The witness was later confronted with Losonczy. Losonczy was asked to clench his teeth and the witness said he now recognized Losonczy.

Kuso said Losonczy appeared to be a peaceful person, but the moment the word Canada was mentioned his face took on an "unrecognizable grimace."

Evidence police presented included a nylon bag with thin wires, which they retrieved from Losonczy's trunk. The wires were similar to others found at the fire scene. Other items were rubber bands, found in the trunk and also tied around a bush knife rolled in a coat in the embassy. An embassy employee found the coat and thought it belonged to a colleague.

Kuso said the bottles were no ordinary Molotov cocktails, but fire bottles, for which the wires were used.

QUARREL CITED

Police said they are not certain what made Losonczy commit the deed. Kuso said it could be in connection with the quarrel Losonczy had in the embassy here in 1967.

At that time Losonczy asked an embassy employee for financial support, but when he was told to take a job, he threw his passport to the floor and said "with this land I no longer want to have anything to do with."

Police records say Losonczy then tried to enter Hungary, but Hungarian authorities were only willing to admit him if his sisters promised to support him in case of need. The sisters refused to make the promise and Losonczy at the end of 1967 was deported to Canada.

Kuso said Losonczy left Hungary in 1944 as Soviet troops approached and moved to West Germany. From there he went to France and Belgium and after studying law went back to West Germany.

FACES LIFE

From there he moved to Canada. Canadian immigration authorities said this was in 1951.

His professional status was never cleared up.

If tried and convicted of murder, Losonczy will face life imprisonment. Austria has abolished the death penalty.

Two Austrian employees of the embassy were killed in the fire and 23 others were injured, some severely.

The only injured Canadian is Clive England, 31, of London, Ont., a communications tech-

Blasts Rock U.K. Stock Exchange

LONDON (AP) — A series of explosions shook the London stock exchange shortly after it opened for business today, hurled manhole covers into the air and turned the financial heart of the city into chaos.

Firemen and police, fearing a chain reaction from the underground gas network, removed manhole covers, surrounded them with barricades and an officer blared to the thousands of pedestrians:

"Please move away from the manhole covers and out of the streets unless you want to go up when it blows."

Firemen traced the origin to the basement of the stock exchange, and there was a theory that an electric transformer may have become overloaded. The explosion followed and dealers on the floor of the famed trading mart were engulfed in choking smoke and dust.

Lower Island Location For Hatchery Unlikely

By PAT DUFOUR

It will be late 1970 before the federal department of fisheries decides where to built the one million dollar salmon hatchery promised for British Columbia, but it likely won't be on lower Vancouver Island.

Dixon MacKinnon, chief biologist for the fisheries department in Vancouver, said this week that 18 streams will have to be surveyed before the final decision on the site is made.

"Among other factors, we have to study the character of the donor stocks of salmon in the streams and make sure there is groundwater which, with its early warm temperature, will allow the chinook and coho to be developed sufficiently by the time they're released."

●

An Ottawa release has set the building date of the hatchery for 1971.

MacKinnon said that Sooke and Godstream would be among the streams to be tested but doubted that either would be used for the site because of the need to increase water resources to service the growing city of Victoria.

He warned that in spite of recent improvements in hatchery production, survival of hatchery-raised juveniles, particularly chinook, is still much lower than that of naturally-produced fish.

"Studies at the experimental hatchery will be directed toward improving survival of the hatchery product and will involve many comparative studies of wild and hatchery-reared juvenile salmon."

He said the decision to concentrate on chinook and coho was primed by the fact that experimentation with sockeye had proved uneconomic.

●

Attempts to propagate sockeye salmon in B.C., largely of an experimental nature, had failed. The Leavenworth hatchery in Washington had abandoned sockeye raising after four years and transferred to coho.

MacKinnon said his department had three main projects:

Premier Silent On Renter Grants

Premier Bennett today refused to confirm or deny a Social Credit candidate's claim that the provincial homeowners' grant will be extended to apartment dwellers next summer.

"On election day I make no comments," Bennett said repeatedly in a telephone interview from his home in Kelowna.

He would not say whether he ever discussed the subject with John Edmondson, Socred candidate in New Westminster.

When asked Tuesday why Bennett had not announced the plan himself, Edmondson said "he probably had other things on his mind."

Edmondson said apartment tenants will receive 50 per cent of the homeowner grant in the form of a rent reduction. The present homeowner grant is $150 yearly.

The other half of the grant would be placed in a trust fund paying interest.

"At any time over five years, the tenant will be able to draw on his accumulated (trust) funds to assist in building or purchasing a home and the amount will be added to the $1,000 grant currently available for new home construction," said Edmondson.

"If the tenant waits the full five years, this program would give him approximately $500 added to the other grants already available (and) he could have $1,500 toward a down payment on a new home."

Tenants would have to file affidavits that they had lived in an apartment 12 months to quality for the grant but it was not certain yet whether persons who rented houses would qualify.

"I was given the tenant grant information because I made it a point to ask about possible aid to tenants."

Premier Bennett during the campaign told several audiences he would extend financial assistance to house renters who wanted to buy their landlords' houses or other old houses but would not elaborate.

Infiltration By N. Viets Seen Reduced

WASHINGTON (AP) — The North Vietnamese have reduced their infiltration into South Vietnam below their casualty rate, and thus their forces in the South may be getting smaller in number, a state department spokesman said today.

The spokesman, press officer Robert J. McCloskey, reaffirmed a state department view that the infiltration cut is "significant" but added that the United States still seeks a mutual U.S.-North Vietnamese withdrawal deal.

While North Vietnamese combat losses in excess of replacements "will eventually have the same effect as a withdrawal by North Vietnamese forces," he said, it would be a slow process and "we prefer to end the conflict by negotiation" leading to a pullout of all non-South Vietnamese troops.

McCloskey gave no figures in saying "there has been a considerable reduction in North Vietnamese infiltration into South Vietnam."

parties, talk confidently of forming majority governments.

But if a minority situation does result, the possibility of another election looms large. Sources within all three parties doubt that a minority government would survive its first legislature session.

The premier planned to spend election day at his estate in Kelowna, the town where he launched a chain of hardware stores that made him a millionaire before he entered politics as a Conservative MLA in 1941.

Mr. Berger, a 36-year-old lawyer, is making no numerical predictions and has said only that the NDP has enough electoral backing to win a majority.

Among the prime NDP targets are three Social Credit cabinet ministers—Education Minister Donald Brothers in Rossland-Trail, Highways Minister Wesley Black in Nelson-Creston and HealthM inister Ralph Loffmark in the other half of Vancouver-South.

Mr. Berger will be at his Vancouver-Burrard riding headquarters tonight when returns start flowing in and later will visit the NDP provincial election headquarters in New Westminster.

None of the three party leaders seems to be in any trouble in his home riding.

Premier Bennett carried his Okanagan South riding with a majority of almost 7,000 votes over a New Democrat in the 1966 election, and should be an easy winner again.

He is opposed by Eva Pfeifer of the NDP, an investment company branch manager, and Liberal Robert Knox, 45, a Kelowna alderman.

Mr. Berger and his running mate, Dr. Ray Parkinson, face four other candidates in Vancouver-Burrard. In 1966 the two New Democrats finished one-two with a 2,000-vote edge of the nearest Social Crediter.

Dr. McGeer, 41-year-old neurochemist, and his running mate, Garde Gardom, have been battling with five other candidates in Vancouver-Point Grey. Dr. McGeer topped the polls in the last election, finishing 4,000 votes ahead of Mr. Gardon and 6,000 votes up on the closest Social Credit candidate.

nician at the embassy. He received a cut on the head but hospital attendants said he is in good condition and is not confined to bed.

While firemen were battling the fire, police said, a man walked up to a policeman and said: "I set the fire."

Witnesses said the fire was set by a raggedly-dressed man who hurled a number of gasoline-filled bottles around the offices in a modern downtown building.

Canadian Ambassador John McCordick, in a telephone interview Tuesday with The Canadian Press in London, said he intended to reopen part of the embassy today, using an emergency supply of electricity but no telephone.

McCordick said the trade and commerce half of the embassy is destroyed but the other half, the external affairs section, can be used.

MOTIVE NOT APPARENT

External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said in Ottawa there is no apparent motive for the fire, an opinion also expressed by McCordick and Vienna police.

However, police sources said Losonczy had caused a scene at police headquarters after returning to Austria in 1967 and while trying to give up his Canadian citizenship at the embassy. He went to police after the embassy did not help him in giving up his Canadian citizenship. He was later deported to Canada. Police sources did not know when he returned to Austria the second time.

In Ottawa, the Canadian government trade department identified the dead as two of its employees, Hans Karl Rott, 47, and Alfred Sautner, 46.

Rott, senior commercial officer at the embassy, came to Canada with his parents from Austria in 1945. In 1955, he got his master of arts degree in political science and economics from the University of Toronto and returned to Austria in the same year.

After postgraduate studies in Vienna, he joined the embassy as a commercial officer.

His wife and three children survive. A sister, Mrs. Henry Cooke, lives in Toronto.

Austrian-born Sautner was a paratrooper in the German forces in the Second World War. Captured by the Allies in Africa, he spent the rest of the war in a Kansas prisoner-of-war camp. He is survived by a wife and daughter.

- The Big Qualicum pilot-plan operation, which includes an egg and fry incubation station and three concrete rearing ponds with automatic feeders for delivering moist pellet food.

MacKinnon added that three quarters of a million chinook fingerlings were reared at Big Qualicum in 1968. At present 600,000 chinook and 100,000 coho eggs are being incubated.

Interviewed in Vancouver, Fisheries Minister Jack Davis said high priority will be put on pollution research and establishment of stocks for sport fishing.

A pollution research centre will be set up in West Vancouver allowing the department to centralize and expand its facilities.

Davis said the West Vancouver site was chosen because of its availability to both fresh and salt water.

MacKinnon said "a lot of money went down the drain on hatcheries before recent developments enabled officials to produce a nutritionally balanced diet for hatchery-reared fish, overcome disease, and discover when the fish could safely be released.

"Hatchery propagation of sockeye, chum and pink salmon is too much of a gamble at present. But, the high value of sockeye makes the gamble enticing."

Second Dairy Increases Milk Price

Palm Dairies Ltd. have raised the priee of milk by two cents a quart, following the lead of Northwestern Creamery Ltd., a spokesman said today.

A quart of homogenized milk delivered at the front door from either dairy will now cost 36 cents instead of 34. There has been a similar two-cent increase in quarts of two-per-cent and skim milk bringing them to 34 and 31 cents respectively.

Three-quart containers of milk homogenized will cost 96 cents, a six-cent increase.

Although there is no set price, small stores will probably follow the dairies' lead and increase prices by two cents, said F. A. J. Norton, manager of Northwestern.

STORES TO FOLLOW

In most small stores a quart of homogenized milk from Palm or Northwestern is now 34 cents. This will likely go up to 36.

Norton said rising labor costs and increased prices to farmers have forced the increase.

His customers were warned of the increase by bulletin Monday and he said: "The change in price was well received. It's the first time people have been told in advance that the price was going up."

This is the first increase in Northwestern's prices since September, 1968. At that time a single quart went up two cents to 34. However, at that time when "single quarts were becoming a diminishing factor," the price of three-quart containers increased only one cent.

Prices were increased in December, 1967, when a quart of homogenized milk went from 31 cents to 34 cents, Norton said.

FULL STOP FOR NAVY

A senior naval officer said today that Esquimalt-based destroyer-escorts will have to stop carrying out pilotage training in confined waters.

Reporting on an investigation being carried out on offshore damage caused by the Yukon, Chaudiere and Columbia while operating in the Cowichan Bay area last weekend (see story on page 26), he said:

"The captains were carrying out exercises on passage planning and had to complete 40 anchorages by Sunday. The were steaming about 12 knots, which isn't fast when you consider the B.C. Ferries go through Active Pass at about 18 or 20 knots."

Currently senior Canadian officer afloat, Porter has also served as director general maritime forces in Ottawa and director general of equipment requirements.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Showers which persisted along the coast and in the central interior overnight produced over half an inch of rain at Smithers and three quarters of an inch at Spring Island.

Cool, unsettled weather will continue in coastal districts and in the Cariboo today while the southern interior will have cloudy periods and a few afternoon showers. A ridge of high pressure building offshore, however, promises sunny weather for much of the B.C. coast on Thursday. Inland areas will have a mixture of sunshine and cloud and widely scattered afternoon showers Thursady.

The Weather and You

By CARL RIBLET JR.

Ever since man first planted seeds in the ground and then looked up at the sky to wonder what the weather would bring, he has wanted to know whether he would get a good yield from his fields or suffer an agricultural disaster. Eventually, he figured out a way to foreeast the size of his crops.

The earliest attempt to estimate a crop from weather diaries was when the government of Barbados in 1874 measured the rainfall on that West Indian island. Thus, it became possible for planters to reasonably expect large or small crops of sugar cane, depending on the amount of rain that fell on Barbados during previous years.

For the past 50 years or so, North American agriculture has been tied to the weather records. For example, if rain in autumn was less than the average over a period of years, farmers knew that below-average crop yields usually followed and vice versa.

177 Candidates in Running For 55 Provincial Seats

Published below is the official list of candidates today seeking election to the British Columbia legislature.

There are 177 candidates in the running for 55 seats and a total of 1,151,806 voters are eligible to cast ballots across the province for their choices.

Social Credit, Liberal and New Democratic parties each have a full slate of candidates. In addition there are seven independents, four Communists and one Progressive Conservative in the election race.

At dissolution of the legislature, Premier Bennett's Social Credit Party held 31 seats, Tom Berger's NDP held 17, Pat McGeer's Liberals held six and one seat, Cariboo Riding, was vacant.

The lone Conservative candidate in this election is provincial leader John de Wolf, running in the two-member Vancouver-Point Grey constituency.

Social Credit took power in British Columbia 17 years ago, in 1952. This is its seventh campaign.

Built-In Tragedy

THE TROUBLES IN NORTHERN Ireland are not likely to present a threat to world peace, as many a domestic struggle in other parts of the world has done in the past few years. But they are of a tragic nature that impels sympathy with that wracked community. Political or religious confrontations alone can lead to lethal violence; when combined they arouse a bitterness that may last for generations.

So it is in Northern Ireland, and yet the solution appears so simple on the surface, so obvious in the light of conditions elsewhere in the United Kingdom, that the wonder is that the conflict was not long ago resolved.

In an island which is predominantly Catholic, the predominantly Protestant segment of Northern Ireland itself has areas and cities in which the majority of inhabitants are Catholic. While there is no discrimination against Catholics in law, there is in practice, and it is the injustice arising from this, plus the religious intolerance which accentuates feelings on both sides, that overflows periodically in violence. The recent street battles involving religious factions, police, and finally British troops, were the culmination of months and years of factional sparring. The very violence may have provided the sense of necessity which now could lead to a solution of the problem.

There can be no real solution until every resident of Northern Ireland, regardless of religion, can be sure of equality of treatment in fact as well as in law. That means removal of discrimination in employment, in official appointments, in allocation of public or private housing — in effect, the removal of the status of second-class citizen under which the Catholics labor. Various factors have been manipulated to create restrictions on the franchise for Catholics, and even voting citizens must suffer the handicap of electoral boundary shiftings which result in Protestant majorities on councils regardless of the size of the local Catholic population. But job discrimination, in both skilled and semi-skilled work, is perhaps the most galling of all the injustices inflicted on the Catholics.

Protestant fears of Catholic southern Ireland, along with traditional determination to hold existing advantages, have resulted in successive Northern governments which sought no change until recently. But minor moves toward reform in the past year were too little and too late. Now, under the protection of British soldiers and at the urging of the British government, effective improvements may be initiated. But action must come from the Northern Ireland government. For Britain to send in administrators who would force the government to activate reform would be resented by most Ulstermen, as well as destroying the existing reform-minded government. It is equally clear that the British troops cannot be kept in the streets very long without creating more problems than they prevent.

At a time when feelings are most raw and tempers still not cooled, the people of Northern Ireland are called upon to show understanding and fairness which has not been exhibited for long years. But to be lasting, justice and mutual trust will have to be self-generated, they cannot be imposed. The revolution will have to be moral as well as political.

It's For the People

APART FROM ITS MAJOR function of letting the electorate indicate its preferences as to which persons and party will govern the country, a general election has a secondary benefit in that it brings to public attention the various planks and policies available to legislators. Government candidates publicize what they intend to do if returned to office, presumably with the thought that their promised programs are what the people want. Challengers present alternative proposals.

It is not logical to suppose that any one party has an exclusive claim to perfection in its platform. Indeed, as the recent election campaign has shown, many good ideas are common to all parties. The major difference between parties arises in the over-all look at the business of governing, the basic philosophy which each party brings to bear on public problems. Too often the voter may make his choice on the basis of the individual promise — which may or may not be honored later — rather than on the broad approach to governance which the party represents. It is the latter which in the end must set the course of the elected government and direct its decisions on policy formation.

Whether a party is materialistic or idealistic, progressive or deliberate, venturesome or cautious, motivated toward the future or rooted in the past, it will have elements of good and bad in its makeup. But the maximum benefit for the public will come from the use of good ideas regardless of which party originates them.

Whichever party wins today's election, it should view its choice by the public as a directive to take what is best from all the ideas which have been put before the people in recent days. Truth is a widely disseminated commodity; no party has monopoly rights in what is best for the public.

Uncomfortable Pew

RIGHT REV. R. S. DEAN, BISHop of Cariboo, has addressed some sharp words to his fellow Anglicans in this country. He says the church is no longer "the society of the compassionate" but "an organization preoccupied with ourselves". He is not concerned about intercommunion or church union, believing them too late, and he thinks that if the church in its present form dies within the next 10 years, "It will die from self-strangulation by its own prosperity."

These are comments attributed to a man who has spent the last five years travelling in more than 50 countries on behalf of the Anglican church and who offered his opinion in support of a move to create a church task force to study the world missions and to battle against an alleged tendency of the church to be self-serving.

How congregations across the country will react to his forcefully presented point of view should soon be seen. It is nevertheless salutary to note self-criticism of this nature —an exercise which might provide a useful change for the "comfortable pew."

Everything Under Control?

AUTHORITIES IN ULSTER ARE perturbed over the reported lasting effects of the riot-control gas, CS, which was used during the recent street disturbances in Londonderry. It has been explained that normally the severe effects of the gas, notably coughing and difficulty in breathing, wear off after 10 minutes. But doctors report that many babies in Bogside are still experiencing alarming internal physical reactions. Complete effects of the gas could not, understandably, be fully foreseen, since this was the first time the civil control weapon had been used in the United Kingdom. And it was probably a world premiere for use of riot gas on babies.

"... Haven't you got a sort of a 'Brand X' ...?"

LETTER

Lost Lyrics

My family and I have returned to Victoria for a holiday after residing in Ottawa for the past year. Sunday (August 24) afternoon, my parents and I (along with many hundreds of others) hoped to spend a pleasurable two hours listening to the concert in Beacon Hill Park. And so it would have been, had it not been for the park's very poor public address system. Surely, somewhere, there are decent microphones that could replace those in use at present.

The "Sing-Out Victoria" chorus was excellent—so enthusiastic, such obvious hard-workers, and with such a message to give us all. But much to our dismay—unless a soloist stood directly in front of the microphone—the choirs' lyrics were lost to 90 per cent of the audience. What a pity that something of real value should be lost because of poor or inadequate equipment.

If the city or the parks board is unable to find funds to make performances worthwhile, I am sure, in order to really enjoy the entertainment most of the audience would not object to a silver collection during the concert. Perhaps one summer's collection would help to finance a completely effectual sound system.—Mrs. K. Garland, 233 Barclay Rd., Ottawa 7.

FROM OTTAWA

By MAURICE WESTERN

Inflation Dichotomy—Some Get Richer, Others Poorer

IN discussions about inflation, very little attention is paid to one of its important consequences; the emergence of groups in the community with a strong apparent interest in continuing inflation. No one publicly admits to any such interest. In public every group is opposed to inflation and in favor of action to curb it. This may be at the expense of someone else or the action may be general in character (for example, by the government) and not clearly seen to have discriminatory consequences. It is probable too that the protestations do rest in part on a basic uneasiness about what may happen if the end result of the long economic spree is economic recession.

Western

At the crucial moments, however, it is not this general uneasiness which determines attitudes but the prospect of immediate benefits to the group concerned. By now, for those in good bargaining positions, there is a reassuring experience to encourage bold expectations.

In the past two years the consumer price index has taken leaps of four and 5.2 per cent. The real income of most people has not kept pace. Many, including those on fixed incomes, pensioners, and employees whose gains have failed to match the increases in living costs, have dropped back. Whatever the poverty line may be, it has reached up to embrace more people.

But the fact is that some have done very well out of inflation. A study by the federal labor department of 616 major collective agreements covering 1.27 million workers (roughly a sixth of the labor force) shows that the average base rate rose by 7.7 per cent in the year ending June 30, 1969.

Experience in the previous year was similar. For each the department calculates that the increase in real terms was 2.3 per cent.

In other words inflation — almost always an argument in wage negotiations — permitted these groups not merely to maintain but substantially to better their relative economic positions.

Even if their leaders, or some of them, now decide that inflation has gone far enough and that its continuance would be dangerous, it may be difficult to convince the rank-and-file that for them inflation is not a good thing.

Blame Profits

The usual reaction of union leaders is to identify business profits as the villain of the piece. There may in fact be a concert of interests here. In some cases businessmen, although as ready as union leaders to use inflation as a convenient movement, may be happy enough to live with it on the basis of their own experience up to now. Others may see in rising prices (if they have not already seen it) the handwriting on the wall.

A continuation of this process may well create a serious dilemma for the stronger unions. For their movement, although primarily concerned with the wages and working conditions of members, has always professed a more general interest in the welfare of working people.

The emphasis has always been on labor solidarity; indeed at one time it used to be argued that there was an identity of interest uniting workers and farmers — and it was the farmers, not the unionists, who came to reject this interesting thesis.

The latest assertion of the wider trade union interest may be found in a speech at Pittsburgh by Donald Macdonald, president of the CLC.

Take Credit

Mr. Macdonald held that the unionists could take much of the credit for medicare, which the CLC unquestionably supported. On other occasions, similar credit has been claimed for our pension system.

But it is difficult to see how there can be much solidarity between those who beenfit from and those who suffer from inflation (unless people are prepared to recognize that in the long run the country suffers).

The forces currently at work in the economy are differentiating one group of workers from another.

In Europe, where patterns of Marxist thought are more prevalent, it would doubtless he said that we are witnessing the emergence of a new class, a privileged labor group in society.

Moreover, there is no real answer to this in the broader interest of which Mr. Macdonald spoke. One expression of that, presumably, is the escalating factor built into the national pension plan.

But this, limited to 2 per cent, has not compensated for the much greater increase in living costs.

It has manifestly not prevented an increased differentiation within the labor force, with the comparatively well-to-do getting richer and the less well off sinking more deeply into the poverty mire.

The prices and incomes commission, in exploratory talks with union spokesmen, has already come up against one foreseeable difficulty: the argument that voluntary restraints will be acceptable only if they are matched by self-limitations on the part of business.

But this plainly is not the only problem confronting union leaders. If they do not agree to meaningful curbs, they will further estrange workers already seriously hurt by inflation.

Yet if they are to committ themselves, they must somehow persuade their own people that it is time to call a halt to a process which has brought substantial gains to strong unions.

Others Blamed

This will not be easy, for the main thrust of union progaganda has not been directed against inflation, which has sometimes been discounted or, more frequently, blamed on other groups.

Nor has there been — as, for example, in Sweden — any serious effort to deal with the widening gap between labor's haves and have-nots, or even public recognition of its existence or its dangers for the movement.

Manifestly there is a good case to be made, including the relevant point that a serious recession could easily wipe out present gains.

But the difficulties facing union leaders should not be minimized; their own utterances over a long period cannot have been helpful in making the rank-and-file receptive to the anti-inflation case. And for well-to-do workers the memory of serious recession must now be rather dim.

Slow Take-Off

Many motorists have made the point that the motor industry is still turning out cars which are mostly obsolete. At the turn of the century there were 8,000 cars on this continent, now there are 88 million, plus a multiplicity of signals, stop-sighs and speed limits.

Fifty years ago Armstrong-Siddeley of Coventry introduced us to the first "Fluid Drive" which they pioneered; and we remember the thrill of that first smooth drive, without gears. Today the motor barons of Detroit make us pay $200 extra for "automatic" when they should fit it to every car as standard. If the gear-shift buffs want to go through the gears they are the ones to pay more for the privilege. If the makers of automobiles would "get with it" the line-up in city traffic waiting for "green" will move off much more quickly, and "testy" drivers will have less cause for temperamental showmanship, which is the main cause of many accidents. — Clarence Goode, Member Society of Veteran Motorists, 1986 St. Ann.

Calling Lapidaries

I am very interested in geology and the lapidary hobby and would like to ask you if you could contact for me any lapidary group or persons interested in the exchange of your local material and minerals for the same from Australia. Maybe you can help me— George Dale, 50 Crejeo Street, Coogee, Sydney, 2034, Australia.

The Price of Eggs

The country is riddled with strikes despite the fact that higher wages cause more inflation, make life more difficult for the even moderately affluent and drive the poor to destitution. While scientists question the capacity of the world to produce enough food for the expanding world population, Canada has a surplus of wheat and any large sales depend largely on countries whose system of government we deplore.

On the political economic scene we find that various governments which championed free enterprise have introduced legislation that was previously considered socialistic.

Oddly enough; the most essential services have remained under free enterprise, namely, the production and distribution of food. Can they survive another generation?

In April 1930 the retail price of eggs was approximately 35 cents per dozen. At that time also the price of a hair cut was 35 cents, admission to a show was around the same price and a meal could be bought for 35 cents. There would be quite a furore today if eggs were $2.25 a dozen, The same price as a haircut, or even $1.50 the price of a cheap show.

I now have before me a clipping from the Victoria Times of April 29, 1969, which states, "a new top rate of $5.95 an hour for teamster union members in British Columbia was established in a new three-year contract reached during the weekend in the road building industry . . ." What would the price of food be if the farmers were to receive $5.95 an hour for the time they spend driving and maintaining their tractors and other machinery? or received an 8 per cent return on their investments from $50,000 to $100,000 plus $5.00 an hour wages for themselves and hired men?—Ex Farm and Ranch Hand.

Safety in the Woods

I should like to comment on your editorial in the Times under the title heading "Step Toward Woods Safety".

You would appear to laud the action of some individual in the government who brought forth such a lot of rubbish in the name of safety — be it in the woods or anywhere else for that matter. Birdshot and buckshot for deer! Buckshot, in the vast majority of cases, simply wounds the animal, breaking a leg or two and perforating the bowels, and the unfortunate animal hides away to die a slow and awful death, hastened somewhat maybe by blow flies and gangrene.

In every country except here birdshot is illegal for hunting anything but birds. For deer it is nearly always the case that the animal is blinded — it then tries to hide away and again is condemned to a slow, lingering death.

I by no means subscribe to the big magnums for anything except maybe elephant: a heavy calibre low velocity gun is what is wanted here for bush work, something in the nature of the old 44-40 which has likely taken more North American game than any other calibre. And optical sights should be mandatory too; these compensate for poor eyesight and also make the hunter take a more deliberate shot so that he has time to see if the animal has at least four legs and horns before he touches one off.— Edward La Tour, 400 Quayle Rd.

Editor's Note: The editorial in question did not commend the use of birdshot for deer.

Denied Help

I sometimes wonder why we have hospitals. Three times I have tried to get help at St. Josephs out-patient hospital in Victoria. And three times I have been denied, the last time when I was bleeding from the nose. I was told to see a doctor and I was informed I could not get their service without a doctor's consent.

I am a Canadian born in Winnipeg and I have never heard such nonsense. I know I do not own the hospital. But when they receive provincial and federal grants then I have a perfect right to the out-patients use. — H. J. Hansen, 830 McClure.

Looking Back

From the Times, Aug. 27, 1909.

Diamond jewelry to the value of $4,500 was stolen from the show windows of Redfern's establishment on Government Street. The police have no clue to the thieves. The loss was discovered yesterday. Circumstances surrounding the robbery are the most mysterious which the local police force have ever been set to work upon. The diamonds were apparently removed from a tray. Theft included a pair of $1,256 diamond earrings.

'Religion Just an Excuse For Feuding in Ireland'

Real Causes Economic, Political

By ROBERT L. MOTT

BELFAST—It is all a bit Irish. Historic religious animosity fueled by a perverse love of parades resurrecting old battles and opening old wounds; a civil rights movement growing out of modern social and economic problems but rooted in that same old sectarian feud; always, lingering in the background, is the question of the border.

In its simplest form it is Protestant vs. Catholic in a country so small and with such a violent history of sectarian conflict that there is no outlet for frustration or fear except to bash your neighbor of the other faith.

But nothing in Ireland is that simple. Religion in its pure sense is merely a convenient excuse to perpetuate a feud that, by now, owes more to political and economic exploitation and to social discrimination than to differing interpretations of the scriptures.

Can't Forget

Except on the question of birth control, I have not heard a Catholic or a Protestant in this country discuss the merits of either religion during two weeks of the worst civil strife northern Ireland has known in nearly a half century.

The "troubles" of Ireland started as religous persecution, and in their hysterical way the Irish—and the Scots and English planters who came here 350 years ago as settlers and have become the dominant class in 20th century Ulster — seem incapable of forgetting a single victory or defeat.

Unfortunately, there have been too many of these, and even now new dates are being added to what one journalist called the "calendar of violence" which the Irish honor so religiously.

If it does not happen sooner, the next fiesta could come on Oct. 5, when it will be one year since a budding civil rights movement made its public debut in Londonderry in a demonstration for equal rights that resulted in violence that sputtered along until Aug. 12, when Londonderry was again the scene of violence that spread throughout the country and caused eight deaths, seven of them in Belfast.

Only the intervention of the British army on Aug. 14 in Londonderry, and a day later in Belfast, prevented what would almost certainly have been a bloodbath.

Aug. 12 is now a double anniversary, because it was a Protestant parade on that date celebrating a successful defense of Londonderry against the Catholic King James II in 1689! That the Bogside Catholics of 1969 disrupted with a hail of rocks.

Close Scrutiny

Even if the past could be forgotten, the newest crisis would not go away. The growth of civil rights movements all over the world and the ability of the mass media to project them into living rooms everywhere, have put the "Irish problem" under closer scrutiny than ever before.

If nothing else, it is an embarrassment to the British government for the world to see that at least one corner of a great parliamentary democracy is not so democratic and never far from civil war.

The civil rights movement sprang up after years of inept opposition in the provincial parliament at Stormont by nationalist MPs more concerned with reunification with the Irish Republic — a dim hope except in times of crisis — than with working within the system to do away with injustices against Catholics under the Unionist (and Protestant) government.

Civil rights leaders decided — correctly, as it turned out — that the only way to fight Protestant domination was in the streets in the hope of forcing the British government to intervene.

Hence last October's disorders, followed by more of the same: a parliamentary election in February called by a panicked Unionist government with inconclusive results; then the granting of civil reforms under pressure from London.

Like so many revolutions this one gathered force as the entrenched power appeared to be buckling. To counter this, the hard-liners in the cabinet succeeded in getting rid of moderate Prime Minister Terence O'Neill and replacing him with James Chichester-Clark, an ineffectual man who seems to have little control within the ruling clique.

The injustices which the reforms are meant to end were perpetuated by a combination of almost medieval laws and the type of "gentleman's agreement" that can only exist when a society is so sharply divided.

It was the law that only householders and their wives could vote in local elections, meaning that adult sons and daughters living at home — common among large Catholic families — were without the franchise. The law also gave multiple votes to firms. Ulster's history had placed most businesses in the hands of Protestants.

Segregated

Job discrimination is the simplest to practice. Labor exchanges are manned by members of the all Protestant Orange Order.

Application forms ask not what church you belong to, but what school you attended, which is tantamount to the same thing: schools are almost wholly segregated.

The Ulster special constabulary, ("B-specials") is open to all, says the government, but curiously nearly everyone of the 8,400 members is a Protestant.

Recruiting sergeants ask what lodge an applicant belong to, and if it isn't the Orange Order — 100,000 strong, including nearly all members of the cabinet — the candidate is told not to waste his time.

Discriminating in low cost public housing is a little more complicated, but enough legally valid grounds for rejection of a prospective tenant can be found ,e.g. a large family living in rundown quarters may be refused a new house on the grounds of inability to keep it in good condition) to perpetuate the abuses.

These practices, together with gerrymandering of electoral districts, were already in the process of being abolished when the latest wave of violence erupted. Right or wrong, the catholics were determined to push their fight to the limit.

It was expected in most quarters that the Protestant apprentice boys' parade in Londonderry on Aug. 12 would lead to further violence, but the government has said — then and now— that there was "no evidence" of impending trouble.

When there was, the government promptly banned further marches for the remainder of August, marking the second time in a year it has, in effect, banned a Catholic parade after a protestant procession was allowed.

This clumsiness in handling an explosive situation, together with accusations that police shot Catholics without provocation during the recent five days of violence, have only added to the fear and distrust despite the current easing of tension brought by 6,000 British soldiers, who have replaced the Ulster police in trouble spots.

The opposing sides seem to be irreconcilable. The government has convened almost nightly meetings of a "peace commission" aimed at restoring — or rather creating— harmonious community relations.

Oiling Rifles

Yet there are no important Catholic or civil rights leaders — nor are there any known Protestant extremists — in the group. Moderates are talking brotherhood to moderates, while militants oil their rifles and count their Molotov Cocktails. (A by-product of the disorders has been a shortage of milk bottles in Belfast.)

Many Catholics and Protestants are ready to bury the hatchet right now, with eight dead, damage estimated at $12 millions and untold losses in tourism and foreign investment that will stay away.

Even moderate civil rights leaders, notable John Hume and Ivan Cooper of the Civil Rights Association (Cooper is a Protestant), are determined that the British government should suspend the Ulster government, disarm and disband the B-specials, write legislative guarantees implementing a promise of "equal rights for all," and clarify the Special Powers Act under which the Northern Ireland government can intern political prisoners for indefinite periods.

Some militants — notably the university-based People's Democracy group, from which Bernadette Devlin emerged to be elected to the British Parliament at 22 — go further and demand union with the Irish Republic.

Catholics also complain that new industry since the war has been concentrated in the heavily-Protestant east for sectarian reasons, and that the province's second university should have been located in Londonderry (Catholic) and not the smaller (Protestant) city of Coleraine.

The economic squeeze throughout the United Kingdom has also had its effect. An electrical goods factory near Londonderry that closed early last year put 1800 persons — nearly all Catholics — out of work. Some have traced the origins of the civil rights movement to this single event.

No one I have talked to has yet offered a conceivable outcome both logical and peaceful. "This quarrel will end when one side wins," said a Dubliner.

He meant the Catholics and the south, for Republicans feel that, with the Catholic birth rate running much higher than that of Protestants (the ratio in primary schools is 50-50) and with continued pressure from Britain, Catholics will gradually become a majority and ultimately gain political power, then merge into the Irish Republic.

It is just this fear that provokes many Protestants to action, and if a united republic became a reality, it is likely in this bizarre country that a "Protestant IRA" would spring into existence overnight.

Close Check

Prime Minister Harold Wilson is acutely aware that the "Irish problem" has been the undoing of many skilful British politicians, and his actions are bound to be taken with that in mind.

So far it appears that British policy is to keep a close check on Ulster's government without appearing to do so too obviously.

It might work, or it could further provoke both extremist Catholics and Protestants, the former on the ground of failing to meet their demands, the latter on the ground that Ulster is being sold down the River Foyle that runs through both parts of divided Ireland.

Bail System Favors The Affluent

The Globe and Mail

Few Torontonians know Derek Green—but what happened to him in their city should rest heavily on their consciences.

He tried to hang himself. He is from Newfoundland and alone and in trouble. Early this summer he was charged with theft, possession of stolen goods and public mischief. He appeared before a judge, his date of trial was set and he was told his bail was $500.

To Derek Green $500 might as well have been $5-million. He didn't have it. So they took him to the cells and he stayed there for 44 days until he appeared for trial.

●

When he heard that he'd have to wait another week he went berserk and later tried to hang himself in the cells below the courtroom.

The experience of this boy — innocent until proved guilty —spending 44 days in the wretched cells of the Don Jail is another compelling example of the injustice visited upon the poor by a bail system that favors the pocketbook over the person.

Had Derek Green had $500 he could have bought his freedom like the average middle-class citizen similarly accused.

But no, since he didn't have a generously lined billfold he is treated as though he had already been sentenced.

Justice Minister John Turner has already publicly favored serious revisions of the iniquitous bail system.

●

He recognizes that certain individuals arrested on warrant require detention before trial for one of two reasons: there are reasonable grounds to believe they won't turn up for trial or they may endanger the safety of the community.

But he underlined his belief that in determining whether a man is granted bail, his pocketbook should not count.

Under present law, the court is free to release persons accused of an offence on their own recognizance.

But the evidence, repeated over and over again, of dozens spending time in jail and being subsequently found innocent or guilty and fined, shows that large numbers of persons are punished by jailing when they are either innocent or at least undeserving of a jail sentence.

●

Moreover, as Professor Martin Friedland indicated in his book Detention Before Trial, there is significant evidence to show that persons released on their own recognizance do not run from trial.

Is it not logical, therefore, to ask why so many must be hauled into court on a warrant in the first place?

Why cannot more persons be given a summons ordering them to appear for their day in court?

In this way, we would be making sure that accused persons come to trial, but we would avoid the disgrace of having them do time, without being sentenced to do it.

After Marking Crosses It's Still Up to Us

Stoll

After our brief moment of supreme importance, when we marked ballots today, we enfranchised citizens of British Columbia reverted to the less exalted position of taxpayers again. The fury, shouting, occasional reasoned argument, the claims and the charges fade. We're back to normal, if there is any normal nowadays.

Some who are lucky in this community can return to a little leisurely fishing. If they troll off Clover Point, they may take time to consider our development in historic perspective.

On those waters, where more boats seem to catch fewer salmon than a generation ago, they are moving in the area where James Douglas sought out a landing prior to establishing old Fort Victoria 126 years ago. He and his fellow workmen, representing the company of gentleman adventurers, came to a country known only to Indians. They came for profit and they governed themselves accordingly. The writ of the Hudson's Bay Company ran. How it ran, for better or for worse, depends largely on the way you look at things. But at all events they laid the groundwork for a city that became the capital of a territory and eventually a province.

We are their beneficiaries, living in a luxury they could not conceive—and voting today to choose by whom and how we shall be governed. At least that's the principle of the system which obviously doesn't leave this decision to those who vote for candidates who aren't elected.

If you came in late, it's important to look back to the beginnings and the years of progress during more than a century. You might have imagined, from the remarks of some candidates, that there was no capital and no British Columbia less than a score of years ago.

The historians—and again depending on their particular points of view—have recorded the governments good and bad since the Douglas arrival. We've had them both and we've survived. And we've survived, it seems to me, not because of the brilliance of some governments or the mediocrity of others, but because our people have been able to adjust to the complexities of life snowballing with the years.

We've gone through our crises and come out of them materially better off than ever before. Maybe that's a crisis issue now. We've learned to want more and to expect our wants to be fulfilled. During election campaigns we're certainly told that we can have almost everything we desire—and maybe we can.

But in what some people call the escalation of expectations we've lifted the ceiling from our wants. We want more for our schools, more for social services, more for jobs and for doing them, more for "the good life". It's all reasonable enough to the person who does the wanting. And there are no limits to the money that could be usefully applied to any number of services and amenities. Who ever heard of an allocation to education that was declined by the educators because it was too much? Or the welfare people, or "the good life" exponents? Who ever heard of an employee protesting he was overpaid?

Somewhere, though, we have to strike a balance, and striking of that balance is as vital on the part of the individual as the government. Governments, which are transitory, yield to the greatest compulsion, good or bad. When public pressure builds up enough, something has to give, and it's usually the government if it wishes to stay in office.

So the prospects for the future come back to people, the voters and taxpayers. If they want good government, they have to exercise intelligence and some moderation in the pressure they exert. People, they say, get the kind of government they deserve. If their demands are improvident, so, in most cases, will be the government's response

Of course there's room for differences of opinion on how public money is spent. That's largely what the voters have been proving today. But the voters should appreciate the source of that money. It comes from them and the resources for which they are trustees.

★ ★ ★

They should remember that when the demands of special interests are raised—realizing, of curse, that they, themselves, may be making special interest demands all in the name of the public weal.

It sounds old-fashioned, but maybe, as we revert to our conventional taxpaying role, we should condition our demands on what we can afford collectively. Despite the rhetoric of the hustings, no miracle workers were elected today. They're humans, yielding to the strongest compulsion. It's up to us to see that the compulsions we thrust upon them are rational. It isn't enough just to say "I want".

Volume Drop Puts Squeeze On N.Y. Brokerage Firms

NEW YORK (UPI) — Wall Street brokerage houses are hurting and in some cases hurting badly.

The recent stock market slide and sharp drop in volume has forced some large brokerage firms to lay off employees, close branch offices and virtually eliminate overtime. Just about every firm, big and small, has been affected to some extent.

McDonnell and Co. recently announced it was closing or selling 17 of its 26 branch offices. Earlier this year it discharged almost its entire research staff. Later it laid off 70 of its 1,500 employees and sold one of its three seats on the New York Stock Exchange.

Others announcing cutbacks have been Francis I. Du Pont, Blair and Co., H. Hentz, Dominick and Dominick, Dempsey Tegler, Nuven and Weis, Vosin and Cannon, Inc.

The drop in volume is one reason even the biggest brokerage houses are barely breaking even or running in the red.

During the boom year of 1968, volume averaged around 13 million shares a day. During the month of August it averaged just over 9 million. The New York Stock Exchange estimates the industry's break-even point at slightly more than 10 million shares daily.

Bache and Co., second only to Merril Lynch in the business, recently reported it made only $13,237 during the first quarter on revenues of $35,000,000. Most other firms claim to be at or near their break-even point, but Wall Street sources say that many are losing money, some heavily. One large firm is said to be losing nearly $1 million a month.

Wall Street's prosperity just prior to the slump led to the profit squeeze.

During 1968, member firms of the New York exchange increased their back office staffs by about 35 per cent and invested heavily in computers and other equipment to handle the crush of paperwork. While many of the new employees have been laid off or fired many others have been kept. Wall Street, being eternally optimistic, envisions brighter days ahead.

"We're overstaffed, but we have to have overstaffing to handle the volume of the '70s," says Herbert Cannon, president of Weis, Vosin, Cannon Inc., a medium-sized firm employing about 1,000 persons.

Some firms have followed the merger route to avoid a repetition of this year's squeeze. The two largest odd-lot dealers Carlisle and Jacquelin and Decoppet and Doremus have announced plans to merge Burnham and Co., a large firm, recently said it will acquire Gerstley, Sunstein and Co., a smaller Philadelphia-based firm.

One method of avoiding another such profit squeeze may be for firms to sell shares to the public. Present stock exchange rules forbid member firms to sell their own shares but the stock exchange has recommended to its members that its bylaws be changed to permit member forms to "go public."

"This would give brokerage firms another avenue to raise capital" said John Kelly of Merril Lynch, which has long favored the move.

Wall Street hopes that avenue will be paved with gold rather than red ink.

Bethlehem

Indians of the Cook's Ferry Band at Spences Bridge are seeking an injunction and damages for alleged trespass on the Quillanton Reserve in Highland Valley against Bethlemem Copper Corp. Ltd.

The Indians charge that John Owens, as an agent for the company, entered the reserve and located mineral claims in March, 1967. Plaintiffs say the band gave no permission to the company to enter the reserve.

Coal Output

Alberta's coal output in July was down from a year ago but the total for the seven months ended July 31 showed an increase over the comparable 1968 period.

Philip Melson, director of mines, has reported output in July was 229,238 tons, a decrease of 33,817 tons, but output for the seven months ended July 31 was 2,435,483 tons, an increase of 259,102 tons or an increase in value of $1,064,421.

Toronto Dominion

Profits of Toronto Dominion Bank in the third quarter of the current fiscal year amounted to $4.3 million or 28.8 cents a share against $3.85 million or 25.7 cents a share in the same period last year.

For the nine months ended July 31 profits were equivalent to 77.9 cents a share as compared with 68.2 cents a share in the corresponding 1968 period.

Balance of revenue for the third quarter, before appropriation for losses and income taxes, was up 25.3 per cent to $14.9 million.

Evandon

Evadon Exploration and Holdings Ltd. of Toronto, which lost $195,596 in 1965 when Atlantic Acceptance Corp. went broke and defaulted on a short-term loan, won some consolation when the tax appeal board found this to be a capital loss and thus deductible for income tax purposes.

In a judgment released Tuesday, appeal board member Maurice Boisvert said Evandon's loan to Atlantic was for the purpose of increasing profits and thus constitued a business loss.

Falconbridge

Falconbridge Nickel Mines Ltd. has reported a net profit of $21.05 million or $4.28 a share for the six-month period ended June 30. Net profits for the same period last year were $10.44 millon or $2.13 a share.

Metal sales and other operating revenues increased to $71.25 million from $49.82 million.

Officials of the company attributed the increase in sales, profits, deliveries and lower unit costs to the culmination of the long-term development program at its Strathcona mine.

Provincial

The Provincial Bank of Canada has reported operating profits of $8.01 million or $1.78 per share for the nine months ended July 31 compared with $5.7 million or $1.27 per share for the corresponding period last year.

Total revenue was $45.06 million compared with $34.92 million last year.

The operating profits do not include provision for income taxes or appropriation for losses.

Aquitaine

Aquitaine Co. of Canada Ltd., based in Calgary, was traded for the first time Monday on the American Stock Exchange.

Trading opened on 3-400 shares at 25⅛.

Aquitaine, an oil and gas development firm, is 82-yer-cent owned by the Frnech firm of Societe Nationale des Petroles d'Aquitaine and owns an interest in Banff Oil Ltd.

Withdrawal Explained

LONDON (AP) — Leasco Data Processing Co., the United States' computing giant, spelled out Tuesday why it withdrew its bid for Pergamon Press, owned by British socialist millionaire parliamentarian Robert Maxwell.

A statement issued by N. M. Rothschild and Sons, Leasco's London financial adviser, said that as negotiations over the deal continued "a number of questions arose which gradually eroded Leasco's confidence, until finally Leasco concluded that it would not be justified in increasing its investment in Pergamon without a more thorough investigation."

The announcement came after the panel on takeovers and mergers of the City of London financial district met for nine hours Monday to discuss the situation.

Leasco director Robert Hodes said Monday his company had definitely "dropped out of the takeover." He said it still denied a statement by Pergamon chairman Maxwell that Leasco lacked available cash for the deal.

The statement—issued at the request of the city panel—detailed the negotiations from June 17 and voiced Leasco's "growing concern over the information they had been given and the soundness of any conclusions which might have been reached from it as to the fundamental earning power of Pergamon's business."

'Commission Return Inadequate'

NEW YORK (WP) — Stockbrokers' income from commission business is inadequate and should be increased by boosting charges to small investors, the New York Stock Exchange said Tuesday.

In a letter to the exchange membership, NYSE president Robert W. Haack said that a study by the exchange and its consultant, National Economic Research Associates, indicates that the rate of return on invested capital "is inadequate to attract the permanent capital needed by the industry."

Haack also said that charges on large transactions—such as orders from mutual funds—"appear to be too high and insufficiently related to cost."

The letter said that increasing charges on small orders would permit borkers to give individual customers better service. "When small orders become 'loss leaders' there is a natural tendency to neglect them" Haack's letter said. "Far from discouraging investment by non-institutional customers," the letter added, "cost related commission rates could increase direct investment by individuals because firms would have an incentive to provide more emphasis and depth in services to the small customer."

Haack said the exchange-sponsored study, which is still not complete, is based on two sets of figures—income and expense reports submitted by member firms and the transaction revenue study, which will show the number of transactions involved in the average large-block order.

"In general, the exchange and its consultants feel that any future commission structure should in no case reduce total commission revenues but might well have to provide for an overall increase," the letter concluded.

English Pub Revolution Seen in New Decade

LONDON (Reuters) — Revolutionary changes are coming in the 1970s to the English pubs—those cozy, tradition-packed haunts of Englishmen in search of camaraderie, eccentric chatter or just a pint of good draft beer.

In the next decade the average Englishman will have to edge his way around little children clambering for ice-cream to get to the bar. And once there he may find the pub no longer stocks the kind of beer Englishmen have guzzled since the reign of Queen Elizabeth I.

This is the view of Sir Derek Pritchard, chairman of Britain's second-largest brewery firm and one which owns 8,000 of Britain's 58,000 public houses.

Pritchard, in a magazine article, says that traditional draft beer may be unobtainable in the next decade—replaced by lager, the kind of beer favored in the rest of the world; by keg beer, a pressurized beer similar in flavor to draft but much easier to keep, and by wine.

Because of licensing laws, children are not allowed into pubs and parents wanting both to watch their offspring and enjoy a drink at the "local boozer" have to search for a pub with an outside garden.

Pritchard foresees pubs with special rooms for children and bartenders stocking up on candy and ice cream for them.

Vast improvements in that staple of the British diet—pub food—also are predicted by Pritchard.

Pub food now consists for the most part of cold starchy meat pies and thin sandwiches. But Pritchard says pub managers by the thousands soon will install infra-red heating machines to grill steaks and improve their menus in countless other ways.

Freud Home Opened

VIENNA (AP)—The city of Vienna, in co-operation with a new Sigmund Freud Society, plans to restore the apartment of the "father of psychoanalisis," including his famous couch.

The apartment is located at 19 Bergasse, not far from city centre. Freud lived there most of his life and he had his practice there.

The house is a typical apartment building of the middle-income class.

The city provided new quarters for the present tenants of the Freud apartment. Vienna architect Hans Hollein was hired to supervise its restoration as a museum.

A library in the apartment is to contain not only all books Freud wrote, but also all literature about him.

So far, only a small bust in Vienna University and a modest plaque on the house where Freud had his apartment commemorate him here.

Composer Seeking Metchosin Bird Calls

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

The bird songs of Metchosin are sought by an elderly man living in Vancouver.

"I would like to combine recordings of these bird songs with some of my pianoforte compositions," writes Lester Hodgins of 2763 West Seventh Avenue, Vancouver 8.

"Fifty years ago, I lived in Metchosin and I can never forget the magnificence of the bird songs we heard at dawning.

"Most of the music I've composed since found its inspiration in those quiet hills. I'm now retired and preparing some of my music on tape."

Hodgins also seeks tape recordings of the Bells of St. Mary's Anglican Church and the sound of waves breaking on Metchosin's rocky shore.

He is one of thousands of enthusiasts in many countries of the world who collect sounds retained on slender strips of magnetized tape.

They swap their favorite records; chat about their hobbies and families, and relay strange, evocative sounds—some sentimental, some ludicrous.

"Just listen to this healthy, throaty gurgle," chortled Ralph S. King of Bristol, England, as he recorded the sound of water running out of a washbasin on the fifth floor of his hotel.

Many tape enthusiasts belong to organizations such as Tapeworms International, London, England, and Tapes Unlimited, Dallas, Tex.

They delight in sounds from faroff places—the laughter of children in Rome; a Swedish music box that tinkles like starlight on snow; the silvery chimes of Victoria's Dutch carillon; the gong-like tones of a Japanese engineer working on Expo '70.

Tapeworms have infinite tastes. An Australian sheep farmer would welcome the roar of millions of gallons of water gushing over the Peace River Dam.

Soul Queen Rests

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Singer Aretha Franklin, the Queen of Soul, has cancelled the rest of her bookings for 1969 on the advice of her doctor. A spokesman for Miss Franklin, 27, said she is suffering from the effects of overwork and needed a rest. Cancellations include appearances on the Andy Williams and Tom Jones TV shows, three concerts and a European tour.

Esquimalt Dogs Jogger's Worry

When Harold Hemus jogs through Esquimalt on his evening rounds he carries a club to beat back a group of snarly dogs which have taken to jogging with him.

The dogs wait until Hemus of 924 Alexander is on Parklands Drive and then, in a growling mass, chase him, nipping at his heels and yelping.

Hemus has had enough.

At the advice of the SPCA he's armed himself but he has also complained to Esquimalt council. His letter read at a council meeting Monday night touched off a warm endorsement of dogs by Ald. William Bell.

"I'm in favor of dogs. My dog is a good dog. He will chase a prowler," said Bell.

Ald. Roy Elphick deplored the way several dogs are sometimes penalized for the misbehavior of one or two.

And the SPCA, in reply to Hemus' complaint, had an embarrassing admission to make: they can't find dogs in the dark.

D. H. Beching, secretary manager of the SPCA wrote council to explain what he had done.

He sent a man to patrol the area after Hemus complained.

As a result of this special attention: "Our man received a personal complaint from one of the residents that he was spending too much time in the area," the letter said.

The SPCA tried a different tact.

It sent letters to the 30 dog-owners in the neighborhood asking them to take their animals for a daily walk "in the charge of a competent person" and keep them in otherwise.

"As a result of this, three further complaints were received from dog-owners", the letter went on.

One said there is a lack of dog control, another complained of too much dog control, and a third said all dog-owners shouldn't be harrassed for the sins of a few.

It was finally suggested that Hemus take offending owners to court and Beeching appologized for the SPCA'S unproductive night patrols.

It is almost impossible to catch dogs in the dark, the letter concluded.

"Maybe the dogs were just yipping and jogging along with Hemus," Elphick suggested.

Bell said he didn't like the "tenor" of the SPCA letter and suggested Hemus find a different route for jogging.

"A dog never chases a cat until it runs," he said.

Council finally agreed to send a letter to Hemus suggesting he take court action against the offending dog-owners.

In other business, council approved Esquimalt's $500 share in an intermunicipal grant for a proposed attendance centre to be open evening and weekends for juveniles.

The centre is being financed by the province and the municipalities for the first three months on a fifty-fifty basis.

GIRL GOES GAS-CLASS

ST. GALLEN, Switzerland (AP) — A Swiss engineer told Monday how he smuggled his 19-year-old East German financee 200 miles to freedom in the converted gasoline tank of his English automobile.

Talf Baldenweg, 27, brought his bride-to-be—Friedl Linke—across Hungary and Yugoslavia to the safety of Austria. After being refused permission to marry her sweetheart, the girl went on a camping vacation to Lake Balaton, Hungary, where she had arranged to meet Baldenweg.

Before leaving Switzerland, Baldenweg paid $1,000 for a large Alvis special car and set to work fitting a 22-gallon gas tank. But it held only four gallons. The rest was a cramped compartment for the girl with a thin air tube.

Ten days ago their flight to freedom began. "I don't know how we got through," said the brunette from Dresden. "At times I thought I was going to die in there."

Pigeons No Joke to Devoted Adherents

By ROBIN BURGESS

There was a flurry of small wings and close to 200 pigeons rose in a flock and circled round and round in the sky above Langley.

John Lowrence, of the Capital City Racing Pigeon Club, nodded in satisfaction.

Trained, specially bred for racing, the birds would probably cover the distance to Victoria in just over an hour.

As this was simply a training too, however, the young pigeons' flying times would not be clocked.

These birds, some as young as 12 weeks old, were already ready to race.

Lowrence carefully closed the wire cages specially built into the back of the big truck and climbed into the cab.

He explained some of the history of the Capital City Racing Pigeon Club and the ancient sport of pigeon racing.

Racing pigeons is no joke. In fact enthusiasts are probably as serious about the sport as horse racing fanciers are about theirs.

In Europe where pigeon racing has been popular since the time of the Roman Empire, a pair of top racing birds recently sold for $35,000.

The Victoria club was formed in 1946 and currently has 30 senior and 20 junior members, said Lowrence.

On racing days, he explained one of the club members takes the pigeons to the designated race point and radios word when he has released them.

"There's some mighty tense moments from then on waiting for the birds to come or for the phone to ring with the news that someone else has pigeons home first," he said.

The Victoria club has a series of race point locations from Tsawwassen to Blue River.

But the ultimate goal of each member is to have birds fly home from Edmonton. It's a goal some of the members have reached.

In the last few years birds have flown the route from Edmonton over the Rocky Mountains to Victoria in less than 3 days.

In general, flying times for the club this year have been exceptionally good. In one particular race, a strong tail wind and perfect conditions enabled the pigeons to reach speeds of 79 m.p.h. said Lowrence with real pride.

What makes a good racing pigeon?

"A good pigeon is one that time and time again comes down first," said Dick Roe, another member of the club.

No body characteristic is going to guarantee that a pigeon is a good racer."

A word of advice if you're a novice intrigued by the idea of starting your own loft—Don't ask a veteran pigeon racer to sell you a pair of birds. The true enthusiast isn't in the game for a profit, and his pigeons aren't for sale.

Forces Level Shows Drop

WASHINGTON (WP) — The total strength of United States military forces in Vietnam dropped by 8,000 last week, reflecting for the first time the effects of the troop withdrawal begun two months ago.

The defence department announced that the U.S. force level at the end of last week was 526,500 — the lowest since May, 1968.

By the end of this month, when the withdrawal of 25,000 troops is to be completed, the United States will have 515,000 soldiers, sailors and airmen in Vietnam, a Pentagon spokesman said.

The sudden drop in troop strength came shortly after Congressional skeptics complained that the withdrawal seemed to be having no noticeable effect on the size of the U.S. military establishment in Vietnam.

SEASONAL FLUCTUATIONS

Senate armed services committee chairman John Stennis (D—Miss.) asked the Pentagon for an explanation, and Defence Secretary Laird said that seasonal fluctuations and previously initiated rotations were keeping the level high, but that it would drop by the end of August.

Pentagon spokesman said Tuesday that a lower casualty rate than expected during June and July also kept the force level from dropping. Replacements for projected casualties were enroute to Vietnam, but casualties dropped by about 50 per cent during the recent battlefield lull.

The peak strength of U.S. forces in Vietnam was 543,054 on Feb. 20.

When President Nixon and South Vietnam President Nguyen Van Thieu announced on June 8 that the United States would remove 25,000 troops, the U.S. strength was 538,500 but the Pentagon used 540,000 as the departure point for the withdrawal.

MEET GOAL

Laird said in June that the withdrawal would be complete by Aug. 31. Tuesday, a Pentagon spokesman said that Laird's "goal will be met."

Since the withdrawal began, the U.S. force level has remained at about 535,000 until last week. On Aug. 7 it was 535,200 and on Aug. 14 it was 534,200. By Aug. 21, it had dropped to 526,500.

As of Tuesday, the Pentagon said, 23,000 of the 25,000 had been withdrawn.

While the withdrawal is underway, however, normal rotation is continuing and much of the decrease is being accomplished by returning personnel at the end of their Vietnam tour and not replacing them.

Since the withdrawal was announced, more than 1,600 Americans have been killed.

Heavy Fighting At Da Nang

SAIGON (Reuters) — The last American troops in the initial withdrawal of 25,000 men from Vietnam began leaving today amid reports of heavy fighting near Da Nang and two big terrorist bomb attacks.

CLASH AGAIN TUESDAY

American infantry and marines Tuesday killed six North Vietnamese for the loss of one man killed in clashes on the foothills of the central plateau 30 miles south of Da Nang, a U.S. military command spokesman said today.

Skytroopers of the U.S. 1st Air Cavalry Division Tuesday found the bodies of 33 guerrillas in a jungle bunker complex close to the Cambodian border 60 miles north-northwest of Saigon.

The guerrillas were believed killed in a clash three days ago.

Meanwhile, 17 Vietnamese were killed and 99 wounded Tuesday night in two separate terrorist attacks—one of them near Da Nang, a government spokesman said.

In one of the incidents, a terrorist hurled a grenade into a packed village classroom where pacification workers were holding a meeting. Fifteen civilians and two government workers died and 28 civilians and 12 workers were injured in the blast, near Phu My in Binh Dinh province 269 miles northeast of Saigon.

In Da Nang, South Vietnam's second largest city 300 miles northeast of Saigon, a guerrilla threw two packs of explosives into a crowded market place in front of a military camp wounding 46 soldiers and 13 civilians.

Both terrorists escaped.

A U.S. Navy river patrol boat opened fire on 15 to 20 guerrillas spotted crossing a river 32 miles northwest of Saigon during the night and killed 15 of them, the U.S. spokesman said.

Clubs Halt March

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Black and white demonstrators rebounding from an angry confrontation with club-swinging police are prepared to return to the streets to press demands for more black memberships in trade unions.

"We're going to come back day after day until we get what we want," said Michael Dismond, a leader of the Black Construction Coalition protesting the low percentage of Negroes among the city's 300,000 trade union members.

For eight hours Monday, 1,000 singing, hand-clapping demonstrators weaved through the city and succeeded in closing 10 major construction projects involving an estimated $200,000,000.

Several hundred demonstrators, bent on closing 30 more projects, assembled Tuesday near the construction site of the city's new Three Rivers Sports Stadium. They planned to move from there to the downtown area across the Manchester Bridge.

Police were under orders to keep the demonstrators on the bridge sidewalks and off traffic lanes, which had backed up for blocks with early-morning commuters.

Suddenly, violence erupted.

Police, swinging riot clubs surged forward under a barrage of rocks from the demonstrators.

When it ended, 20 marchers and 12 policemen were injured. Some 175 persons were placed under arrest. Most were charged with disorderly conduct but at least 12 were held on charges of inciting to riot.

Despite the demonstration work resumed at the 10 projects that were closed Monday.

Riot Cleanup Projects—Swimming Pools, Boardwalk

WASHINGTON (AP) — The $9,000,000 President Nixon set aside for riot cleanup is financing projects ranging from portable swimming pools in Akron, Ohio, to boardwalk repairs on Coney Island.

The president announced the program April 8 as a start to rid 20 U.S. cities of what Nixon called the "marks of violence and destruction."

But Detroit is using $739,383 of these federal funds for what its officials call a "morale program" aimed at rats and garbage, not riot debris.

And "those rotting, boarded-up structures, barely 30 blocks from the White House" that the president referred to in his statement still stand in Washington.

There's little else the cities can do with the $9,000,000 Nixon and the department of housing and urban development made available.

Congress specified in 1968 that the money could only be used in future urban renewal sites for such things as temporary recreational facilities, sprucing-up operations and repairs to public facilities and demolition of structurally unsound buildings.

So Akron is using part of its $534,000 grant for four portable swimming pools as well as for trash cleanups and demonstration projects designed to improve garbage collection.

New York City, where major racial disorders broke out in Harlem and Brooklyn in 1964, is pumping $900,000 in interim assistance into a host of projects scattered throughout the city's poverty areas.

Part of the money, about $10,000, will improve the boardwalk in Coney Island—a section of the city best known for its boardwalk amusement area but also troubled by poverty in its Negro and Puerto Rican slums.

Youths battled police in a flareup on Coney Island last summer.

Miniature Rolls-Royce Carries Five-Figure Price Ticket

EDISON, N.J. (AP) — Want to buy a mini Rolls-Royce that's only nine feet long, less than three feet high and actually runs?

Such a car—an exact miniature of the famous 1919 Silver Ghost Roadster—is parked among an array of pre-war British automobiles in a nondescript garage in this township.

Walter Wolfson obtained the mini-car a number of years ago when he gave up his structural steel sales-engineering career to devote full time to his hobby of collecting classic vintage automobiles.

Wolfson buys and sells antique autos across the world. He also supplies unique cars for movies and advertisements.

Explaining how the small roadster was built, Wolfson recalled that in 1919 a Pennsylvania man, Arthur Llewellyn, ordered a regular-sized Silver Ghost—a two-seater.

After receiving his new car, Llewellyn was so thrilled with its style and performance that he called the Rolls-Royce dealer in Virginia to express his satisfaction and asked that a duplicate be made for his two children.

What he failed to tell the dealer, Wolfson explained, was that his youngsters were five and seven years old at the time and what he really wanted was a pedal-type car for them to play with.

About a year later, Llewellyn received his "order" and a bill for almost $10,000.

"He went into a state of shock for a couple of days," Wolfson said, when the man discovered that an exact miniature had been handmade—down to its headlights, bumpers, wooden spoked wheels, full transmission, radiator emblem and everything else the "mother car" had.

The vehicle, the only one of its kind in the world, is powered by a four-cylinder gasoline engine and will do about 30 miles an hour, Wolfson added.

"But after the shock wore off, Llewellyn drove the little Silver Ghost, fell in love with it and the kids never did get it," Wolfson explained. Llewellyn drove it for a number of years and then added it to his automobile collection.

When asked if he would part with the car, Wolfson said yes.

"I've never advertised it for sale," he said, "but like any of my other cars, if someone wants it they can purchase it." He added, however, the car has a five-figure price tag on it.

Car Dealer Faces Charge

Brian C. Holley, president and general manager of Brian Holley Motors Ltd., today pleaded not guilty to a charge of fraud.

Holley is charged with defrauding Michael A. Sudul, 1250 Monterey, of $460 between July 14 and July 16, 1968 by telling him a car he was purchasing was a 1966 model instead of a 1965 model.

Holley, appearing in provincial court, elected trial by magistrate and was remanded to Sept. 16.

James Boys' Kin Tell Real Story

KNOXVILLE, Iowa (AP)—Historians may dissent but three persons who say they are relatives of Jesse and Frank James have written what they call the "real story" of the notorious outlaw brothers.

Columbus Vaughn, a Knoxville school teacher; his aunt, Sarah Elizabeth Snow, and Lester Snow, a cousin, tell their version in This Was Frank James, a book just published by Dorrance and Co. of Philadelphia.

Frank James did not die in Kearney, Mo., as legend has it, but instead spent the last 40 years of his life in the Ozarks at Wayton, Ark., the book says.

Jesse James, instead of being shot from ambush by a cousin in St. Joseph, Mo., let a Texas saddle tramp take the bullet from him and lived to be more than 100 before his 1951 death in Granbury, Tex., as J. Frank Dalton.

The authors say Frank James went first to Hackett, Ark., and then to Wayton following the reported shooting of Jesse in 1882.

There he is reported to have assumed the alias of Joe Vaughn, married Nancy Richardson and raised nine children. He died in 1926 at age 80, spending the last five years compiling an autobiography, The Only True Story of Frank James, the authors say.

Of the Vaughn children, four still living include Sarah Elizabeth Snow, who is 79 and lives in Farmersville, Calif., and is one of the authors. Another child is William Nelson Vaughn, Columbus' father, who is 77 and resides in Wayton.

The James brothers were son and stepson of a Baptist minister. Their exploits as outlaws led to the posting of huge rewards for their capture and to a long string of escapades—some real, some imagined.

Following the reported demise of Jesse, the real outlaw hid out under the name of Thomas Howard and Frank let one Sam Collins assume his name and accept amnesty from Missouri Gov. Crittenden, the authors say.

Members of the old James gang were still alive at the time of Joe Vaughn's death and most of some 500 copies of his autobiography were stolen and the publishing company burned to the ground, Columbus Vaughn says.

Merchants Start Crusade to Boot 'Unwashed' Youth From Square

and REG SILVESTER

The merchants around Centennial Square and the nonconformist youngsters in the square are not on speaking terms.

They disagree on what the square's purpose is. The businessmen want it to be for business. The hippies just want it to be.

According to merchants in the area, the kids spit on their windows, intimidate their customers and urinate in the elevator in the parking garage.

The merchants insist they bear no grudge to teen-agers or even hippies — but they've sent a petition across the square to City Hall asking them to protect the taxpayer.

●

"May we draw your attention to the deplorable and disgraceful deterioration of what once was an attractive and productive commercial area and a thing of joy and beauty to our citizens and visitors," reads a petition signed by shop owners in the arcade, and on both sides of Douglas Street near the square.

The uninhibited nature of the "long-haired unwashed" has some of the merchants upset. Women clerks at the Air Canada counter fled to a back room once last week, embarrassed at what they saw.

"You see them pawing one another, almost completing the whole act, lying on top of each other with their legs entwined. You expect them to go all the way any moment," said the manager of one of the stores.

●

Maybe that morality suits them, said another, "but they have to remember that the rest of us don't like to have to watch it.

An Air Canada clerk called police Tuesday at closing time to remove a long-haired youth who had passed out across the ticket office doorway.

He had been panhandling, or begging, from a customer entering the office, she said. It was the first such complaint she had heard.

The square is a public park, and is meant to be used by people, say the kids.

Grass is meant to be sat upon, they reason, especially when it's the only spot of green in a dozen city blocks.

And there's the perennial summer complaint—nowhere to go, nothing to do, for high school students without work and with nothing interesting at home.

The square is not a park, the merchants say. It's a part of their business venture and people, especially "undesirables" really have no right to clutter it up and make them lose business.

City Manager Dennis Young suggests closing the grassed area of the square and enforcing the anti-litter bylaw to empty the square.

●

With the grass closed, he said, "one of the attractions for congregating will be gone, and the group might disperse."

He suggests it is impossible for the business people to "sit back and be tolerant" as they see their businesses adversely affected.

"It's up to the young people to accept certain limitations on their freedom in this area.

He said the park was intended, and has been used, as a central meeting place for the community. But it was meant more as a visual experience than as a park.

The current conflict is the result of "unfortunate misuse by an unthinking minority group."

But, "come next week, they'll all be gone," he said, as school opens for another term.

The merchants themselves offered no solutions — let City Hall do something was the general attitude.

Hugh Francis, of Francis Jewellers, was one of the original circulators of the petition, and is one of the most bitter critics fo the square loiterers.

"It's disgusting down here with papers blowing around all the time. I can't stand the kids with no shoes on and dirty feet, just standing around," he said.

The young users of the square should police themselves, he said — picking up the papers, pop bottles and other debris left behind every night.

●

Mrs. Patricia Bluett, manager of the Book Nook, one of the stores along the square's arcade, said she's "just completely disgusted.

"The amount of cleaning up I have to do in my doorway every morning is completely out of proportion."

She said she has to wash mud off her windows every day—"and the other things I have to clean off them are not so pleasant."

She didn't believe a youth centre would attract them away. "Anything organized by the establishment is automatically no good."

Something positive that she would agree with would be a youth centre organized and operated by the youth themselves.

"I'd like to see someone take some initiative," she said.

●

Signers of the petition which will be considered by city council Thursday were Francis Jewellers, Ray's Sporting Goods, Air Canada, The Cheese Cellar, The Book Nook, Impacts 'n' Imports, Douglas Realty Ltd., Colonial House Coiffures, The Handloom, Douglas Pharmacy, Island Pacific Oil, Beneficial Insurance Co. of Canada, Roma's Fashions, Eddy's Ltd., Barber and Holdcroft Ltd., Miss Frith Millinery and Fashions, Mae Meighen Corset Shoppe, McMartin's Leather Goods, Sally Shops, McPherson Restaurant and Cairo Import Co. Ltd.

Peter Davidson: Rejected and Dejected

Study Pushes Electronic Amalgamation

By JIM HUME

The provincial government this afternoon was scheduled to try and lead the Capital Regional District Board on its first step towards electronic amalgamation.

The move came in the form of a request from the department of municipal affairs that all district municipalities agree to share the cost of a $6,000 to $9,000 study to ascertain district needs for electronic data-processing equipment.

It is little more than a year ago that the city of Victoria, already fully equipped with its own data processing computers, suggested its electronic brain centre be used by other municipalities on a contract basis.

The idea ran into road blocks as Esquimalt, Saanich and Oak Bay shied away from a program which appeared to give Victoria control over their accounting and billing systems.

Saanich reacted strongest by hiring its own experts and immediately launching its own study of data processing and by contracting electronic processing of its assessment and tax rolls to Data-Tech, a private company.

APPEAL ISSUED

By next year Saanich also hopes to have its voters' list on the data processing system.

The provincial government, apparently reluctant a year ago to support a touchy issue, has now issued its own appeal to the regional district to attempt to get data processing via computer on an area-wide basis with one centre serving all municipalities.

Some municipal officials see the senior government plea for uniformity as the first step towards amalgamation of all municipal governments in the area.

"It has to come," one senior official said. "It' silly to even contemplate each municipality having its own data processing centre when the work can be done at great saving to the taxpayer by one centre.

POLITICAL FEARS

"The problem doesn't arise from the logic of the suggestion, but from the political fears that one municipality, the one controlling the data processing centre, would in effect control the others.

"I'm happy to see the problem moved up to the regional level. Maybe there they can get together and select an administrator of such a centre—who will have to be both a politician and a diplomat—to run the whole show."

City manager Dennis Young says the fears of those who see amalgamation in the move are unfounded.

BACK ON PATH

"The suggestion by the provincial government is basically the one we made little more than a year ago," he said this morning. "There was no ulterior motive then, there is no ulterior motive now that I can see.

"I think the provincial government rejected our suggestion a year ago because they hoped that all municipalities could get together without the senior government's intervention. Now, as I see it, they are trying to lead the region to the path they originally hoped they would find voluntarily."

Young said the city would be more than happy to contribute to a general knowledge pool all the information gathered after five years of data processing operations.

"But I doubt if the city would be prepared to pool our equipment to a regionally-controlled centre," he said.

Sign on Bar Tells It All

By JOHN DRISCOLL

History is being made today behind three-sided cardboard screens that serve as polling booths, but in downtown Victoria few ripples disturb the surface of what appears to be just another day of commerce.

Early drinkers, however, knew this was not just another day.

A sign on the door of the men's beverage room at a downtown hotel told it all.

"Sorry. Voting day.

"Open 8 p.m." That's when polls close.

The day began with a drizzle of rain and a trickle of voters. Analysts who were trying to determine what effect rain would have on the election pulled out their beautiful-weather vote forecasts when the sun broke through about 10 a.m.

★ ★ ★

A student of mythology even had a theory about the fact that there was a full moon looming over Victoria early this morning.

"Don't forget the myth about people going mad during full moons."

The significance of the moon-madness is difficult to determine—it could mean an upset or a huge write-in vote for the American astronauts.

"Those whom God wishes to destroy, he first makes mad." said the scholar ominously, quoting Euripides. He walked away, muttering to himself.

Outside the Victoria Old Age Pensioners' Hall on Government a sound truck startled tourists with the booming message to "vote as you like but vote."

Inside, deputy returning officers and poll clerks at five polls waited expectantly.

★ ★ ★

At St. Joseph's Hospital there was a "wheelchair" poll for patients and a ward nurse reported a heavy turnout.

Most of the early voters were elderly people or housewives.

Asked why he voted, one man answered in the tone reserved for slow-learning children: "It's a man's responsibility."

Those flimsy cardboard screens are really what the whole thing is about, though.

Once a person gets behind there he hears no election promises, no threats, cajolements, no bandwagon music.

He might vote for a friend, for a party or simply put an X beside the first name he comes to, on impulse.

But once he's behind the cardboard screen he's on his own.

SAANICH URGED TO LEAD THE WAY

4,000 Family Apartments Needed

By ROGER STONEBANKS

A need for 4,000 family-type apartments in Greater Victoria by 1971 will not be met if present construction trends continue unchanged, the Saanich lands and planning committee was informed Tuesday night.

But the 81-page apartment study prepared by the municipal planning department said that Saanich, because of its residential character, can play a key role in satisfying this growing need for family apartments.

The report, submitted Tuesday night to the committee, grew out of a flood of apartment applications earlier this year, but extends to consider many aspects of residential zoning and regulation.

It sketches areas for family and non-family apartments, now and in the future, plus a new concept called planned unit development areas, where the planning unit is not the individual lot but the entire development as a whole.

It also says the 30-year-old zoning bylaw needs early replacement. Regulations and standards for a new bylaw are made, although this is not a draft bylaw.

The report was presented to Saanich lands and planning committee Tuesday night. Chairman Ald. Alan Newberry described it as a "brilliant document." It will be considered in detail next month.

SURPLUS FORESEEN

Copies of the report are available for purchase by the public at $2 each at the municipal hall. The report may also be read at the counter of the planning department without charge.

The report said there are 18,107 apartment units built or under construction in the Victoria area (compared with 33,638 single family and duplex houses) but calculations show that if apartment construction continues at its present rate, there will be a surplus by 1971.

This surplus, however, will be in the non-family type of apartments.

"Saanich, because of its residential character, is well suited for this type of family accommodation and must take the necessary steps to encourage and attract development of this nature," the report said.

190 ACRES NEEDED

"In fact, Saanich could play a leading role by initiating residential development schemes on municipally-owned land. These could set an example of the type of development we would like to see in Saanich."

To meet future needs, and considering Saanich as part of the region, the report says 190 acres of land will be needed for apartments, 120 acres of this for family accommodation.

The report considers the role apartments play in the community, their purpose, how they should fit in, whether they should be concentrated or spread out or something in between.

"In defining this, we're setting a living patttrn for the community," said planner Tom Loney.

'WIDESPREAD MYTH'

The report says Canadian families earning $7,000 to $8,000 a year can barely afford to buy a single-family house.

"Apartments are currently considered to cater to newlyweds, single persons, retired and middle-aged couples with no children," says the report.

"There exists a widespread myth that apartments generally are not suitable for families with children. Indeed, the particular apartment developments that we see around us today are not really suitable for family accommodation.

"However, this must not lead us to conclude that family accommodation cannot be provided in apartments. An alternative form of family housing at densities higher than detached single family homes is a must to alleviate the growing housing shortage, to provide much-needed variety in housing types, and to make more economic use of the land."

HOUSES OUT SAYS BUILDER

A Victoria housebuilder said Tuesday night the era of the single family house is dead.

"We can't all have single-family houses," Chris Pike, president of the Victoria home Builders' Association told Saanich lands and planning committee.

"We must have a mixture. If we don't, taxes will push a lot of us right out of our homes."

He said houses could be built for $16,000 four years ago but today they cost $30,000.

"People who could afford them then can't now," he said "Some people who bought a year or two ago are having to move out. Builders are worrying about an overstock of expensive homes."

GREATER VERSATILITY

He agreed with a recommendation that the committee will make to council that the line of attachment for the two sides of a duplex should be not less than 50 per cent of the common wall and a garage could be considered part of the common wall.

Pike said this will provide for greater versatility and better design of duplexes.

On plans to restrict duplexes, a hot topic for the last few months, he said his association would like the zoning to stay the way it is. This permits duplexes and single-family houses in 87 per cent of the residentially-zoned land in the municipality.

One municipal plan, which if approved has prohibited duplexes in a large part of Saanich, has been dropped and the municipality is being considered in sections.

PUBLIC HEARING

Gordon Head was dealt with Tuesday night, and the committee recommended that an area bounded by Feltham, Gordon Head Road, Haro Strait and Montclair subdivision permit duplexes only with 100-foot frontage and 10,000 square feet lots.

If council accepts the recommendation, there will then be a public hearing.

Other areas to be considered are Cordova Bay, parts of which are restricted to single-family houses only, and Cadboro Bay, which with Ten Mile Point and Queenswood is restricted to single family houses only.

Ald. Edith Gunnihg said it distresses her to hear of duplexes being equated with the plague.

Arthur Mayse . . .

AS A LONGSHORE BOATman who was once convinced for all of a minute that Cadborosaurus had surfaced nearby, I welcome the debut of a new water beastie with a sinister name.

Morag, this lake-dwelling neighbor of the Loch Ness monster, has been dubbed by its sponsors. It's an ugly, humpy, horror. Bites chunks out of oars, the account runs, and may have a taste for human flesh.

★

Personally, I prefer our Caddy, who has no such antisocial tendencies and has been described by those lucky enough to glimpse him as a mild, handsome sea serpent.

But what's happened to this gentle monster, and why is Caddy no longer seen in South Island waters where he once turned up obligingly each tourist season?

To the best of my knowledge, Caddy has not been reported since 1967, when he turned up off Saxe Point with what viewers took to be three juvenile members of his, or possibly her, shy clan.

Since then, no sightings, and I have begun to wonder if Caddy has either succumbed to water pollution or removed to new feeding-grounds.

My sighting? Turned out to be a reef with back-roach not quite awash, and I didn't know whether to be relieved or sorry!

WE ARE HEADING UPIsland toward the end of the week, and on the way we hope to sample a dish with a name that we snatched from a menu board outside a Qualicum area restaurant.

This was, or appeared to be "Shrimp Fissie."

★

Now comes a letter from Mrs. W. H. Christmas of 1326 Richardson Street, who sheds light on a culinary mystery.

"No luck until we reached the outskirts of Qualicum (where the Victoria couple were vacationing) on the way back from a trip to Campbell River. Then there it was, outside the Ben Bow Inn. It was the first time we had seen that side of the sign at the place where we had been eating our meals every day.

★

"At dinner that night, we learned Shrimp Frissee — there's an "r" after the "f" — is made with a particularly succulent variety imported from Brazil. Not being a shrimp enthusiast, I cannot vouch for this.

"By the way," Mrs. Christmas adds. "Shrimp Frissee is modest about its Brazilian beginnings, and appears on the table menu simply as deep-fried shrimp."

I can also report that another scout taste-tested those Brazilian imports. Her verdict: "Very good."

PARKS BRANCH NATURalist Freeman King, who walks more miles in a day than most of us cover in a week, has formed his own set of opinions about the summer travellers who have been jamming Goldstream to capacity.

Many British Columbians, he finds, still resent the dollar-a-night camping charge levied a few years ago over the protests of provincial park users. Some, their stay done, express this resentment by quitting Goldstream without the required pause to settle up.

Loudest grumblers, however, are parties from Ontario. These don't object to paying, says King, but they frequently protest the lack of showers and other amenities which they feel should be provided.

★

American tourists enjoy top rating on the parkman's list. They rarely complain, they are punctilious when it comes to paying the site fee, and they are keenly interested in their outdoor surroundings.

The park itself is bearing up pretty well in spite of intensive use that covers a long season. There's some roadside erosion, King tells me, but unlike Yellowstone and various other much-trodden American parks, Goldstream hasn't yet begun to wear out.

★

From another source, I learned that the park is sometimes a home of last resort for Victoria families who have been unable to find low-rental quarters.

"They stay for the week limit," my informant said. "After that heaven knows where they go."

AND NOW OFF TO VOTE, with kind thoughts for the dear old lady who imparted a confidence this election morning.

"I have to ask for transport to the polling station," said she, "but I never phone the headquarters of the candidate I mean to vote for. I feel I'd be accepting a bribe if I did that!"

Quebec Captures Pairs; B.C. Near Rinks Title

Bill WALKER

". . . Moths that eat up the credit of many idle citizens."

Sounds like the bookies are about to be on the run from the back door of the nearest beer-hall, doesn't it? But it isn't really. It concerns the place of play of the generally-recognized quiet sport of Lawn Bowls, in which the championship of All of Canada was being determined here this week.

The above tirade against bowling was launched in 1579 by Stephen Gosson in his "School of Abuse," and the bitter part came as he drew a ghastly word picture of the suffering, poverty and starvation that had come to wives and children of those who bowled, and lost, in their gambling, thereof.

Yes, Lawn Bowls was suspect in those days and was the subject of much restrictive legislation because of its association with taverns.

King Henry VIII issued an edict in 1511 declaring the game an evil which had ceased to be a sport, and rather was a form of vicious gambling.

This ban was continued by succeeding rulers, although not enforced too seriously as most royalty engaged in the sport, and engaged in the gambling aspect as well.

King James I recommended the game to his son, Charles I, and was a good bowler who often bet on himself, and, like everyone else, often lost, sometimes heavily.

And if you are remiss to admit that perhaps the gamblers did have a hand in things, even in those days, hearken to this:

According to the rules as published under the pen of King Charles II in 1670, the following stands out for all to see:

"Bowlers nor bettors shall do nothing to prejudice or favor a bowl by wind, hat, foot or otherwise and, if done, the cast shall be lost."

However, the game survived, and outlived its evils and pot-house degenerate slurs of the past. The Scots have been given most of the credit for its revival, improving on the rules and the standardization of play.

And there was no evidence, outward at any rate, of matches being played for stakes when competition was under way at the Oak Bay greens this week. All seemed friendly and serene with the theme of "gentlemen at play" the dominant factor.

But that was on the surface.

Rather, and I heard it from an ex-soccer player, if you please, that the game of bowls can turn one inside out, like nothing else in the way of tension in competitive sport.

"I took it up seriously," said Dickie Williams, president of the Canadian Lawn Bowling Council, "when I got tired of the mud and slush of soccer fields. And I can tell you that I never had the feeling playing soccer that I have had in bowling. The tension works on you, bowl by bowl. It's so different from football, it's hard to explain. But it gets you."

Dickie should know whereof he speaks for he was a member of the Canadian soccer team which toured New Zealand in 1927, and won a silver medal at bowling, in doubles, when the British Empire Games were held in Vancouver in 1954.

He will also head the Canadian team to the Commonwealth Games in Edinburgh next year, and that team will be named from the competitors here.

And it would be interesting too, if either Iain Smith of Quebec or John Berry of Dunbar, Vancouver, happens to make the Canada team, because each has a story that should be told.

Smith, a year ago, suffered what has been described as a brain clot. He underwent surgery, was told he would likely never walk again, yet was proudly representing his province in the competitions here this week.

Berry, who sneaked in the back door, so to speak, as he replaced Oak Bay police chief John Green (who suffered a heart attack and is reported to be progressing well), also took the lawn bowling cure to better health.

A victim of tuberculosis several years ago, Berry now is fit and showed the strain that Williams mentioned earlier as he disposed of Manitoba's George Rollwagen earlier in the meet.

These are just a few of a part of the scene which is the Canadian Lawn Bowling Championship.

And it may have been a game of antiquity, shrouded in mystery, tainted with the degenerate brush of the gambler, evil of purpose and a purveyor of poverty, but better now it should be considered a game of consequence and skill.

I'd gamble on that anytime, even if a competitor should happen to be warned for "language" as happened here this week.

Which is yet another rule of 1670, and it says in part simply:

"Keep your temper . . ."

Canadian Meet Ends Today; Winners to Get Games Trip

A Montreal Westmont twosome came through with consistently brilliant bowling Tuesday to clinch the national doubles crown for Quebec.

Despite afternoon rain that dampened grass at the Canadian lawn bowling championships on Oak Bay's Carnarvon Park greens, Harry Elliott and John Henderson displayed poise and finesse as they won themselves a 1970 berth in the British Empire and Commonwealth Games in Edinburgh, Scotland.

The duo was undefeated Monday and won two more games Tuesday morning and afternoon before losing its perfect record in an evening round cliff-hanger that went to an extra end.

After five straight wins, Bob Smith and Jack Morrow of Manitoba spoiled the possibility of a sweep by deadlocking the sixth game and winning 19-18 in the extra end.

Saskatchewan and Ontario were hung up in a second place tie with six points.

Meanwhile, Tom Jarvis skipped his Vancouver Stanley Park rink to the lead with an afternoon win over Ontario's John Wheler, 16-14, and an evening win over Saskatchewan, 22-15.

TIE POSSIBLE

Jarvis needs only one win to clinch the rinks title, but Quebec, Ontario and Nova Scotia were clustered only two points down in the tourney standings.

The Vancouver rink was to meet a Quebec team skipped by Jim Brodie today, and a loss for B.C. could create a three-way tie for first.

In the event of a three-way tie, a draw will be made for a bye, with the other two rinks meeting in an eight-end playoff for the right to meet the idle rink for the title.

BEACOM LEADS

In singles competition, Karl Beacom of Toronto added a pair of wins Tuesday, rolling up his won-lost record to an impressive 4-1.

Iain Smith of Quebec and Hal Clayton of Saskatchewan remained in hot purusit with 3-1 records.

Tuesday's last scheduled singles draw was postponed because of rain and fading light, and was rescheduled for this morning.

B.C representatives in singles and doubles play are virtually eliminated from further contention of any sort.

OUT OF CONTENTION

Vancouver's John Berry finished with a victory Tuesday in singles play, but two earlier defeats had left him out of contention.

Al Maiorki and Jack McMillan of Victoria's Burnside Club started with a win Tuesday, but an afternoon loss and an evening bye put the eventual winners beyond reach.

An awards banquet tonight at Victoria Golf Club winds up the national tournament — it is scheduled for Calgary next year.

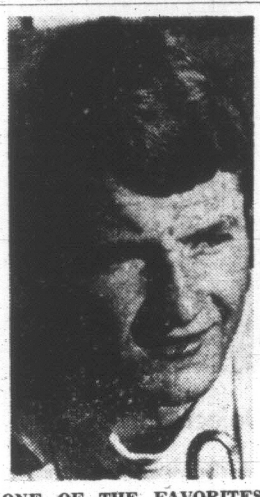
FLYING VIKINGS HEAD FOR OVERSEAS JAUNT

Rated among hardest tacklers on University of Victoria rugby team, this airborne pair of Vikings, Bob Panton (left) and Dave Hutchings, obviously enjoyed this bit of training during workout Tuesday night. While Vikings prepare to leave Friday for six-match tour of British Isles, Irish team from Stranmillis College has arrived in Victoria for rugby visit. (See story below).



ONE OF THE FAVORITES in Canadian junior golf championship that started today at Kelowna is Victoria ace Dave Mick (above), who is among several city players entered in 72-hole tournament. Also highly rated is Vancouver's Doug Roxburgh, twice runner-up for the junior crown.

Rugby Scholars Believe Tours Can Also Be Fun

Rugby players from Stranmillis College in Belfast, Northern Ireland, arrived in town Tuesday afternoon with a refreshingly different attitude toward their athletic activities.

Top-flight touring teams that stop off at Victoria usually go seriously about the business of defeating local teams and then promptly depart for other areas, where they can expect larger crowds and bigger gates.

That's not in the books for the boys from Stranmillis who form the King's Scholars Rugby Football Club.

Somebody over there apparently believes tours should be for pleasure as well as prestige and that touring players should be treated as tourists rather than athletic merchandise.

JUST LIKE TOURISTS

That's why the Scholars will stay in Victoria for 10 days, play three rugby matches, a cricket game, go fishing and golfing, visit several Island tourist attractions and generally behave like tourists.

It's an impressive schedule, and it all adds up to a peach of a trip for 23 students.

But if the Stranmillis Scholars are planning a good time, they also plan to win, and Victoria's Oak Bay Wanderers and James Bay Athletic Association club can expect rough times on the rugby pitch.

King's Scholars finished second in the Northern Ireland league last season, and wound up with a narrow 8-6 loss in the Ulster Cup final.

They shook the travel kinks out of their legs with a rugby workout Tuesday evening and were scheduled to play a cricket match against Victoria Castaways this afternoon.

Scholars will get their first rugby test at Royal Athletic Park Thursday night at 8, when they clash with James Bay's first division side.

PLAY AT DUNCAN

Sunday they tangle with a Cowichan-Nanaimo side at Duncan, and return for a game with Oak Bay Wednesday, Sept. 3.

The tourists will hold a rugby clinic for students and coaches at Victoria High School starting at 12 noon Thursday, Sept. 4. They leave for Vancouver the following morning.

Ticket prices for Thursday's clash with JBAA are $2 for reserved seats and $1.50 for rush seats.

Daryl Sparks, who played last season for Victoria Nixons in the Vancouver Island Juvenile League, has decided to enroll at the University of Victoria on a Molson's scholarship.

Carls Bow to Adanacs; Tackle Rocks Tonight

Vancouver Carlings, who tackle Victoria Shamrocks at Memorial Arena tonight, were the victims at Vancouver Tuesday as Coquitlam Adanacs equalled a western senior lacrosse record.

Adanacs tied the record of 26 victories in one season, set by Vancouver in 1962, as they trimmed the Carls 10-6 in a Western Lacrosse Association battle.

Coquitlam now has a season mark of 26 wins and two defeats for a point total of 52 and an 18-point lead over runner-up New Westminster.

Carlings are in third place and the Shamrocks, who tangle with Carls at 8:30 tonight in their last scheduled home game, are deep in the cellar and out of the playoffs.

HITS 200 MARK

Gord Frederickson of Vancouver counted three goals, the second his 200th in WLA play. Other Vancouver scorers were Bill Rawson, Bill Robinson and Brian Smith.

Kevin Parson, Allen and Doug Wallsmith led Coquitlam with two goals each. Bob Rezansoff, Kerry Gallagher, Keith Scott and league-leading scorer Mike Gates added singles.

Coquitlam goalie Merv Shweitzer played a brilliant game, making 35 saves, and keeping his club in front in the early stages.

Chance to Assess Raimey and Gabler

By The Canadian Press

Winnipeg Blue Bombers could reach dizzying heights tonight.

A victory at home over Saskatchewan Roughriders would move the Bombers into a second place tie with Calgary Stampeders in the Western Football Conference. The Bombers haven't risen above fourth place in the last two seasons.

But it's a formidable task. Saskatchewan is 4-0 while Winnipeg has won just one game in four starts so far.

Other action pits the Eastern Conference's Toronto Argonauts against the Eskimos, who are 1-3, in Edmonton.

The two games will give Canadian Football League fans the chance to make same-night assessments of Dave Raimey and Wally Gabler.

Raimey, Winnipeg's sensational running star, was dealt to Toronto for Gabler, a proven quarterback.

Raimey starred in Toronto's win over British Columbia Lions Saturday, but Gabler has seen less than 15 minutes of action in a Bomber uniform, hardly enough to compare the trade.

Edmonton coach Neil Armstrong says he is having trouble with his defensive ends.

"Our ends have been getting too cute," he said. "They're waiting to read the opposition offence. They have to be charging as soon as the ball is snapped."

NOT YET AT PEAK

Coach Leo Cahill of Toronto answered:

"Strange isn't it. Lose a game and people see problems everywhere. Win a couple and suddenly they say you've got a powerhouse."

Cahill insists that the Argos can't be expected to hit their peak until later in the season.

Juvenile Soccer

The Lower Island Juvenile Soccer Association will hold a semi-annual meeting Sept. 3 at 7:30 p.m. in the Ingraham Hotel.

Part of the agenda will deal with team registrations, and all managers and coaches of minor soccer teams are requested to attend.

Canucks in Russia For Hockey Series

MOSCOW (Reuters) — A 20-member Canadian hockey team, containing amateur and professional players, has arrived in Russia to play a series of games in Leningrad.

It will be the first time professionals have played for a Canadian team in Russia. All Soviet players are technically amateurs.

The Canadian-Soviet series will coincide with an international tournament involving teams from Russia, Poland, East Germany, Finland and Sweden. The Canadians are expected to play at least one game against a non-Soviet team—probably the Poles.

Negotiations have been under way for more than a year to arrange a game between the Soviet national team, the reigning world amateur champions, and a team from the National Hockey League.

The Canadian team will play five games in Leningrad between Aug. 28 and Sept. 3 before leaving for Finland Sept. 4.

The Canadian team includes members of the Canadian national team and nine professional players from the farm clubs of Montreal Canadiens and Toronto Maple Leafs of the NHL.

Natural Poison Killing California Waterfowl

FRESNO, Calif. (AP) — Thousands of wild ducks, geese and other waterfowl are dying in central California of a poison produced by nature.

The killer is waterfowl botulism caused by a breed of bacteria which thrives on rotting vegetation.

State and federal conservationists, aided by volunteer groups, are setting off rockets, exploding dynamite and buzzing lakes with planes and helicopters in an effort to drive birds away from the poisoned waters of the Pacific migratory bird flyway.

Botulism is a disease of the nervous system caused by botulin, a bacteria which develops in spoiled foods eaten by animals, birds, fish and man.

So far this year more than 10,000 ducks, geese and other waterfowl have died. In other years, the situation has been worse. More than 67,000 birds died in 1957, and in 1941 the total was placed at 250,000.

WOLMAN BIDS FOR EAGLES . . . . . KEYES PONDERS B.C. CONTRACT

Jerry Has Scheme . . . Leroy Has Offer

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

"Money isn't everything. It's the only thing," Vince Lombardi, manager-coach of the National Football League's Washington Redskins once said.

Former NFL owner Jerry Wolman and rookie player Leroy Keyes appear to agree with Lombardi's philosophy.

It was learned Tuesday that the financially troubled Wolman has found a new scheme to buy back Philadelphia Eagles, and Keyes, the Eagles' first 1969 college draft choice, is considering a "substantial contract offer" from British Columbia Lions of the Canadian Football League.

Wolman's latest plan was presented to federal bankruptcy referee Joseph O. Kaiser in U.S. District Court at Baltimore Tuesday. It involves a new partner, Washington financier Thomas Shaheen, and a few Wolman-owned taxicab businesses in Philadelphia and Camden, N.J.

Hyman Tatelbaum, Wolman's lawyer, said Wolman hopes to repay $3,000,000 to creditors over a 10-year period with the latest plan. But, he said, the exact method of financing the repayment plan has not been determined.

He explained the $3,000,000 could be raised from revenues of the firms; from a refinancing of the debts using the companies as security, or through a merger of the businesses with a prominent, but unspecified, company that is listed on the American Stock Exchange.

Tatelbaum said the referee's approval of a Wolman-Shaheen venture would place the men in a position to reclaim the Eagles, sold earlier this year for $16,100,000 to Leonard Tose of Norristown, Pa.

Meanwhile, Denny Veitch, B.C. Lions' general manager, said the club has been dealing with Keyes' agent, Artuhur Morse, and a final decision is expected from the Purdue star Thursday.

Terms of the Lions' offer were not disclosed and Veitch said no other financier or parties are involved in the negotiations. Keyes recently broke off dealings with the Eagles when they failed to agree to terms on a three-year contract.

BUTLERS NAME FOREMAN AS NEW COACH

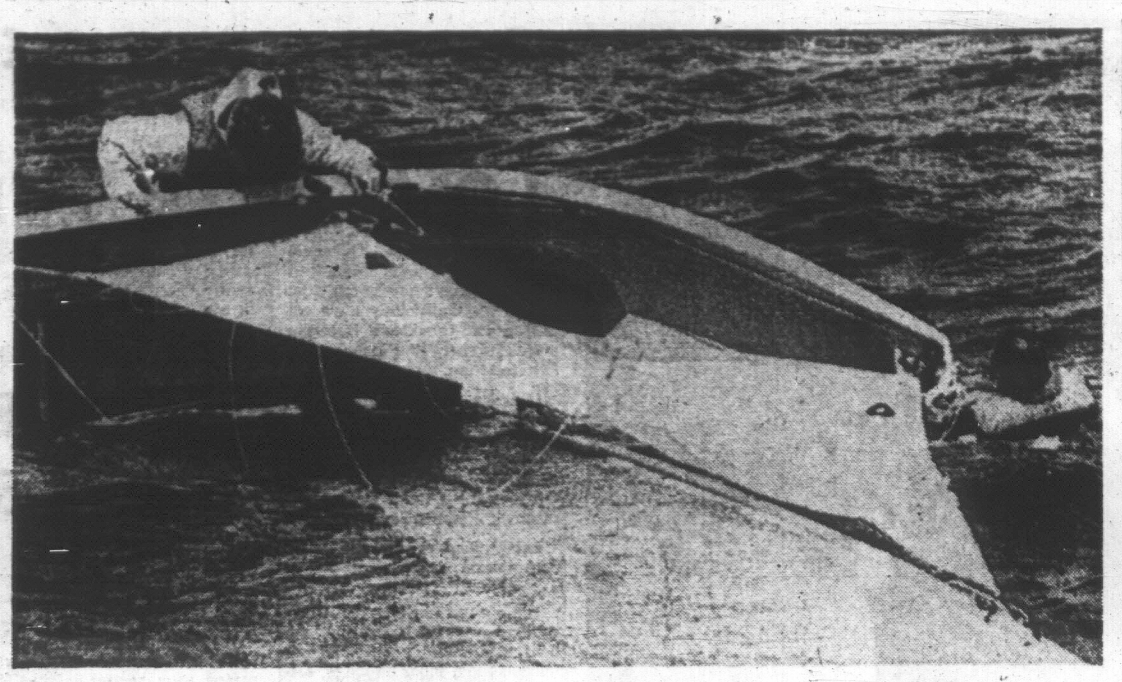
Butler Brothers of the Vancouver Island Hockey League have announced the signing of a new coach for the 1969-70 season.

Terry Foreman, a 24-year-old, 170-lb. winger, who comes to the club with five years experience as a player for the University of Victoria Vikings, will direct the club as a playing-coach.

Foreman was selected to the league all-star team last season.

Top-Seed Forced Out

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP)—Ann Haydon Jones of Britain, the No. 1 seed in the United States open tennis championships that started here today, has withdrawn from the tournament because of a shoulder ailment.



IT WASN'T ALL SMOOTH SAILING

Not all of more than 500 sailors in Canadian Olympic training regatta at Kingston found smooth sailing Tuesday as winds gusted to 30 miles per hour. Among upset victims was this Ontario pair of Chris Joyce and skipper John Glen, who swims around bow of 14-foot dinghy during race won by Kingston skipper Harry Jemmett. Six races are being run in each class during week-long regatta and Victoria's Norm Marcus is currently third in OK dinghy class. (CP Wirephoto.)

BIG ENTRY PREDICTED AT DRAG RACING MEET

Two special events are on the schedule and officials of Van Isle Dragways expect a competitor list of over 150 entries for the regular stock, super-stock, street and competition-eliminator drag racing brackets on Sunday.

The features include Richard Schroeder's fuel-injected 1969 AMX from Vancouver, Wash., and the super-stock performance clinic of Torontonian John Petrie.

Gates open at 9 a.m., time trials start at 10 and eliminations get under way at 1:30 p.m. at the Cobble Hill strip.

U.S. Golfers Flood Lefty-Righty Show

Golfers from Washington and California will stage a big invasion of Victoria Thursday as the second annual Canadian lefty-righty team championship gets under way at Royal Colwood Golf and Country Club.

Twenty-two Washington golfers lead the 46-man flood of Americans, while California is second with 15 entries. Six hail from Oregon and three are from Idaho.

Biggest Canadian contingent from outside B.C. is a four-man group from Alberta, while there are a whopping 59 entries from inside the province.

Missing from the Alberta invasion force will be the pair of Ray Tull and Bob Wylie, who captured the championship last year.

Thursday's 18-hole trip around Colwood will serve as a quilifying round to place contestants into sections, but scores will be added to Friday and Saturday tallies to decide winners in the 54-hole medal-play tourney which continues Friday and Saturday.

Thursday's starting times:

8:00—J. Baird and R. Malcolm; W. Dunaway and H. Thorburn.

RAIN DELAYS FIFTH GAME

Tuesday's rain forced cancellation of the fifth game in the Denford Electric-Lake Cowichan Stuffy McGinnis Softball League final series at Heywood Avenue Park.

The game has been rescheduled for tonight at 6:45 on the Heywood pitch.

Lake Cowichan leads the best-of-seven series 3-1.

Test Rookie Sparkles In England's Triumph

LONDON (CP) — Mike Denness, playing in his first cricket test match, Tuesday helped steer England to victory over New Zealand in the third and final test.

England won by 8 wickets with more than half a day to spare, and won the series by two matches to nil, with one game drawn.

Denness, 28, scored 55 not out in England's second innings. Denness and Phil Sharpe, 45 not out, scored 82 in 100 minutes.

England began the final day needing 106 runs with 9 wickets standing.

Although the New Zealanders bowled with determination, their only success Tuesday was the wicket of opener John Edrich, who scored 22 to bring his runs in the series to 376 for an average of 75.2.

'MAN OF SERIES'

England spin bowler Derek Underwood was voted "man of the series" and won a £200 ($520) award.

In the final test, Underwood performed "an outstanding individual performance," in taking 12 wickets for 101 runs—the first Englishman in six years to take 12 wickets in a test match.

Final score: New Zealand 150 and 229; England 242 and 138 for 2 wickets.

Skidding Cubs May Give Leo His Wish

By The Associated Press

For a while, it looked as if Leo Durocher wasn't going to get his wish, but the way his Chicago Cubs keep throwing away games and New York Mets keep picking them up, Leo might get it after all.

Just last weekend, Durocher was saying he was curious to find out how his players would react to pennant pressure. But the way the Cubs had been winning, it didn't appear as if there would be much pressure to react to.

However, all that has suddenly changed and after the Cubs lost again to Cincinnati Reds 8-7 Tuesday afternoon, and the Mets swept a twi-night doubleheader from San Diego Padres 8-4 and 3-0, the pressure is on.

The results left the Mets only three games behind Chicago in the National League East and only one in the important loss column, quite a drop from the 9-game lead the Cubs had only 14 days ago.

St. Louis Cardinals and Pittsburgh Pirates missed golden opportunities to add still more pressure when the Cardinals split a twi-nighter against Houston Astros, winning 1-0 and then losing 4-2, and the Pirates lost to Atlanta Braves 6-4.

CARDS ARE 7½ BACK

The third-place Cardinals thus picked up only a half game and stand 7½ back, while the Pirates are eight behind.

The West Division needs no added pressure with one game still separating the first four teams after all won.

San Francisco Giants clung to their half-game, three-percentage-point lead over Cincinnati by clubbing Philadelphia Phillies 13-4, and Atlanta remained two points behind the Reds. Los Angeles Dodgers are one game and seven points behind after bouncing Montreal Expos 6-0. Fifth-place Houston is three games back.

For the second day in a row, the Cubs fell far behind and then fell just short with a ninth-inning rally that ended with a relief pitcher coming on to get the last out with the tying run on third base.

It marked the sixth defeat in eight games for the Cubs and their third in succession.

Cincinnati piled up seven runs in the first two innings on a flurry of singles, but the Cubs pecked away at Jim Merritt, 15-5, with homers by Don Young, Glenn Beckert and Ernie Banks and Ken Rudolph's two-run pinch single in the seventh.

MAY SETTLES IT

The Reds scored the winning run in the ninth for an 8-6 lead on Lee May's double, but a walk, Beckert's double and a sacrifice fly drove out Merritt in the bottom of the ninth.

And Durocher, a bit high-strung himself, wasn't even around to see his Cubs react. He was ejected in the second inning over a dispute involving a change of pitchers.

In the American League, Reggie Jackson of Oakland Athletics, major league baseball's leading home run hitter with 45, was presented with an opportunity to tie a game with his specialty Tuesday, but a 26-year-old native Canadian closed the door.

Toronto's John Hiller fired a third strike past Jackson to preserve a 9-6 American League win for Detroit Tigers and gain a doubleheader split with Oakland. The Athletics, who threatened with five runs in the ninth inning and placed two runners on base ahead of Jackson, won the first game 8-6 from 15 base hits.

The defeat dropped Oakland two games behind the AL Western Division leaders, Minnesota Twins who beat Washington Senators 6-4.

Sailors Leading Summer Playoff

Esquimalt Navy goes into the second game of the Esquimalt Summer Hockey League playoff against Arcanum Flyers with a 1-0 lead Sunday.

Playing at the Esquimalt Sports Centre, Navy built up the advantage by squeaking to a 5-4 victory in the first game of the two-game total points series.

Final game is set for Sunday on Sports Centre ice at 2 p.m.

Wheat Nations Bid to Avert Price War

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — Plans are moving ahead here for a high-level meeting of major wheat exporting countries in an attempt to avert a world price war.

Although no date has been set, it was expected pricing officials from Canada, the U.S., Australia and Argentina will agree to an early meeting to find ways to end the price cutting which followed record wheat crops in the top exporting countries.

In Canberra, Australia, Trade Minister John McEwen proposed to Parliament a meeting "almost immediately" to try to prevent what he termed an inadvertent price war.

McEwen said that exporters, having departed from minimum International Grain Arrangement prices, now are "found to be quoting prices which could, perhaps, be suspected of introducing elements of doubtful price competition."

The developments followed an announcement Tuesday by the U.S. of cuts in export prices of wheat shipped to the Far East and Latin America. Minor adjustments were also made in European shipments.

The U.S. cuts followed price cuts by Australia and Canada and, Agriculture Secretary Clifford Hardin said, were made to restore U.S. wheat prices "to reasonably competitive levels in the world market."

The selective U.S. cuts are thought to be interim measures until over-all wheat pricing decisions can be made at a meeting of wheat experts.

McEwen warned Parliament that if departures from minimum IGA pricing continued "then we would be in danger of drifting into a price war."

"I have proposed over the weekend that there should be convened at a very early date, almost immediately, a meeting of technicians, specialists in all the intricacies of wheat marketing, at an appropriate place, to sort this situation out and try to bring order to the international situation in wheat."

Canadian Price Cut

WINNIPEG (CP) — Reductions in export wheat prices, the third in two weeks, were announced today by the Canadian wheat board.

The new prices are effective immediately but, unlike the two previous price chops, apply only to the lower grades at the Lakehead, Churchill, Man., and eastern ports.

No. 3 northern is reduced two cents a bushel with a six-cent reduction for No. 4 northern, feed grain and grade Nos. 4, 5, 6 and 7. Vancouver prices are unchanged.

New prices at the ports involved are No. 1 northern $1.83⅛; No. 2 northern $1.79⅝; No. 3 northern $1.67⅛; No. 4 northern $1.50⅛; No. 5 $1.49⅛; No. 6 $1.42⅛.

A week ago, the reductions were five cents a bushel on all grades at Vancouver and three cents for the top three grades at the Lakehead and Churchill. The lower grades were cut five cents at the latter two points.

TWIN PIE CHAMPS Loreen Avakian (left) and her sister Gareen, both six, took first and second places in the pie-eating contest for five and six-year-olds at the Michigan State Fair Tuesday. Company Offers To Freeze Prices

TORONTO (CP) — The president of Maple Leaf Mills Ltd. said Tuesday some corporation executives unofficially have volunteered to consider a freeze on prices to help the government halt inflation.

Graham MacLachlan said in an interview the offers were made Monday when about 35 business executives met behind closed doors with representatives of the federal prices and incomes commission here.

Labor leaders met with the commission representatives on Tuesday.

The commission was established to fight inflation and held the meetings to sound out business and labor on wage, salary and price restraints.

"I consider the problems so vital to Canada that I volunteered under certain conditions to completely hold the line," said Mr. MacLachlan, adding, "I wasn't alone."

Dr. John Young, head of the commission, asked the executives to make "voluntary commitments" to hold back prices.

But Mr. MacLachlan said a price freeze would be possible only if unions agreed to a cutback in the size of wage increases they have been receiving and if there are no sudden increases in the cost of raw materials.

Mr. MacLachlan said businessmen at the meeting were impressed with the need to halt inflation.

"Indeed they were unanimous," he said. "But they weren't unanimous on how to do it."

One labor leader attending Tuesday's meeting said: "We're hardly in a position to give any kind of assurance to government." We don't have national bargaining units like in the U.S."

The commission will hold a National Conference on Price Stability later this year, if it gets commitments for restraint. If it can't, the problem of inflation will be turned over to fiscal devices like scarce money, high interest rates and high taxes.

PRAIRIE GRAIN YIELDS HIGH

REGINA (CP)—Preliminary reports indicate near-record yields in Saskatchewan for most principal grain, the provincial agriculture department said today.

A report for the week ended Aug. 25 said official production estimates will not be available for about two weeks.

Stocks of wheat remaining on farms at July 31 was estimated at a record high of 245,000,000 bushels due to low delivery quotas, the report said.

In view of the difficult wheat situation Saskatchewan wheat farmers reduced the 1969 wheat acreage by 2,400,000 for conventional varieties. Farmers in the southern and central districts increased their areas of durum wheat, a softer variety, and flax, and those in northern areas increased their acreage of rapeseed.

With prospects for exceptional yields in addition to large stocks of grain still remaining on farms, storage will be one of the pressing problems and suitable improvision will be necessary in most areas, the department said.

Copter Rescues Explorers From Arctic Pack Ice

ANGMASSALIO, Greenland (UPI) — A helicopter from the American icebreaker Westwind today picked up five British explorers trapped by pack ice and forced to fight off polar bears as hungry as themselves.

The five Britons were members of a seven-man party of the Royal Geographic Society from London University. They were taken off the glacier area at the head of the Kangerdlugssuatsiag Inlet on the east coast of Greenland early this morning by the American helicopter. All their equipment was abandoned.

Two members of the expedition left the main party five days ago to get within radio range to call for help. A Danish Catalina plane dropped food to the party last Saturday and the two men reached Angmassalig via the Sermilik Inlet Tuesday night, police said.

The leader of the expedition, Derek Fordham, left the other members at Kulu Uk ariport today and flew out to London via Reykjavik.

Europeans Now Look at Canada As a 'Comer—Land of Future'

CHESTER BASIN, N.S. (CP) — Canada's reputation and image abroad have improved and expanded markedly since the end of the Second World War, says a senior member of this country's foreign service.

Arthur Andrew, most recently ambassador to Sweden where he organized the Canadian-Chinese talks, remembers how little was known about Canada in post-war Europe.

On vacation here between assignments, the 53-year-old Pictou County, N.S., native talked during an interview about some of the responsibilities and attitudes faced by a diplomat.

His first overseas posting, after joining the external affairs department in 1947, was to Bonn, where he discovered no one seemed really to know what Canada was all about.

Giving lectures about Canada's system of government became standard practice during his first years in Germany and Austria.

"This doesn't happen any more. . . . Canadians travelling abroad have done a lot to change the attitudes—we Canadians probably have a better reputation overseas than we realize.

"I think today we're thought of very much as a 'comer'—a land of the future—to the point where you wish sometimes people would acknowledge our present."

He speaks modestly of the efforts of men like himself whose prime task is to develop understanding between the host country and Canada—without losing any personal integrity in the process.

He calls it a role of lubrication, of keeping relationships flexible, of breaking down the cliches.

He rejects any suggestion that ambassadors are image-makers for their countries or that they can become embroiled in the spying business.

"We're not in the intelligence game in any organized way." But, he says, embassies are listening posts.

Political reports compiled in embassies for the Canadian department of external affairs include information about the economic development and political stability of the host country.

Swedish disarmament policies have been a key interest to the Canadian embassy in Stockholm, although "most of my work in Sweden was concerned with third-party problems."

He cannot discuss any details of the contact established in Stockholm between representatives of Communist China and Canada—presumably the first step toward negotiations for Canadian diplomatic recognition of China.

He will say he enjoyed his term as Canadian high commissioner to Cyprus, which involved his taking up residence in Nicosia in 1964 when bullets began to fly between Greek and Turkish Cypriots. He was ambassador to Israel at the time and had to leave Tel Aviv as a post of secondary importance.

Talking carefully about the Cyprus situation, Mr. Andrew says outsiders first coming on the scene can always see an almost immediate solution.

"After I'd been there a week, I knew the answer. After two years, I wasn't so sure."

The great frustration in modern diplomacy, he says, is having to watch trouble approaching, unable to do anything about the collision of irreconcilable objectives.

While in Israel, he says he was aware "an explosion would occur . . . the time factor wasn't obvious then."

A change in government at home means a change in emphasis in foreign affairs "here and there," says Mr. Andrew. He believes the foreign service should be a sensitive instrument that responds to whatever policy nuance the government wants to apply.

DECEMBER START FOR JUMBO JETS

WASHINGTON (WP) — The era of the jumbo jet is at hand.

Pan American World Airways Tuesday announced that it would become the first airline to put the new Boeing 747 into commercial service. Pan Am plans to begin flying the giant jet Dec. 15 on a New York-London-Frankfurt route.

The 747 will sit 362 passengers, more than 100 more than today's biggest "stretch" jets and nearly twice the number of most jets. Fifty-eight people will sit in first class and 304 in economy.

Pan Am will follow its first scheduled service to London with regular flights from New York to Paris, and, in January, from the west coast (Los Angeles and San Francisco) to Hawaii. Tokyo wil be added to the list in early March.

Enthusiasts for the jumbo jets say they will be better in every way than the current generation of jets.

Despite their larger size, the 747s will be able to land on the same runways used by today's jets. The jumbo, say its advocates, should be quieter than current jets, and — with the 362-seat floor design — roomier. At capacity, the jet could carry as many as 490 passengers.

The bigger jets also promise to lower the airline's operating costs on long-haul routes.

Boeing already has orders for 183 of the 747s at a basic cost of $21 million.

Air Canada has purchased two of the jumbos and they will be placed into service sometime next year.

THE CLOSING OUT PRICES ARE FANTASTIC!

ALL SALES FINAL

"Here's the Story"

After many years of continuous production, changing conditions dictate the necessity for closing down our regular upholstery manufacturing.
We will, however, continue to operate our Custom Upholstery Shop where for years highly skilled specialists have designed and manufactured all the fine upholstered pieces that make up our "hand crafted custom series."
We will also continue the operation of our Specialty Re-cover department where customers have been able to enjoy the highest standard of rebuilding and re-upholstery work available anywhere.
Commencing Thursday at 9 a.m. in our Victoria and Nanaimo Showrooms thousands of dollars' worth of finished upholstery goods go on sale at tremendous savings. Many items will be sold below our regular factory cost.
We will then proceed to Contract our requirements to other well-known and reputable factories for our future needs in our six stores.
As has been "Hammond's" policy for over 60 years all guarantees will, of course, be honoured. Employees in our upholstery factory will be absorbed in other sections of our large manufacturing and merchandsing organization where possible.
Now if you're looking for a true bargain, shop tomorrow at our Victoria and Nanaimo showrooms for your new chesterfield, chairs, lounges, minute beds, sectionals, etc. The prices are terrific. Separate selection with each brand. Sale starts Thursday at 9 a.m. First come, first choice!

AS DECADE ENDS

Space Exploration Schedule Continues

By AL BOSITER JR.

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI) — The U.S. space agency plans to end the decade with four unmanned satellite launchings and another manned moon landing expedition.

Up first on the schedule for the final four months of the 1960s is Great Britain's first communications satellite—a military radio relay station tentatively set for launch here Sept. 24.

It probably will be followed in mid-October by the launch of a commercial communications satellite owned by the Comsat Corp. and its 52 partner nations.

On Oct. 22, the national aeronautics and space administration (NASA) plans to fire a new type weather satellite into polar orbit from Vandenberg Air Force Base, Calif. four days later, NASA is scheduled to orbit an experimental electric rocket engine from Vandenberg.

America's final civilian space shot of the decade is scheduled to start Nov. 14 when Apollo 12 astronauts Charles Conrad Jr., Richard F. Gordon and Alan L. Bean set out for the moon.

Conrad and Bean will attempt to land on the ocean of storms, within walking distance of the surveyor 3 television robot that landed there 2½ years ago. They are scheduled to spend almost twice as much time walking on the surface as did Apollo 11's pioneers, and they will attempt to bring back part of the surveyor for study.

Conrad, Gordon and Bean began the final phase of their training in spacecraft simulators here last week. Their 363-foot rocket-spacecraft combination is scheduled to be moved from its assembly building to the launch pad Sept. 8.

The British satellite set for launch in September, called skynet, is designed to provide the united kingdom with reliable long distance defense communications between grund stations, ships and mobile land terminals.

The satellite will be launched by a delta rocket toward a stationary orbit above the western Indian Ocean. From that vantage point, the drum-shaped spacecraft will be able to relay radio messages over all of Europe and Africa and most of Asia.

The satellite is one of two built by the Philco Ford Corp., of Palo Alto, Calif., under a $7.5 million contract. The project is managed for Britain's ministry of defence by the U.S. air force, and NASA will be paid $5 million for launch costs. After three weeks of orbital checkout, skynet will be turned over to the Royal Air Force.

The commercial communications satellite expected to be orbited in October will be placed above the atlantic ocean to reinforce three spacecraft now handling trans-Atlantic communications for the International Telecommunications satellite consortium (Intelsat).

The last launch of an Intelsat 3 series satellite for Comsat failed July 25 when the third stage of its Delta rocket misfired. An eight-man review committee is now investigating the failure to determine what hapened.

The weather satellite set for launch from the west coast Oct. 22 is the prototype of an improved storm watchery designed to replace two of the Tiros spacecraft now operated by the Environmental Science Services administration (ESSA).

It is called Tiros-M and it carries three camera systems to observe the globe's cloud cover twice a day, day and night. It can beam cloud pictures "live" to any receiving stations within range and it can store pictures on tape when it is over isolated areas.

Vandenberg air force base's second civilian launch in October will test new electric thrusters for spacecraft of the future. The experiment is mounted on an Angena upper stage rocket that will soar into orbit equipped with large solar panels to convert energy from the sun into electricity to power the thrusters.

The electric engines produce small amounts of thrust over long periods of time by accelerating electrically charged mercury particles. The experimental project is called SERT 2 for space electric rocket test.

Strike Hits Argentina

BUENOS AIRES (Reuters) — Thousands of workers defied a warning by the military government today and staged a crippling 24-hour country-wide strike.

Many state workers were warned in a government decree that absenteeism could cost them their jobs.

With the country partially paralysed by its third general strike against the administration of President Juan Carlos Ongania this year, trains ran on emergency schedules and bus services also were severely restricted.

Most stores and restaurants closed because workers either stayed at home or found difficulty in getting to work. Factories were the hardest hit.

The strike was called to support wage demands and protest against the arrest of labor leaders under emergency laws clamped on the country June 30.

From Bea Wright's Kitchen

Here's the last long holiday weekend of the summer—Labour Day. Whether your family is planning to go camping, picnicking or taking it easy at home, be sure to make it a relaxing holiday for yourself too.

Woodward's Delicatessen section is a gold mine of menu time savers. Centrally located on the Food Floor, its selection is vast. Easy to prepare and serve. It takes some of the work out of meals. Meat or chicken pies, macaroni and cheese, sausage rolls, pizzas and various types of salads are just some of the numerous types of time savers.

Each item in the Delicatessen section is temperature controlled and delivered fresh so you can be assured of high quality foods —just as you can with all Woodward's products.

Recipe of the Week:
From Bea Wright's Kitchen

Roasts with Olives

Heat oven to 325F. Make about 5 deep gashes criss-cross in a circle as far as the middle at each end of the roast. Open gashes and push 5 olives into each gash. In a small amount of fat brown roast on all sides at medium heat, for about 20 mins. Arrange 1 large sliced onion over top of roast. Stir one tin tomato soup and tin of water and pour over roast. Cover tightly and place in oven, cook 2½ hours.

Remove meat from pan, cut cord, place meat seam down on platter for easier slicing.

Tomato Gravy

Shake ¾ cup cold water and ⅓ cup flour in a covered jar. Stir mixture slowly into 3 cups hot meat broth. Cook stirring constantly until mixture thickens and boils. Boil and stir 1 minute. Makes 3 cups.

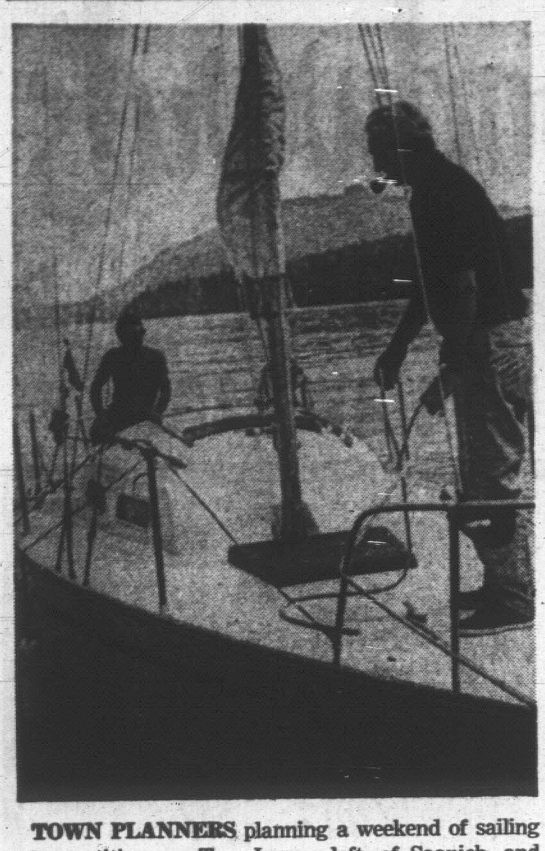
Navy Ships Blamed For Up-Island Havoc



TOWN PLANNERS planning a weekend of sailing competition are Tom Loney, left, of Saanich, and Geoff Greenhalgh, of Victoria, who are gearing for Saturday and Sunday's Maple Bay Regatta. said he intends to win by "threatening from astern Loney, skipper of the 30-foot shark Hammerhead, and with luck and fluke will win". (Ed Gould photo).

The Canadian Forces Base at Esquimalt today is investigating complaints that three destroyer-escorts left a wake of shoreline damage from Mill Bay to Cowichan Bay when they were exercising Sunday.

One Cowichan Bay resident said he was hosed down by a sailor on one of the ships when he went out to ask them to slow down.

One Mill Bay resident said, "The havoc was worse than anything we've known through winter storms.

"I estimate they were steaming at 15 knots at times. The water along the shore was brown with earth and seawalls eaten away by the backwash."

An investigation is being held and naval officials say a report will be issued when the findings are complete.

The three ships are the Yukon, Columbia and Chaudiere, commanded by Cmdr. Peter May, Cmdr. Trevor - Shuckburgh and Lt. Cmdr. Philip Bissell.

'COWBOYS, INDIANS'

One of the hardest-hit areas was a Mill Bay marina operated by Percy Perkin.

Perkin said. "They just played cowboys and Indians out there in the inlet. It's too bad they had to be so silly in confined waters. They went up and down, making sharp turns, and the wash they created was just like a tidal wave."

He said that an eight-foot section was ripped out of one of his big floats, cables were snapped, mooring lines broken and boats smashed.

HANDS RAW

One of the men who helped Perkin try to salvage his gear said the marina operator's hands were raw by the time the ships left the vicinity Sunday evening.

"We were kept busy from 11 a.m. on until they steamed out full belt that evening. They went out at full speed — they couldn't have cared less. Perkin is a veteran and almost blind, it's just too darned bad."

Perkin and owners of boats moored at the marina have sent bills to Rear-Admiral J. A. Charles, commander maritime Pacific.

"We've tried to make very honest estimates of the damage and I feel that the admiral should be reasonably concerned about the whole affair."

B.C. TEL WORKERS TO STAND TRIAL

NANAIMO (CP) — Two 38-year-old men charged with assaulting a British Columbia Telephone Co. supervisor earlier this month pleaded not guilty Tuesday in provincial court here.

William Henry Dyer, of Ladysmith, was remanded to Sept. 16 for trial and David McCree Patterson, of Nanaimo, was remanded to Sept. 4. Both are B.C. Telephone employees.

They were charged Aug. 4 with assaulting James Ross, 49, of Burnaby, who was working in Nanaimo during the recent strike of telephone workers.

Judge Easy on Young Driver Who Lost Parents in Fire

DUNCAN — A Koksilah girl was given a one-month suspended sentence for driving without insurance or a driver's licence after she told Judge George Hallett her parents had been killed in a fire the day before the offence.

Alfreda Marianne Daniels pleaded guilty. She told the court she was driving last Friday because there was no one else to drive.

Miss Daniels, 20, and three teen-age sisters were left orphans after parents Clarence and Clara Daniels were killed in a fire that gutted their home on the Trans-Canada Highway.

Trial Ordered

VANCOUVER (CP) — Edison Burgess Dixon, 52, has been committed for trial on a manslaughter charge in the death of Hoi Lau, 78. The victim died in hospital July 10, a month after he suffered a broken hip in a beating in his apartment.

Parents Protest Travel Aid Curb

DUNCAN — A delegation of parents from Shawnigan Lake area appealed to Cowichan school board Monday night to take a second look before changing present travel assistance for driving children to school.

The complaint was referred to the transportation committee.

C. A. Latter, spokesman for the four parents, complained that a letter had been received by 18 parents stating the board would only continue to pay $1 a day assistance as long as parents drove their own children in their own cars.

A spot check would be carried out to ensure the regulations were being adhered to.

Chairman Bruce Devitt said the check was necessary because there had been charges that some parents were abusing the privilege. Parents were using car pools but applying for the $1 a day anyway.

Latter said the fee barely covered the cost of driving, especially last winter.

Middle-Aged Groover Seeks Help for 'Help'

By ROBIN BURGESS

"Help" needs help.

"Help," a youth-aid organization in Port Alberni, is looking for a house to rent.

"I would prefer a place with land around it," said Hendrik Roelants, chief organizer and director of operations.

"It must be outside the city limits to avoid hassle with neighbors."

Despite the beads and bare feet, Roelants isn't the typical youth leader.

For one thing, he's not a youth, but a 44-year-old biochemistry teacher at Alberni District Senior Secondary School. His hair though shaggy is unmistakably grey.

Confident, articulate, he discussed the origin of the three-month-old aid organization and his plans for developing help into a different kind of Cool-Aid.

"It really started by accident a few months ago," said Roelants.

"There was a B.C. Teen Town Conference in April and a group of us in different professions got mixed up on a panel on drugs. There was a parole officer, a psychologist, a student teacher, me as a biochemist and some others."

The panel members were made aware of "the great need" in Port Alberni for a place where young people and adults can go to for help, shelter and a concerned ear.

At the end of the conference, seven members of the panel, including Roelants and psychologist Art Tinnery, formed Help.

At the moment Help consists of two telephone numbers, Tinney's and Roelants'.

Tinney deals with adults and Roelants with young people.

Runaways, young people who've "freaked-out" on drugs and teen-agers just looking for someone to talk problems over with can and do arrive at the door of Roelants' small cabin outside of town and stay for a night or a few days.

But the space just isn't adequate.

Unlike Victoria's Cool-Aid, which is more of a drop-in centre where young people can get help for a night or at most a few days, Roelants sees Help developing into a more settled co-op.

While he hopes to run the co-op without any rules, everyone will be expected to do his share of the work.

"The ones who do not work would not eat."

KEEP CULTURE JUDGE TELLS NEW CITIZENS

DUNCAN — New citizens give up their political past but do not cast away their intellectual or moral past, Judge Norman Oreck told six new Canadians on Tuesday.

Oreck told them Canada had opened its doors to refugees but still had lots of room "in our hearts and in our territories," for many more. The judge said Canada had never menaced other lands but had been friends with large and small countries.

The new citizens are Mr. and Mrs. Sime Arbanas from Yugoslavia; Mr. and Mrs. Wilhelm Termath from Germany; Kurt Adelborg from Denmark and H. D. Miggitsch from Austria.

Politics First; Marriage Second

By COLMAN McCARTHY

NEW YORK — For many, Bernadette Devlin is Ireland's latest warrior-hero in its endless fight with the British.

She belongs on the glorious list that goes back to the rising of 1916, back to the famine, back to the poetry of Pearse and the blood of MacSwiney, to the social martyrs described by Yeats who "had to face their ends when young."

She mounted the hood of a car on Fifth Avenue in front of the British Overseas Airways Corp. ticket office and let them have it, as a marching Dubliner said "square in the cash register."

"Don't buy anything British," said Miss Devlin. "The Westminster government supports Unionism in Northern Ireland and Unionism helps suppress the Northern Irish poor."

"We know, Bernadette," came a brogue from the crowd. "BOAC — that stands for Bring Over American Cash."

She laughed, and the crowd caught the merriment in her eyes. Returning it, they hoisted high the money buckets, like glasses of Guinness.

After half-an-hour of post-speech questions and seeing the protest against BOAC turning into a pep rally for her, the young woman from Bogside made her way to a loft on Lexington Avenue. There, in the offices of a Catholic trade union, as dim as a boxcar and with crucifixes and sayings of Pope John on the wall, she rested.

Tiny, slightly mournful, not caring about coolness in a town that has made a virtue of it, with little pump in her handshake despite her being an Irish politician, Bernadette Devlin has only one hatred: the arrogance of the British government.

It has consumed her since Oct. 5 last year, "When I began my campaign for parliament. Before that, I was one of 5,000 students at Queen's University in Belfast.

Plans Research Later

"I majored in psychology, because when I'm through with politics—which will be when the British government lets the Irish people run their own lives—when I'm through, I want to be a research psychologist. On mental retardation among children. The retarded are not really as retarded as we conveniently think."

Miss Devlin, whose mother died three years ago and whose father died 10 years before that, has four sisters and one brother. In the tradition, now disappearing, of Irish families who give at least one child to God, her sister is a nun, in the order of the Daughters of Jesus.

Miss Devlin planned to marry next year but the engagement was broken. "I haven't been to a dance since last fall, and have been to the film show only twice. So I have no social life, only social issues. You can't get married on that, even if a young man asks you. People say I left behind the boy I loved, but sometimes I think I've left myself behind."

In the context of Ireland's culture, where the men usually marry late or leave the homeland early, Miss Devlin's turning down marriage for politics is a rare gesture. It suggests that she is serious when she says quietly "I'm not standing at the barricades because I like to protest; I'm there because I like to survive."

Thinking quietly herself for a moment, lost a little, Miss Devlin brought herself back. "I hear the government in Northern Ireland is jumpy at my being over here. They're trying to get parliament to send over two members to present their side. I hope they come, too.

"I've been trying to debate them over there for some months. But now if they come here, I can take them on in Carnegie Hall—and still knock them for a loop."

Maybe she will have her wish. The unionist party has announced that two MPs are on their way to the U.S.

Couple Mark Golden Date

Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Bourne were entertained on the weekend on the occasion of their golden wedding anniversary by their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon L. Harwood, 2451 Evelyn Place.

Mr. and Mrs. Bourne were married August 23, 1919, in St. Saviour's Anglican Church, Victoria, by Rev. Robert Connell.

Salesgirls Study Fashions For Wool-Wise Victorians

Victorians are astute buyers when it comes to wool, said the president of the Wool Bureau of Canada.

And to help store clerks and retailers keep pace with the up-to-date ideas in Victoria, the bureau held a workshop to give those in the stores a "complete assessment of the Canadian fashion market for the fall."

Joy McGillawee of Toronto, recently back from the Paris haute couture showings, is travelling across Canada giving fashion workshops on behalf of the Wool Bureau of Canada, a non-commercial organization representing international wool producers and Canadian wool manufacturers.

She is the only woman president of the 24 country member organizations in the International Wool Secretariat.

With Mrs. McGillawee in Victoria for a two-day visit was vice-president A. B. Anderson. Mrs. McGillawee conducted the women's fashion workshop Monday and Mr. Anderson directed the workshop for men on Tuesday.

"This area (Victoria) is the highest recognition area for the Woolmark," said Mrs. McGillawee, suggesting that the English background of Victorians might be a factor in their knowledge of wools.

The Woolmark symbol is placed on all products of Canadian manufacturers which meet standards set by the Wool Bureau.

Approximately 200 women were invited to attend the Monday evening session in the Empress ballroom, a total Mrs. McGillawee said has risen from the first workshop number of 15 or 20.

The first workshop in Victoria 1½ years ago stressed fashion types and individual silhouettes. This year, silhouettes, accessories and the total look dominated.

"I find Canada has the same fashions right now as Paris does," said Mrs. McGillawee. St. Laurent's collection was mainly double-knit wools with many other designers using wool as their basic fabric.

"Wool is a natural for the fashions coming in now," stated Mrs. McGillawee.

"It clings to the body, it moves with the body."

Adult Groups Play Games With Cardboard Troubles

By PHIL CASEY

WASHINGTON — It had to happen. They've invented a game in which we sit around and party it up in misery and despair.

It's called "sensitivity" and, though the game brochure doesn't say so, it seems to be designed for the man or woman who has everything but enough trouble.

It comes from Boston, and the firm producing it says it is "an adult group game not to be played by persons under 17."

The inventors of the game, which they claim is "akin to therapy grouping and sensitivity training," are Jonah Kalb, a Boston advertising man, and Dr. David Viscott, a Boston psychiatrist. The game seems, however, closer to psychodrama than to sensitivity training.

In this game, a bunch of people sit around and pretend to be other people with other troubles. The company provides the characters and the troubles in cardboard folders.

And what troubles. Every character seems to have come straight from TV, or possibly life.

LIFE IS A MESS

Each player has a folder with information on some character whose life is a mess, and each player, in turn, pretends to be the character, explaining it and answering questions from other players.

And what characters. One guy is in hock for $43 for books to overcome his wife's frigidity and to help him beat the legal fees on their separation agreement. His dentist says his son's teeth need $2,500 dollars worth of work, his wife's lawyers are threatening him and his girl friend cancels a dinner date.

Besides all that, his wife says she didn't mind his running around with other women, but she's sore about his bum investments. His daughter tells him that mommy let his tropical fish die and the kid had to clean out the bowl.

And there's another man, a contractor. His son has died, a school building he built has collapsed and he is being sued, he can't get steel supplies because he's short of money, the north wall of a supermarket he built is cracking, he's installing inadequate floor supports in another building, and his wife's last monthly bill for her psychiatric sessions was $420.

Moreover, his daughter goes to Antioch and she's going to picket in a civil rights demonstration in support of black employment, and one of the companies she's picketing is his.

There's a salesman in hock for $14,480 for perfume, coats and shoes and a Jaguar for his girl friend; his son needs $250 to get home from school for the holidays, and his wife says if he brings any more business prospects home for dinner, she'll feed them tuna fish.

When this first phase of the game is over, there's something equally jolly coming up. It's called Crisis!

Each player gets a crisis card and starts answering questions about his crisis.

There are some great crises:

"You have just found out that you (or your lover) is pregnant."

"You awoke this morning in a strange motel room, and sleeping beside you was a partner that you swear you have never seen before."

Recipes Bypass Troublesome Foods

By PENNY SAVER

Mathilda looked up from the letter she was reading.

"Penny, have you ever come across recipes for people who are allergic to things?"

"No, but I know who I could ask about finding some. Why?"

"Remember Angele—the baby who is allergic to synthetics? Well, they just discovered that her older brother is allergic to certain foods. It must run in the family."

"What's he allergic to?"

"They don't have a complete list yet. The doctor is still running tests.

"They know wheat flour is one offender, though, and they've had to take cake, bread and cookies out of the poor kid's diet. He loves them all, too—keeps sneaking out and begging cookies from the neighbors.

"How does one tell a four-year-old not to eat the foods he loves?"

One method is substitution, so Mathilda and I went in search of recipes that might bypass the offensive foods. We were in luck; the place I had in mind provided us with a book full of recipes for people with common food allergies.

Naturally, this book won't prove a complete solution for all people with allergies. This is a field in which it is very true that one man's meat can be another man's poison.

However, some allergies are more prevalent than others and the recipes will help many.

The book itself is called Allergy Baking and is written by Hanna Kroeger. The thin paper volume costs $1.25.

The first section deals with wheat-free recipes for cakes, cookies, pancakes and breads. There is a recipe for an egg replacment next and I gather this could be substituted (with varied success) into other recipes if egg is the only offender.

All About Freezing

Next is a milk substitute, then a recipe for mayonnaise with neither milk nor egg.

I could scarcely believe the next section for it contained recipes for cookies and cakes that do not use egg, wheat or milk.

The last section deals with yeast-free baking.

We bought a copy and sent it off to Angele's mother. I do hope she can use some of the recipes!

I also found an interesting book about Home Freezing by a Dr. Bernard Jensen. This $1 volume seems, from what I've seen so far, to cover the subject of freezing with unusual thoroughness.

It begins with a history of freezing, then launches right into instructions, both general and specific.

Specific instructions tell how to feeeze soups, casseroles, sandwiches, bread, pies and cookies as well as fruits and vegetables. Often, instructions for freezing both cooked and uncooked items were included along with a recommendation for one or the other.

After the instructions were recipes for things that could be frozen and many looked very interesting indeed.

Please call 382-3131 between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. if you would like to know where we found these books.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Doctor Knows Best

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am soon to become the proud mother of an adopted infant, and here is my problem: I want more than anything in the world to breast feed this child. I have heard that there are hormone shots which will manufacture milk in women whether they are pregnant or not. My hairdresser says she knows for a fact that many of the women who belong to the La Leche society do this to keep themselves in milk all the time.

When I told my doctor about my great desire to nurse my adopted baby he said I should forget it, and he would not give me any hormone shots for this purpose. He also tried to convince me that bottle babies are just as healthy as breast-fed babies, which shows you how much HE knows.

Abby, I still have my heart set on nursing my adopted baby. Can you put me in touch with a doctor in the Cleveland area who will give me those hormone shots? — Wants to Nurse Baby.

DEAR WANTS: Don't rely on medical advice from your hairdresser. She is all wet. I advise you to listen to your own doctor, and don't fool around with hormone shots or you're apt to wind up with no milk and a mustache.

DEAR ABBY: Before Bob and I were married (six months ago) he went through his wallet and made quite a ceremony of throwing all the girls' telephone numbers away. He did this voluntarily.

This is the second marriage for both of us, although we're both in our middle twenties. I'll be honest with you, Abby, I snooped through his wallet about a month ago to see if he had any new numbers, and I found three! I was hurt but didn't say anything.

Last night I went snooping again and I found five more numbers, all written in his own handwriting.

I am so hurt. I was under the impression that he was satisfied with me. I hate to believe that he has strayed so soon after our marriage. He's a good man, and he has been wonderful to me and my children. He has to go out of town on business about twice a month on overnight trips, and this is what worries me.

What should I do? If I bring it up it might drive a wedge between us. I trusted my first husband and he broke my heart.

This morning Bob left early, and when I got up I found a note on his pillow which read, "I love you, Baby." —Hurt.

DEAR HURT: Judge Bob by the way he treats you, and quit snooping! Maybe he just likes to collect telephone numbers.

DEAR ABBY: I just received an invitation to a bridal shower. It is being given by the cousins of the groom who happens to be a very nice fellow and a good friend of mine.

The prospective bride is still married to another man and she will not be officially divorced until after the date of the bridal shower.

As I understand it, the bride's divorce will be final on Sept. 1, and her wedding will take place on Sept. 2. All this split-second timing has really got me wondering. How should I treat an invitation of this kind? — WONDERING.

DEAR WONDERING: Since the groom is a very nice fellow and a good friend of yours, go to the shower and don't split hairs over the split-second timing.

CONFIDENTIAL TO HONEY: No woman has to be rented out like a floor polisher unless she wants to be. There are laws, you know.

KNIGHTS DISCUSS WOMEN

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (CP-AP)—A Knights of Columbus convention here recently was asked to consider admitting women to membership.

In his annual report to the 87th Supreme Council convention, Supreme Knight John W. McDevitt proposed that a committee study "a new form of qualified membership for wives, daughters, mothers and sisters of our Knights."

He called for greater K. of C. involvement in community affairs and problems and greater emphasis on family life.

Including women "would bring new zest and vitality to the councils, new fulfilment and satisfaction to our members and their families, and new strength, purpose and achievement to the order," he said.

The proposal for a study committee was expected to be put before the 367 delegates to the 1,200,000-member organization during three days of closed sessions.

Early Aging Traced to Milk

VANCOUVER (CP)— Dr. Peter Hahn, University of British Columbia medical researcher, was recently awarded a $67,000 two-year grant to continue studies linking the feeding habits of babies to early aging and death in adults.

Dr. Hahn, who joined UBC last year after fleeing Czechoslovakia, has just completed a study showing that early weaning from natural breast feeding, which provides abundant fat content, to the low fat content of artificial milk leads to numerous defects in adult life.

His recently completed research project, based on the study of rats, showed that artificial milk feeding led to greater inability to control the concentration of cholesterol in the bloodstream.

This could lead to hardening of the arteries in middle age, Dr. Hahn said.

Grand Gowns Give Way to Trends

By FLORENCE DE SANTIS

A curious thing has happened to evening dresses. They've been showing a tendency to disappear. The grand gowns once made by many fashion houses who specialized in evening clothes have been giving way to new trends.

The house of Cameo, however, is enjoying more success than every, with a collection which reflects the changing evening scene. Things get off to a lively start with a coral satin culotte jumpsuit, bishop-sleeved and belted in jewelling. Then came a black velvet with a pleated cummerbund midriff, a brown velvet caftan dress with a jewelled hem and a black crepe with a double-tier fringed skirt and a fringed stole.

Gold bullion crochet skims over the figure in a simple dress ideal for travel. Black chiffon is rope belted in glitter, while any teen would love the pale blue paisley skimmer with a bow at the slit neck. Brocade takes on a casual look when done in a flip little dress with a side-gathered skirt, or as a dress over pants.

Cameo's long dresses reflect similar variety. To refresh the skimmer, they're doing gored silhouettes, particularly a purple crepe with jewelled sleeves and an emerald satin with portrait neckline and gored back. The modern shirt-and-skirt look is done in brown velvet and cream satin with a wide, fringed sash. The dirndl skirt is interpreted in lime and silver brocade, with a little jacket.

Two Ladies Mothered A New Island Breed

By ELIZABETH FORBES

When Dr. Marie Cameron was in Victoria recently she told me a story of two Canadian heifers shipped to Costa Rica some years ago. Today, they have hundreds of great-great-great-great grandchildren.

Forbes

They didn't go to the Central American republic by choice. Rather, it was in the nature of forced emigration.

However, the heifers easily became acclimatized and although faced with a linguage problem soon learned that their main reason for being there was to produce a better strain of Costa Rican dairy stock.

It all started when Don Lynworth, an agricultural specialist with Latin America Mission in Costa Rica, discovered that native herds were produced mainly for beef and that very few animals gave good milk.

He sent an SOS to his brother in Canada, who immediately shipped him, by air, a Holstein heifer.

With proper ceremony she was named Josephine and given comfortable quarters on the mission's 200-acre farm near San Jose.

Josephine proved to be very prolific. Helped by modern methods of artificial enseminination she produced an assembly line of strong, healthy calves.

In the course of time Lynworth's brother shipped him a second heifer to keep Josephine company.

Together the two ladies mothered a new strain of Costa Rican cattle. Today, their descendants are the prized possessions of nearly every peon, even in the remotest parts of the country.

A splendid herd of Holsteins is also maintained at the mission farm. The milk goes to Operation Outlook, a project which includes an orphanage and a school on the acreage. Any surplus is sold in San Jose and the money used to help run this project.

The farm, one of many developments sponsored by the mission since it was established in the country, in 1923, grows coffee, sugar cane for cattle feed and bananas. The last mainly for shade around the coffee plants.

Children from pre-school to 16 years, left without parents or who have been abandoned, live in the orphanage and go to the school. They assist on the farm "when they can."

In this way they learn much that will help them when they start to care for themselves.

If they eventually settle on land somewhere in the country it's an even bet that a descendant of one of the Canadian heifers goes with them.

★ ★ ★

How did Marie Cameron, Winnipeg-born into a family of brothers and cousins who become medical doctors like-herself, chose the Latin America Mission for more than 40 years of her professional life?

The idea goes back to when she was six years old. "Even then I wanted to be a missionary," she remembers. "I really don't know why."

While she was growing up, going to school and working for her degree at Manitoba University, the wish was still there but it remained dormant.

Until the head of the Latin America Mission, which is supported by a number of Protestant churches, came to the Manitoba capital to talk of building a new hospital in San Jose.

He also nannounced that the mission needed a medical doctor.

"I could hardly wait until he was through talking," this outstanding woman says. "I was so afraid someone would get there before me."

She volunteered, was accepted and three weeks later had closed her five-year practice in Winnipeg and was on the high seas bound for Costa Rica.

There she immediately had to qualify for a licence, then learn to speak Spanish, a language in which she thinks and speaks today almost with more ease than in English.

Over they years the mission hospital has brought new techniques and equipment to the republic. It has given nurses' training to girls sent to it by Protestant churches in all the Central American Republics.

It has maintained clinics 12 hours a day. Taken medical help to the most inaccessible parts of the country. Sponsored better public health services.

In all these fields Marie Cameron has played an active part.

Officially she has now retired. But after a few more weeks in Canada she is going back to San Jose.

She says there is still much to do down there especially to eradicate intestinal parasites and malaria. And she intends to continue to help as long as she is able.

Pope Paul Invited To Expo 70

TOKYO (Reuters) — Pope Paul has been officially invited to visit Japan next year, the foreign ministry said today.

A ministry spokesman said if he came the Pope would be able to join in commemoration of the 25th anniversary of the destruction of Hiroshima by the atomic bomb.

The statement was issued after the Vatican reported that Pope Paul would like to go to Japan for the anniversary but was waiting an official invitation.

The foreign ministry said the Pope also would be able to visit the 1970 world exposition in Osaka, western Japan, from March to September next year.

An invitation to the exposition was made to the Pope through the Japanese embassy in Rome May 2, the spokesman said.

The Pope also was invited to Hiroshima for the atomic bombing anniversary by the city's mayor.

CANADIAN BIRTH-RATE INCREASES

OTTAWA (CP) — There were 34,751 births registered in provincial offices during July, compared with 30,453 in June and 20, 661 in July last year, the Dominion Bureau of Statisitcs reported today.

This brought the cumulative total for this year to 217,923, an increase of 3.4 per cent over the seven months figure for 1968.

The bureau reported 22,256 marriages in July, increased from 18,536 in July last year, bringing the cumulative total for the year up 7.6 per cent to 88,410 from 82,162 in the same period last year.

Parents Wrong on Bike Rules

Several near-accidents have occurred recently with children on bicycles because parents have passed on poorly understood traffic rules, a Saanich police spokesman said Tuesday.

"We have had complaints of children riding on the left side of the road, facing traffic, and near-accidents have resulted from it," he said.

Investigation revealed many parents were telling their children specifically to ride this way, thinking it was the right way.

Traffic rules say bicycles must be ridden exactly like cars—on the right hand side of the road, travelling with the traffic, and as close to the curb as possible.

"The same rules apply to the bicycle rider and the car driver," the spokesman said.

In busy intersections, bikes should probably be walked across in the crosswalk.

The traffic rules make a difference between large bikes and small ones, he said.

A bicycle, with a wheel diameter of 20 inches or more must obey rules for car traffic, but bikes smaller than that are not included and can be ridden on the sidewalk.

Some schools discourage youngsters up to Grade 4 from riding bikes to school, the officer said, but since many children would do it anyway, parents should know the rules.

Arab Summit Meet Endorsed By Ministers

By JESSE W. LEWIS, Jr.
The Washington Post

CAIRO (WP) — Arab League foreign ministers Tuesday night endorsed a summit conference of Moslem countries but did not make a decision on whether to hold an Arab summit meeting.

The question of an Arab summit will be considered after a meeting of the Arab Joint Defence Council, which the foreign ministers set for the first week of November.

The ministers, who ended a two-day emergency meeting here called by the Arab League after the fire in Jerusalem's Al Aksah Mosque, commissioned Saudi Arabia and Morocco to prepare for an islamic summit.

The idea of an Islamic summit was proposed by Saudi Arabia. It would include the Arab countries as well as other African and Asian nations who have large Moslem populations.

However, such a meeting would only deal with the Moslem shrines in the Old City of Jerusalem which is occupied by Israel, and not the wider issues of the Arab-Israeli conflict.

An Arab summit was strongly endorsed by Jordan and Egypt. Both countries have large portions of the territory occupied by Israel and their troops are involved in daily fighting with Israeli forces.

PLO Delegation

The forgien ministers of Jordan, Lebanon, Syria, Libya, Sudan, Egypt, Iraq, Kuwait, Yemen and Saudi Arabia attended the meeting. Tunisia was represented by Tayes Slim, a minister of state and personal envoy of President Habib Bourguiba. Algeria was represented by Minister of Education Ahmad Tayeb Ibrahimi. And Yemen and Morocco were represented by their envoys to Cairo.

The Palestine Liberation Front (LO) had a three-man delegation to the meeting led by Khaled El Hassan.

In their final communique, the ministers said "it is evident to the council that aggressive Israel has submitted clear-cut proof of her plans against the Moslem and Christian shrines as well as Arab existence in the occupied territories maintained by the force of arms."

In calling for the meeting of the Arab Joint Defence Council, the ministers said it was was to discuss the necessary plans for mobilizing all Arab forces against Israel as well as consolidating the Palestinean revolution.

Arabs Bitter

The Arab Joint Defence Council consists of the defence and foreign ministers of the 14 Arab league members and the chiefs of staff of their armed forces.

The Arab League Council is the permanent main body of the league and meets twice a year in March and September.

The meeting was called in response to an urgent appeal by Jordan because of the fire in Al Aksah Mosque, the third holiest shrine of Moslems. Following the fire there was wide-spread bitterness and outrage in Arab countries, all of which except Lebanon have Moslem majorities.

Several Arab leaders called for a "jihad," as Islamic holy war, to restore the former Jordan section of Jerusalem to Arab conttol.

However, much of that outrage and bitterness was absent from the communique of the ministers.

The communique called for joint Arab action at the United Nations General Assembly session next month and stressed the necessity of providing all possible material and military aid to the Arab commandos.

Several observers felt a sense of keen disappointment because the meeting did not produce a clear call for an Arab summit conference. The last summit was held in Khartoum in September of 1967, following the Arab defeat in the June, 1967, war.

NASSER
. . . new Saladin?

ISRAEL GIVES MOSQUE FIRE MEMORANDUM

PARIS (Reuters)—Israel has presented a memorandum on the burning of the Al Aksah Mosque in Jerusalem to governments throughout the world, the Israeli embassy said here.

It outlined developments before and after the fire at the mosque and did not call for any action from other powers, he added.

HOLY WAR CRIES GROW

Islam's Religious Indignation Fired

Once again, as it has so many times in the centuries of Islam, the cry of jihad—holy war—echoes shrilly in the Arab East.

The flames which last week scarred the ancient Al Aksah Mosque in Jerusalem have fired Islam's religious indignation. There is an impression abroad that a new sort of situation, a dangerous one, is building up.

Is another all-out war imminent?

In a sense the 1967 "lightning" war never ended. It has been going on in various forms such as guerrilla warfare, psychological, propaganda and political conflict. There have been two years of raids, hit-and-run attacks, reprisals.

●

There are some yeasty ingredients present in the current situation suggesting that it could pass beyond the control of the leaders.

The Al Aksah fire provides such elements as the fedayeen, who are the guerrilla fighters of "liberation" organizations, with a rallying cry for defence of the Islamic faith.

No matter who or what started the blaze at the site of one of the most holy monuments to Mohammed, it can be blown up into yet another cause for the Arabs.

What Moslems choose to consider the defilement of a sacred shrine can evoke ancient Arab dreams of glory and power and the heroic figure of Saladin, the 12th-century conqueror who drove the Christian unbelievers out of holy Jerusalem and restored the city of Islam.

●

The nearest thing the Arabs now have to Saladin is President Nasser of the United Arab Republic. When crowds at the site of the fire chanted "Nasser! Nass-er!" many may have been yearning for a new hero who once again would drive the unbeliever out of Jerusalem.

●

Nasser, who came within an ace of being toppled from his lofty perch after the June, 1967, debacle of Egyptian arms, has been talking like a new Saladin but an eminently cautious one.

Jihad is defined as a duty in the Islamic faith. But it sounds more ferocious than it really is. The philosophy is elastic, permitting wide latitude in interpretation.

●

Basically the Koran, the Moslem bible, stresses peace, and Jihan as bloodletting in the name of religion is a last resort. Jihad, indeed, can be performed simply by talking or thinking about it.

While the situation could get out of control, a number of things stand in the way of unified Arab effort against Israel.

●

For one thing, Arab disunity is chronic. There is only one real unifying factor, and that is the existence of Israel. Otherwise, the area's leadership is laced heavily with mistrust and suspicion.

Russia spent $2,000,000,000 since 1967 re-equipping and retraining Arab forces. Having seen a similar amount of hardware go up in smoke two years ago, Moscow is likely to be more careful this time with its advice.

Nasser has been warning Arabs that there is a long road ahead toward "liberation." Perhaps his Soviet friends are advising him that the road is better long than short. Moscow has plenty to keep it absorbed elsewhere, including its China frontier, and is unlikely to relish a big-power confrontation in the Middle East at this time.

If the new Saladin in Cairo begins sounding too tough, Moscow has the authority, if it chooses, to restrain him.

Millions Lost On Moonshine

MONTREAL (CP) — An estimated one in 10 Quebecers—about 600,000—drink illicit alcohol in the province police call Canada's moonshine capital.

Despite an RCMP crackdown during the last year, a black market in booze supplied by stills in barns, kitchens and basements costs the federal and Quebec governments millions of dollars in lost revenues and reaps high profits for gangs of criminals.

Exact losses are hard to calculate but Quebec Liquor Board figures show a 40-ounce bottle of alcohol worth $1 actually costs QLB customers $7.15 when federal and provincial sales taxes, federal excise duty and QLB profits are added.

These revenues are siphoned off by the moonshine network.

Last year police raided 17 commercial and 19 domestic stills and arrested 172 persons.

If those stills hadn't been closed, 4,000 gallons of alcohol a day could have gurgled into the Quebec market and the two governments would have lost $75,000,000 in taxes and duties, police say.

This year RCMP agents have arrested 110 persons and shut 12 commercial and six domestic stills.

Inside the stills, often in the picturesque barns beside brooks which carry off waste, racketeers are manufacturing alcohol which police say can kill and blind people.

GIVE EXTRA KICK

"No drinking man is going to pay $5 for a quart with only half the kick of legitimate liquor costing around $8," says an RCMP officer.

"So what the bootlegger does after watering it down two or three times is throw in a handful of caustic soda or lace it with javel water."

Even the original product is pretty lethal.

"The oil and ether extracted from some of their rotgut has actually burned the varnish off furniture," one policeman says. Poisonous area salts and sulphuric acid are also often sloshed into the mash to speed fermentation.

And production facilities are so filthy that police say they've even found rats clogging the machinery.

More than half the illegal supply goes to urban areas to be consumed, often unknowingly, by patrons of city clubs and bars, RCMP officers say. But thousands of rural Quebecers have their hooch delivered regularly at home like milk.

The alcohol operator finds a suitable farm and offers the owner a $500 down payment and glowing promises of high weekly rent plus a percentage on each gallon.

But as the farmer becomes more involved as an accessory to the crime, rent payments dwindle and the bonus disappears.

More than $50,000 may be invested in boilers, fuel oil, condensers, pumps, pipes, hoses, vats and hundreds of pounds of sugar, molasses, yeast and other ingredients for making strong white alcohol.

WATER IT DOWN

The manufacturer sells the rotgut for between $9 and $13 a gallon, taking a $5-a-gallon profit on a production of up to 350 gallons a day.

Distributors water the stuff down and resell to retailers for about $15 a gallon, police say, and consumers eventually pay up to $27 a gallon for watered-down liquor.

"This is organized crime," says an RCMP spokesman.

Fines for a first offence range from $100 to $2,000 or jail for between three and 12 months or both. Subsequent offences increase the minimum fine to $500 plus jail for between six and 12 months.

The operators stay in the background, pay the fines and court costs and deposit $1,000 in the bank for any helper who keeps quiet while in jail.

But police say the gangs are more afraid of rivals than the law.

"They know we treat them gently and legally," says one officer. "Other gangs are likely to start a fight."

WATERFRONT FIRE DAMAGE $1,000,000

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Fire destroyed a warehouse and dock on the Portland waterfront Tuesday, with damage estimated at more than $1,000,000.

Four hundred firemen manning 31 pieces of equipment, including several fireboats, battled the blaze more than four hours as flames shot more than 100 feet in the air.

Destroyed were a warehouse and dock owned by the Union Pacific Railroad and leased to Pope and Talbot, Inc., formerly known as McCormick Dock No. 2.

'Adventurer in Human Relations'

THOMPSON, Man. (CP) — After spending 15 of his 39 years in Canada's North, a scholarly Italian priest has found a home in northern Manitoba.

Rev. Virgil Bonatti says he is 100 per cent satisfied: "I'm not giving up a thing."

But one wonders at the modest Roman Catholic priest's remarks when what he has left behind in Italy is considered.

His father was Italy's swimming and diving champion for five years. One of his relatives was among the earliest pilots to fly the Atlantic. Still another member of his family, Walter Bonatti, is world-renowned for his mountaineering exploits on Mont Blanc, Laverdo and in the Himalayas. Several Italian peaks bear his name.

Yet another Bonatti, Vittorio, has won fame with an artist's brush. His works hang in museums in Rome, Paris and other European cities. The reticent priest admits that a portrait of himself is in one of these museums.

"We're a family of adventurers. I'm one of them, but not the kind that gets written about in newspapers."

Most of Father Bonatti's years in Cnaada have been spent in Indian communities and today he serves the people of Gillam, Thicket Portage and Pikwitonei. This gives him responsibility for the needs of two older Manitoba communities and a thriving new one.

The future of the Indian communities lies in what the Indians themselves decide to do, and talk of Red Power signifies a rising desire of Indians to be responsible for their own future, he says. This he respects, but feels that the Indians must face their need to develop great leadership to master the job that faces them.

And of the job facing him, he simply says: "My calling is to be an adventurer in human relations."

You and your daughter

by Anne Gilbert

The Director of Education at Johnson & Johnson talks to mothers about MODESS napkins. There are three different shapes: tapered, deep-tapered, and regular. Which is best for your daughter?

The Modess napkin gives a smooth, neat fit. It's so reliable it's sometimes called the "safety napkin." (Pants by Panman.)

Modess napkins are tapered, deep-tapered, and regular. You can choose the one that's right for you and the one that's right for your daughter.

TODAY she's happy. Tomorrow she'll be miserable. Today she behaves like 20. Tomorrow she'll behave like 10.

What's wrong? Nothing. She's growing up. Remember? It isn't the easiest thing in the world.

From girl to woman. It doesn't happen overnight. It takes a lot of laughter, a lot of tears, and a lot of self-doubt on your part as well as hers.

By the time she gets her first period she's generally accepted the idea of menstruation. In fact, she's proud of herself for having grown up that much. But the day she puts a belt and napkin on for the first time she starts to wonder.

Will it really protect me?
Can it slip?
Does it show?
Will anyone know?

She's shy. And her biggest fear during her period is that someone will find out. It's a fear she doesn't need to live with. These days sanitary napkins come in different shapes and sizes, and you can find the one that fits her best.

Proper fit means real security

A napkin that fits can't slip. And if it can't slip, it won't chafe or show.

A napkin that fits is protection against accidents. It won't curl along the edges so that her lingerie is spotted.

The napkin that fits her may not be the same one that fits you.

It's shape that really counts

Fit is determined by the shape of the napkin. That's why there are three different shaped Modess napkins: two tapered and one regular.

A tapered napkin is shaped: wide in front and narrow in back. It's designed to follow body contours, and fit snugly.

A regular-shaped napkin is rectangular, but slightly moulded at both ends. This is the original napkin, and many women find it provides the best fit.

While the right shape is essential for proper fit, there are other features that make some napkins more protective than others.

Moisture-proof protection

Every Modess napkin has a thin, tough, film of moisture-proof polyethylene extending the full length and width of the napkin.

In the tapered napkins this film, or shield, lies flat between layers of absorbent fluff filling. In the regular-shaped napkin it's actually bonded to the outside.

Modess napkins protect with a moisture-proof polyethylene shield. (Print dress by Unicorn Boutiques.)

This shield is absolutely moisture-proof. The menstrual flow can never spot through a Modess napkin.

Fast absorbency prevents false alarms

A napkin that feels ready for a change long before it is, can cause a lot of unnecessary worry.

Fast absorption prevents false alarms, because it draws the flow away from the napkin surface.

Modess napkins are wrapped in a unique, absorptive cover filled with tiny perforations. These perforations actually speed up absorbency by drawing the menstrual flow into the centre of the napkin. The centre stays soft, comfortable, and relatively dry.

Modess napkins don't feel ready to change until they are ready to change.

Manufactured by the baby powder people

Modess napkins are made by Johnson & Johnson—the same company you've been buying from for years. Because we specialize in hospital and baby care products, hygienic conditions are the rule throughout our plants. It's nice to know that the same kind of care is taken in the production of something as personal as a sanitary napkin.

Helping her choose the right napkin

How can you be sure she's using the right napkin? How can you tell which of the three Modess napkins will fit her best? Which shield will protect her best? Perhaps these descriptions will help.

MODESS CAREFREE Sanitary Napkins

The Modess Carefree napkin was designed especially for younger women. This doesn't mean she has to wear it just because she's under twenty, but means it's tapered to fit a youthful figure and to absorb a regular flow. The moisture-proof polyethylene shield stretches full-length and full-width through the centre of each Carefree napkin.

MODESS SOFF-FORM Sanitary Napkins

The Soff-Form napkin is deep-tapered. Extra depth makes it super absorbent. If her flow is exceptionally heavy, and this is often the case with teenagers, then this is the napkin for her. The moisture-proof polyethylene shield is built into the centre of this napkin, too.

In each box of Soff-Form napkins there's a free supply of blue, opaque plastic sanitary envelopes. These are ideal for carrying fresh napkins and disposing of used ones.

MODESS Regular Sanitary Napkins

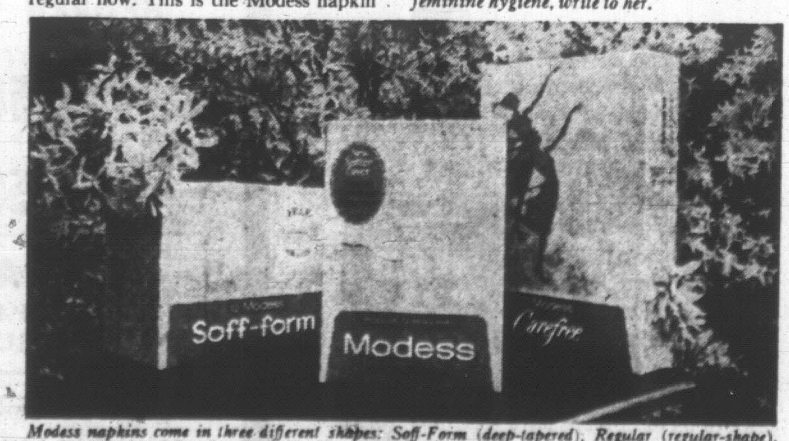
The Regular napkin follows the standard rectangular shape, and is designed for a regular flow. This is the Modess napkin with the unique protective shield called the "boat" shield.

It extends across the bottom of the napkin and part way up the sides (see dark line on cross-section above). If your daughter has ever had a problem with spotting, consider this napkin seriously. It gives the kind of moisture-proof protection that no other napkin can.

There they are: the three worry-free Modess napkins. One of them is right for your daughter. Maybe she's already using it. Maybe she'll have to try all three to find it.

The one she finally chooses will fit. It will protect. It will give her enough confidence to stop wondering if anyone knows. She'll treat those days like any other, and isn't that what you want?

Anne Gilbert is Director of Education at Johnson & Johnson. It's her job to know all about sanitary napkins, and to pass this knowledge on to you. If you ever have questions about Modess products, or feminine hygiene, write to her.



Modess napkins come in three different shapes: Soff-Form (deep-tapered), Regular (regular-shape), and Carefree (tapered). Now you can choose the one that fits your daughter's needs best.

Nader Claims Information Withheld

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumer advocate Ralph Nader charges that numerous U.S. government agencies, while giving preferential treatment to special interest groups, have violated the Freedom of Information Act by withholding information from press and public.

"Government officials at all levels in many of these agencies," Nader said, "have violated systematically and routinely both the purpose and specific provisions of the law."

The charges came in a 20-page report by Nader and a group of about 100 law, engineering and medical students and graduates who have been investigating the workings of several government agencies during the summer.

They called a news conference Tuesday to list specific instances of what they termed violations of the two-year-old Freedom of Information Act.

Some violations cited by the group were: The defence department's denial of access to the quantity of oil being pumped from navy ship bilges; the water pollution control administration classifying domestic military base sewage as a national security matter; and attempts by the highway administration to keep automotive safety standard violations from the public while quickly informating manufacturers.

Judy Died Broke

LONDON (AP) — Judy Garland's husband says she died $1,000,000 in debt, including $500,000 owed to the U.S. Internal Revenue Service. "Too many sharks in the business used her as a pawn to their own ends," said Mickey Deans, the singer's fifth husband.

Victim Named

LILLOOET (CP) — A man killed last Friday when run over by a Pacific Great Eastern Railway train was identified Tuesday as Richard Henry Terry, 22, of Lillooet. He apparently had gone to sleep on the PGE tracks at Seton Portage, 20 miles west of here.

STANDING in the mist around Belmont Battery several members of the 5th B.C. Coast Brigade scan the horizon, recalling the days when Fort Rodd Hill was alive with men.

They Shared One Uniform

By SUSAN RILEY

It wasn't banner headlines warning of imminent war that called 160 men to Fort Rodd Hill Tuesday—just a tiny notice in the paper.

And they didn't have to face six months of sleeping on wet ground in tents, only a pleasant hour-long walk through the old fort.

The men, former members of the 5th B.C. Coast Brigade, were celebrating the 30th anniversary of the manning of Fort Rodd Hill at the start of the Second World War.

For some it was the first time they'd been back since the war ended.

They greeted one another enthusiastically, remembering names and regiments number: "Bob, you were with the 17th, weren't you?"

Mayor Hugh [illegible], who was with the 17th Seachlight Battery, was greeted with: "How you been Hughie?"

Two veterans separated from the main group, around the brick building, to walk on the lawn.

●

"I've always wanted to do this," said one. "I can remember a time when we weren't allow to."

Only a few tourists and two deer were in the still-wet park as they men walked around. At one time the "whole place was jumping," recalled one former soldier.

Two guns in Belmont Battery were manned around the clock during war time and searchlight crews worked a six-day week.

Bob Jollymore was one of the first to arrive at the fort when the militia was called up Aug. 26, 1939.

He remembered sharing a dress uniform with a friend for a while because uniforms were in such short supply.

"I had the tunic and he had the trousers so if one of us went out the other stayed in," he recalled.

They lived in tents the first few months and built H-huts for the 200 men who eventually arrived.

The brigade was scattered to all parts of the world after six months at Fort Rodd Hill.

Park superintendant Jack Rippengale paid special attention to the Tuesday guests. He was a 21-year-old gunner with the brigade during the war and became superintendent of the park in 1965.

●

"Many of the men here started their stint in the services at this fort," he said. "They like to come back, just for fun, and remember how it was 30 years ago when the war had just started."

"Not one of these guns was ever shot in anger," said Rippengale. "Some wonder what was the use of having them here.

"But something to think about is 'Where would we be if they hadn't been here and the war had turned out differently?' "

As dusk crept in, groups of laughing men headed for the gate and a reunion party at the Bay Street Armories, arranged by Major Arthur Sherwin, present commanding officer of the 5th British Columbia (Field Battery).

"I don't remember this slope as being this steep," said one, and his friends laughed in agreement.

Coast Pilot Dies at 85

Funeral services will be held Thrusday at 10 a.m. and prayers will be offered tonight in St. Patrick's Church for Capt. Gordon Evans, 2747 Satellite, who died Monday aged 85.

A veteran coast pilot, Capt. Evans served with the federal department of transport from 1907 until 1946.

His first appointment was in the lighthouse tender Quadra and in 1912 he became her second mate.

Beginning in 1914, he served as mate of the Estevan for seven years, periodically taking over command as master.

Capt. Evans became master of the lighthouse tender Berens in March 1921, remaining with the ship until his retirement.

Born in London he lived in Victoria for 58 years.

Capt. Evans is survived by his wife Dorothy.

Marijuana Charge

VANCOUVER (CP) — Rory O'Day, 27, professor of psychology at the University of British Columbia, was arrested Monday and charged with possession of marijuana. Also arrested and charged with the same offence was Valerie Anne Hall, 26, a UBC student teacher. Bail was set at $1,000 each. They remained in custody and were to appear in B.C. provincial court.

Tisdalle Makes The Hippie Scene

Hippies, too, know they need an organized government in British Columbia, Saanich and the Islands candidate John Tisdalle, Social Credit, told a Kiwanis gathering Tuesday night.

Tisdalle related how he had gone to Centennial Square and argued with young people there, only to discover that they, too, know they need responsible organization in society.

"I challenge you to take off your finery, or leave it on, and get down there and talk to these young people in Centennial Square," Tisdalle told the group.

"Talk to them about common things they understand and you understand. When I left they put their arms around me and touched me and thanked me — they said they'd never been talked to like that before."

"Who knows? We might have put out the flames of rebellion or loss of life or loss of property — which I'm sure you as businessmen are concerned with — just because I went down and talked to these people," the MLA said.

"I went down to Cool-Aid, and I sat and listened to what they had to say. I could have laughed at them. These young people think they're being smart turning to the left or whatever you want to call it.

"But they're all human beings and they respect seniority and experience — you could prevent them from having sad experiences by going down and using a little common sense."

Tisdalle said he had argued with Centennial Square frequenters about their shoelessness.

Young people of their sort take their shoes off not to feel the "green grass on a lovely warm day" but because of a pebble in their shoe. But they let the pebble distort their whole way of thinking and never put their shoes back on, he said.

Residential Parking Only

Florence Street will be restricted to residential parking daily from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Oak Bay councils traffic committee decided Tuesday.

The decision was made after several complaints had been received from residents stating all parking space was clogged with cars of Saunders and Hitchman Sales and Service Ltd. employees.

Ald. Alex Hendry said, "It is up to Sanunders and Hitchman to provide their own parking."

Reluctant Troops' CO Transferred From Post

SAIGON (AP) — The company commander who had a small anti-war revolt on his hands in the battlefield Sunday has been relived of his job and is being transferred to a new post, his battalion commander said today.

Lieut. Eugene Shurtz Jr., 26, commander of A Company, will be given a new assignment with the 196th Brigade of the American Division.

The battalion commander, Lt.-Col. Robert C. Bacon said in a telephone interview from Landing Zone Centre south of Da Nang that he went out into the field Monday morning to relieve Shurtz.

The battle-worn and understrength company at first refused Sunday to move again down the jungled, rocky slopes of Nji Lon Mountain into a deadly labyrinth of North Vietnamese bunkers and trench lines after making the same push and being driven back five days in a row.

After calm persuasion by Bacon, his executive officer, Maj. Richard Waiten and Sgt. Okey Blankenship the company finally moved out.

Bacon said Wednesday he made the decision to relived Shurtz Sunday night.

LACKED EXPERIENCE

"I made the decision for a lot of reasons. I didn't think he — Shurtz — had the experience to handle the job. It becamd more apparent as time progressed that we needed new blood in the job."

Bacon said the incident Sunday "was certainly a contributing factor" in relieving Shurtz. He said, however, his decision "was not solely based on that."

A spokesman for the U.S. American division said five soldiers had questioned Shurtz's order Sunday.

"They did, however, move out with the rest of the company — all of them — and the company completed its mission," the spokesman said.

Both Bacon and the spokesman said that to their knowledge no charges are pending against anyone and no formal investigation is being conducted.

Russia's Underwater Power Worries American Admiral

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — An anti-anti-submarine submarine? The possibility was raised by expert testimony to Congress released today.

Vice-Admiral Hyman G. Rickover, director of the division of naval reactors and father of the U.S. nuclear submarine fleet, said the navy might have to start protecting Polaris submarines from attack submarines, which he said Russia is developing rapidly.

But he did not make specific proposals for escort subs to protect the Polaris subs, which pack a big chunk of the American nuclear deterrent.

The admiral drew his analogy from an earlier era of naval warfare, but what he said also recalled the staircase of development in offensive and defensive missiles.

He testified May 20 to a closed hearing of the House of Representatives appropriations subcommittee on the Atomic Energy Commission budget. A censored transcript of what he said was released today.

LOOKS TO FUTURE

Rickover said the 41 American Polaris submarines were an effective part of the U.S. nuclear deterrent force now, but he was concerned about the future.

"What causes me to have doubts is the vast strides the Soviet are making in submarine and other aspects of naval warfare—strides far greater than anything we or any other country have done," the admiral said.

In discussing ways to protect the Polaris submarines, he cited the way destroyers are used to provide a protective screen for the slower battleships.

"You start off where one side possesses a battleship. She is the queen of the seas and can destroy everything. Pretty soon the the other side gets a battleship. Then the first side gets destroyers to protect the battleship.

"I think we are now at the beginning of this sort of thing with submarines. The deterrent part of our fleet has gone underwater. Soon, if you want to continue to be capable of performing this function, I believe we will have to provide them protection . . ."

WASN'T SPECIFIC

He did not make any specific proposals, such as for protective submarines to operate with Polaris submarines.

The hearing was held at a time when Senate critics of the administration's proposed anti-ballistic missile system were arguing that the defensive missiles were not needed because the Polaris submarines were relatively invulnerable to enemy attack even if land-based rockets and bombers were knocked out.

Rickover said "the ability to detect (submarines) is increasing faster than the ability to avoid detection."

He reiterated his previous estimates that by the end of 1970 Russia likely will have more nuclear-powered submarines than the U.S., which has 81 in operation—41 Polaris and 40 attack. Three more attack submarines are scheduled to begin operations by June 30, 1970.

He said Russia has about 65 nuclear submarines "but by the end of the year it is likely they will have more total atomic submarines than we have."

Model Year Changes 'Normal'

DETROIT (AP) — Chrysler Corp. said Wednesday it is industry practice to change the year identifications of trucks carried over by dealers at the end of a model year and sell them as current models.

General Motors Corp. said it does this with heavy-duty trucks.

Ford Motor Co. said it "is attempting to obtain clarification of the problem discussed" by the Federal Trade Commission, which reported Tuesday that at least seven manufacturers change model year identifications on unsold vehicles.

In some instances, after the date change, the FTC said vehicles are sold as new, even though they were manufactured two or more years previously.

The FTC said its investigation was initiated because of complaints from consumers concerning five domestic manufacturers and two subsidiaries of foreign manufacturers. It declined to name the companies.

The FTC said it would take action against manufacturers if the practice continues.

It said similar practices were followed by some trailer manufacturers and makers of other vehicles.

'Change:' Is Church Too Late?

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP) — The theme was supposed to be "change" when the Anglican Church of Canada met in general synod for eight days.

The question that kept cropping up in debates was not whether the time is ripe for change but whether the time is past.

Tuesday, 265 delegates from clergy and laity concluded their talks. They represented Canada's 1,200,000 Anglicans at the biennial synod, the church's parliament.

During those eight days they took cauticus steps toward intercommunion with other churches, union with the United Church of Canada and the possible ordination of women to the priesthood.

They heard a series of attacks on the church's past policies in dealing with Indians and Eskimos and approved the criticism. They voted to back Indians in their fight for treaty rights and to establish a national development program in consultation with native people.

'CHURCH IS DYING'

They also heard one of their own bishops, his voice breaking, say:

"I think all our frantic questing over this week is the convulsive death throes of an organization unwilling to die. . . ."

Rt. Rev. R. S. Dean, Bishop of Cariboo, returned to his Kamloops, B.C. diocese in June after a five-year leave of absence as executive of the Anglican Communion. On behalf of Anglicans around the world, he had travelled more than 1,000,000 miles.

The bishop said the church is dying "from self-strangulation by its own prosperity" and will have to become smaller and poorer to survive.

He was one of several delegates who warned that the church must not divert funds from world needs in its eagerness to attack Canadian problems.

Money was the headache. On Wednesday, the synod heard David Courchene of Winnipeg, president of the Manitoba Indian Brotherhood, ask the church to re-direct foreign aid money to assist Indian organizations.

Delegates responded by voting to establish a national development program in consultation with native people. Members of the church are asked to give a day's pay a year toward it.

CONSIDER WORLD HUNGER

Later, they approved another resolution asking parishes and dioceses to give one per cent of their income for the immediate relief of world hunger.

Statistics prepared by the committee on the state of the church show a decline in church attendance and in contributions. Total parish income for 1968 was $32,300,000 in 1968, a decrease of $3,100,000 from the 1967 total of $35,400,000.

Other resolutions will cost money: to establish continuing education programs for clergy, to set up a national personnel office so that they can change parishes more easily, to bring their stipends up to their needs and to give full-time women workers equal pay for equal work and qualifications.

Resolutions on ecumenical steps went farther than anticipated. One, introduced to permit Anglicans to share communion with United Church members on special occasions, was amended to include all Christian faiths. Permission of a bishop still is required.

The Anglican and United churches are conducting negotiations toward union, with a tentative time schedule expected in 1971.

Women of the church won approval in principle for the eventual phasing-out of their separate national organization. The synod also voted to set up a study of the ordination of women to the priesthood.

$50,000 Refund For Blacks

EL PASO, Tex. (AP) — The National Student Association has climaxed its 22nd annual convention by approving a claim for $50,000 by a breakaway black student association.

Delegates to the convention, numbering about 500, acted late Tuesday night on the militants' demand after a riotous session the preceding night, during which black dissidents took control of the meeting.

The black militants demanded that NSA pay back to black students funds received from foundations since 1961 for civil rights work.

A spokesman, Gwen Patton, said the new National Association of Black Students estimated the amount due to be $50,000. Miss Patton is co-ordinator of the Third World Conference, an organization of black separatists.

There was no indication of where the funds would come from, barring volunteer student contributions. Robert Powell, outgoing president, said NSA, which operates on a $750,000 annual budget, currently is $120,000 in the hole.

30 Injured in Crash Of CNR Rail Liner

MIRROR, Alta. (CP) — About 30 persons were taken to hospital Tuesday night when Canadian National Railways railiner hurtled through an open switch and collided with stationary boxcars.

The injured were transported to Bashaw Hospital, 11 miles northeast of here, by private vehicles and two ambulances.

Eleven of the persons, including engineman Bruce R. Wilson of Camrose, Alta., trapped for more than two hours in the wreckage, were admitted for overnight observation.

"None of the passengers were injured seriously," said a hospital spokesman. "Mr. Wilson and the other 10 persons are suffering from cuts and shock."

The spokesman declined to release further details but said seven of the 11 were from Alberta, two from Saskatchewan, one from Manitoba and the other from Nova Scotia.

"The accident occurred at 7:35 p.m. MST when the railiner, heading for Calgary, went through an open switch at Mirror, which diverted the one-car train onto an adjoining track where it hit the boxcars," said Jack Thornton, CNR public relations manager at Edmonton.

Russian Research in Transfusions Believed Years Behind the West

MOSCOW (WP) — Soviet research and practice in blood transfusion are generally years behind the West — for reasons that may cast some light on what can be expected in future East-West scientific competition or collaboration.

That is the consensus of half a dozen scientists from the United States, Germany and Switzerland who were among 2,419 specialists attending the 12th congress of the International Society for Blood Transfusion, which ended here Saturday.

Despite their feeling that the Soviets lag in hematological innovations, the westerners were impressed by the breadth and adequacy of Soviet transfusion service and intrigued by such local idiosyncrasies as using fresh cadavers as a source of supply for blood banks.

Tibor J. Greenwalt, president of the ISBT and National Medical Director of the Red Cross Blood Program in Washington, D.C., also said the Soviets might be up with or ahead of the West in a few fields, like developing organic substitutes for blood.

The dominant impression remained one of lag, however.

The visitors said Soviet papers and scientists allowed them to infer things about Soviet scientific methods that might explain the lag:

● Vagueness of data. Soviet papers would describe a research project and then say, "the results were positive," instead of citing precise figures to show how positive they were.

Julian B. Schorr, of the Greater New York Blood Program, said he was driven to protest that such papers were not considered acceptable at congresses in other countries. A young Soviet scientist later whispered private agreement, but none did so for the record.

● Reluctance of younger scientists to criticize older "professors," even though the younger ones seemed to the westerners to have a great ability.

● Isolation. This was the only explanation visitors could find for repetition of experiments the West discarded as wrong or unprofitable years ago.

● Different priorities for experimental research and social benefit.

AIRPORT WON BUNNY WAR BUT DON'T KNOW HOW!

LOS ANGELES (AP)—After 10 years of seemingly hopeless struggle, Los Angeles Airport appears to be winning the "Battle of the Bunnies".

But no one's exactly sure how it was done.

There was a time when pilots flying into the airport radioed: "It looks like a field of ears." Thousands of rabbits occupied the brush around the runways.

They clustered on taxiways, scattering only to reassemble when plane wheels had passed. Some raced the planes with surprising speed.

●

There was danger that they might be sucked up into jet engines, causing costly repairs and impeding traffic at the world's second-largest airport, where up to 2,000 aircraft land or take off each day.

ANOTHER INSTITUTION VANISHING

Days of the Paris Concierge Are Numbered

PARIS (CP) — Pity the poor concierge, a great Paris institution now suffering the effects of passing time.

By tradition, the concierge is the all-seeing, infinitely energetic matriarch in charge of everything from postal deliveries to garbage disposal in this city's apartment houses.

She feeds the cats and waters the flowers of absent tenants, scrubs stairways, sees that house rules are respected and generally keeps an eye on the premises.

Bachelors find her a heaven-sent feature of life here, ready as she often is to step in and—for about $2—mount cleaning operations in grubby apartments.

The pains of life as a concierge find partial compensation in the lodgings that go to the woman in question, along with her family.

Her husband might go on working at an outside job, thus boosting still further the family fortunes.

But currently about 5,000 Paris concierges are over 75 years of age, lending a somewhat superannuated air to the profession as a whole.

And other factors are ganging up to give it considerably less basis for prosperity than it once enjoyed.

For one thing, new apartment houses here tend to be equipped, as they are in North America, for automatic performance of duties previously performed by the concierge.

Postmen stopping at modern Paris structures now leave letters in mail boxes near the front door instead of handing them in bulk to the concierge for sorting and distribution around the house.

Moreover, where at one time she guided visitors to the tenants they sought, the outsiders now contact the occupants for themselves—via the usual run of front-entrance doorbells or "intercom" facilities.

Landlords say too that concierges are becoming a highly expensive part of building maintenance, especially in small- or medium-sized establishments.

Younger housewives still are eager for concierge appointments, primarily because of the living accommodation that goes with the job in a country where housing remains a widespread problem among those less well-off.

However, the demand for postings far exceeds the supply, although concierges as a group still are strong enough to defend themselves successfully against proposed community changes which they find objectionable.

One such suggestion was that Paris garbage should be collected in pre-dawn hours.

This, its backers argued, would relieve narrow side streets of daytime traffic jams caused by refuse trucks on their present morning rounds.

Director Thinks Winnipeg the Best

TORONTO (CP) — Kurt Reis, recently appointed artistic director of the Manitoba Theatre Centre in Winnipeg, thinks he has inherited the "most successful theatre in Canada."

"The people in Winnipeg are great," he said in an interview here. "You can do things there you can't do in Toronto or Montreal."

The 34-year-old Vienna-born director said: "The most vital function the theatre can play is in its theatre school and its connections with the university.

"I want the people to participate in the theatre actively, not passively."

Somewhere deep down the theatre fails to be a very good critic of the socity in which we live today.

"That's why people don't go. They are bored. The theatre rhythms just aren't the rhythms of their lives.

"It's been a long time coming, but it came at the right time," he said about his new job.

"The Manitoba Centre is a success, and if the next couple of years are not a success, it will not be a theatre, it will not be the people of Winnipeg, it will be me."

Pupils Forced To Have Recess In Old School

DUNCAN — Westholme School students playing indoors will have to utilize an old school building rather than the basement of their own school, Cowichan school board has decided.

Cost of installing a secondary fire exit door and upgrading an existing door would cost $655 so the basement will be closed for student use and used only for storage purposes.

Building committee chairman B. C. Anand said the recommendation followed a letter from North Cowichan municipality warning that the fire exits did not conform with the Fire Marshal's Act.

One More Chance

Roger Lindal of no fixed address, who last week told Judge William Ostler he'd give him one more chance in spite of the fact the judge had convicted him every time he appeared before him in the last 10 years, Tuesday pleaded not guilty to a charge of assaulting a police officer and was remanded to Sept. 26 for trial.

Time to Repot Cyclamen Corns

By HILDA BEASTALL

Cyclamen rooms which bloomed in pots last winter will flower again indoors if given a start now. During the summer the corms will have been in their pots of dry soil to prevent shrinking. It is now time to take them from the pots, rub them gently with the thumbs to remove old dry roots and soil, then repot for another season.

Hilda

Indoor cyclamen (there are also hardy outdoor kinds with tiny delightful flowers) like a rather shallow pot since they are not deep rooting. A size about two inches wider than the diameter of the corm is about right.

The same pot as was used last year may be suitable, but see that it is thoroughly washed and dried before using.

Crock in the bottom over the drainage hole comes first, so that surplus water can get away but soil does not go with it and clog the drainage hole.

A leafy, humusy soil such as sold for African violets will suit, or make your own from screened compost, rubbed-down leaf soil and a little peat moss if needed to lighten the mixture.

Have the mixture slightly damp; the peat moss should be dampened thoroughly before being added.

Fill two-thirds of the pot with the mixture, set the corm on top, then fill in around and three-quarters way up the side of the corm.

Leave nearly an inch of space above the level of the soil and the top of the pot. Many failures with house plants is due to having soil up to the rim so that no space is available for giving a good watering.

After planting, the pot can go into a cool place such as window ledge out of sunshine, for a rooting period of three to four weeks.

During this time little green shoots will appear on top of the corm, and these will be the signal for stronger light but still not bright sunshine.

An east window, or south-east, provides about the best conditions. The soil during the early rooting and growing period must never be wet or the corm will rot. Neither should water ever lie in the depression at the top of the corm where the green shoots appear.

Once growth is quite active and several shoots are progressing, weak feedings once in two weeks will aid strong development. Alginure at the rate of one teaspoon to a quart, or a half-teaspoon to a pint of water, will be sufficient.

Reflexes Important To Safe Driving

By DR. WALTER ALVAREZ

Every year, many thousands of people are killed in auto accidents, and millions more suffer injuries and paralyses, many of them almost as bad as death, if not worse. The cost of all these injuries and deaths runs into the billions of dollars.

Often the report was that one driver "lost control over his car;" also, in many cases, the driver was not thinking of what he was dong; or he lost consciousness because of some illness, such as a heart attack, or a little stroke, or a spell of "petit mal" (the minor form of epilepsy), or a spell of narcolepsy (a disease in which the person can fall asleep in an instant, no matter what he is doing); or his judgment was impaired because he had taken too much of some drug, such as alcohol or a tranquilizer.

Legislators keep talking now about making the roads and cars safer, but we physicians are far more inclined to worry about the very unsafe driver. Many experts now say that the evidence shows that half of the drivers who had a bad smash-up had too much alcohol in them. Even two drinks can impair a man's judgment and slow his reflexes. One thing we know is that drunken drivers cannot be trusted to reform.

★ ★ ★

I read that in 1965, 2,200 persons died in the U.S. when they drove their car into a bridge abutment or into an oncoming car. Studies made of these persons, and questioning of their relatives, have shown that a high percentage of them were being treated by psychiatrists, and many had been talking of suicide. One of my depressed patients tried to drive in front of a train so that she and her husband would "go to heaven together," but her husband grabbed the wheel and turned the car aside just in time to avoid a smash-up.

In recent years, the death rate for riders of motorcycles and bicycles has greatly increased. Many people are on motorcycles and motor-rushing around much too fast scooters.

Today, when checking an old person to see if he should have a license to drive, the highway police are usually concerned about the man's eyesight. As a physician, I would be much more concerned with the quickness or the slowness of his reflexes. I would want to see if he would press on his brake pedal the instant the car in front of him suddenly stopped or slowed up, or if he pressed on his brake the instant a child ran out in front of him, or if he started up within a few seconds after the light at a crossing changed from red to green.

★ ★ ★

Some old people should not be driving, if their reflexes are too slow for safety or if they are easily flustered—as some old opeople tend to be—or if they are very slow to read highway signs, or if—and this is so important—when faced with an emergency, the tend to freeze to the wheel and do nothing.

An encouraging note is that I read recently that old drivers have the best records for safety.

A dangerous person is one who is emotionally upset or in a fit of temper. It is very dangerous for a man to go on driving when he has just been told something very disturbing, such as that a problem son has just gotten into trouble; or when he has just had a bitter argument with his employer or his wife. I would strongly suggest to such a mentally shocked man that he drive to the side of the road and wait there until he has regained his mental self-control.

FLASHBACK ON CANADA

When Did U.K. Flag First Unfurl Here?

By BOB BOWMAN

This is a trick question. When did the British flag first fly over Canada?

The answer could be August 27, 1758, when a British force under colonel John Bradstreet captured Fort Frontenac, now Kingston, Ontario.

Of course the British flag had flown over Newfoundland since 1583 when it was claimed for England by Sir Humphrey Gilbert. However, Newfoundland did not become part of Canada until 1949.

The British flag began flying over Nova Scotia in 1713, but Nova Scotia did not become part of Canada until Confederation in 1867.

So technically it is true to say that when the British flag was unfurled over Fort Frontenac on August 27, 1758, it was the first time it had flown over the Canada of those days.

The attack on Fort Frontenac was part of the build-up for the capture of all of Canada. Although Montcalm had won a victory at Ticonderoga, this was offset by Amherst, Wolfe and Boscawen capturing Louisburg.

The Colonel Bradstreet, who had been commanding the British fort at Oswego, N.Y., crossed Lake Ontario to capture present-day Kingston, a strategic position between the St. Lawrence River and the Great Lakes.

Bradstreet was brought up in Nova Scotia and was a member of the garrison at Canso when it was captured by the French in 1744. The British troops were taken to Louisburg as prisoners but there was not enough food for them, and they were allowed to go to Boston.

During his stay at Louisburg Bradstreet gained a good deal of information about the fort which he was able to pass along to military authorities when he got to Boston. The result was the successful attack on Louisburg the following year.

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

By FRED L. KARPIN

In expert bridge circles, intense concentration is a prerequisite for winning play. The following anecdote depicts this concentration.

A prominent expert, at the conclusion of a tournament, was asked by a woman expert how a certain deal should have been bid. While the discussion was going on, the pair wandered off the tournament floor and sat down in an anteroom. Having completed his explanation, the expert stood up and looked around. He had been sitting in the outer room of the ladies' lounge.

In the deal presented below, which arose in a honexpert game, a defender didn't concentrate, and it cost him heavily.

North-South vulnerable, with a part-score of 60. South deals.

♠ 7
◇ A Q J 5

WEST
♠ J 10 4
♡ K Q J 3 2
◇ 9 6

EAST
♠ A 6
♡ 9 8 5
◇ K 10 7 4
♣ A 7 6 3

SOUTH
♠ K Q 9 8 5 3 2
♡ 6 4
◇ 8 3 2
♣ 5

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
3 ♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: King of ♡.

Dummy's ace of hearts captured the opening lead, after which a low trump was led off the board. When East followed suit with the six-spot, South put up his king. On this trick, West followed suit with the four of trumps.

The outstanding three trumps now consisted of the ace, jack, and 10. And, if East had the A-J or A-10, South had to lose two trump tricks. So, hoping that East had been dealt the doubleton A-6, South next led a low trump, which East was compelled to win with his ace. South's only other losers were a heart, a diamond, and a club, and he thus made game and rubber.

West wasn't "on the ball." When South played his trump king, West should have false-carded with the 10-spot. Had he done, so, South might have misguessed the trump situation.

With the 10 falling, West might well have started with the doubleton J-10 (as South would view it). In this case, East would have been dealt the A-6-4. By now playing the queen of trumps, West's (presumed) jack would fall as East took the trick with his ace. In the actual set-up, however, South would have lost two trump tricks.

But West's play of the trump four on the initial trump lead gave declarer no chance to go wrong.

Where Are Liberal Czechs?

By MARK MEREDITH

PRAGUE (Reuters) — Dubcek, Svoboda, Cernik and Smrkovsky—the big four of Czechoslovakia's liberal leadership were at the height of their power last August and their names were painted on thousands of walls under the eyes of Soviet troops.

But where are they now?

Alexander Dubcek, 47, the former Slovak party leader whose broad smile characterized "socialism with a human face," as his supporters called it, startled the world by putting the personal touch to the position of Communist party first secretary on his election in January, 1968.

But his immense popularity was threatened when he had to see through the drastic modifications the Soviet Union demanded to his liberalization program. Then in April, he was pushed to the wings when Dr. Gustav Husak took over as secretary.

Now Dubcek heads the federal legislature and is seen only occasionally on television, shaking the hand of visiting delegations from abroad. He remains in the party's ruling presidium, but has been stripped of all jobs in the central committee.

Suddenly the sad hero of the past, people rush to him and give him a small bunch of flowers when they see him on the street and he seems delighted by the sign of affection. But the infectious smile of a year ago is rarely seen now.

APPEALS TO PEOPLE

President Ludvik Svoboda, considered here as the "ideal figure of a president," remains in office and at 74 has been the august voice beseeching the population to remain calm during the countless upsurges of political tension since the Soviet-led invasion one year ago last week.

The silver-haired Second World War hero—a Stalinist victim once demoted to a job as accountant at a collective farm—does not appear at home in the turbulent political scene around him.

But he stood up to Soviet leaders last August under the pressure of the post-occupation Moscow negotiations, and now is taking the role of the man who will not allow the purge of the 1968 reformers to take illegal proportions—meaning mass arrests and Stalinist interrogations.

Rumors persist that Oldrich Cernik's days are numbered as premier of the federal government. The mild-spoken official who headed the government under Dubcek and Husak, soon will become a scapegoat for the near chaotic state of the economy, well-informed Czechoslovaks believe.

His government is the only top-level state body which has not undergone an anti-reformer purge since the change of party leadership in April.

Cernik, 48, is a straight talker. His dryly formulated warnings spelling out the economic and political consequences of unrest have not helped his popularity.

STILL LAUDS DUBCEK

But he is among the rare officials in the hierarchy still speaking good words in public for "the great ideas of January, 1968"—the start of the Dubcek era.

Josef Smrkovsky, National Assembly leader during the reform movement, has been pushed to the side-lines—but only with difficulty.

During the changeover in the party leadership in April, the active 58-year-old progressive was removed from the party presidium and demoted to deputy legislative leader.

Smrkovsky, who in July, 1968, soothed crowds in Prague's Old Town Square by telling them that the party leadership has not "betrayed your confidence" in talks with Soviet leaders, has attracted a huge following.

Despite bitter attacks from conservatives, workers were prepared to strike to support him to lead the new federal assembly in January.

Things are changing.

Husak is an enigmatic but highly-able politician and has presided over the re-establishment of a policy which accords with Soviet specifications.

There are new names supporting him now—names which supporters have yet to scribble on fences and walls.

Copter Crew Fate Unknown

PANMUNJOM (AP) — North Korea again refused today to tell the United States what happened to the three men aboard a U.S. Army helicopter shot down Aug. 17 north of the demilitarized zone in Communist territory.

During another meeting of the Korean military Armistice Commission, the Communists again accused the UN command of sending the craft over North Korean territory. The United States said the pilot of the helicopter strayed after becoming disoriented during a training mission.

It is not known whether the three army men aboard survived the crash.

Delayed U.S. Withdrawal Seen as Warning to Hanoi

LAGUNA BEACH, Calif. (WP) — President Nixon's announcement he would defer for at least two weeks a decision on a further withdrawal of American troops from Vietnam was interpreted here as a military warning to Hanoi and not a shift in administration policy.

Informed sources called the decision a reaffirmation rather than a change in the position the president outlined in his address to the nation on May 14.

The president's intention was to tell Ho Chi Minh he was distressed by this month's enemy offensive and by the continued Communist build-up of supplies in forward positions.

●

The mid-August attacks defiantly broke the lull in the fighting at a time when Hanoi knew the president had promised to decide on a second troop withdrawal similar to the June 8 order bringing 25,000 combat troops home.

The president's military advisers seem to be extremely confident that they can handle any attack that may come. They are convinced the enemy is in a more weakened military position than ever in the last five years.

●

Nevertheless, Mr. Nixon apparently concluded he could not afford to announce an additional troop withdrawal a week after American casualties jumped appreciably and possibly days before another Communist offensive, however insignificant it might prove to be.

Mr. Nixon's decision to postpone his announcement until after his return to Washington about Sept. 7 was made Friday, it was said here, but his Friday meeting with Henry Cabot Lodge, chief American negotiator at the Paris talks, was not the decisive influence.

In talks Thursday in San Francisco with South Korea's President Chung Hee Park the president had indicated the time was not appropriate for another withdrawal order, but informants said he did not specifically tell Park he would announce a postponement.

A final conference was held at San Clemente Saturday morning with Secretary of State William P. Rogers and Henry A. Kissinger, national security adviser, at which time it was decided to announce a postponement to permit further study of reports from the field.

Lodge has been convinced for some months a settlement was not so near as some presidential advisers have believed, and he reported to the president on the intransigence of the Communist negotiators in Paris.

●

But it was the military situation in the field that was decisive in the president's mind, and he has asked for further reports on the level of enemy activity, on infiltration from the north and on the enemy's potential for further offensives.

The president was understood to have made his decision reluctantly because of the effect on opinion at home, which has been led to believe that a steady reduction in the number of American troops in Vietnam would be made.

Nevertheless, he concluded the time was not right for a new withdrawal order and he did not want Hanoi to believe troop cuts are foreordained and dictated by domestic pressures.

Yemen Economy Booming As Civil War Resolved

SAN'A, Yemen (Reuters) — The end of the six-year civil war in the Yemen Republic and the government's "open door" foreign policy have generated new confidence in the country's economy.

There has been a marked revival of business activity since December, when the royalists fought and lost their last battle to reinstate Imam (King) Mohammed al-Badur, ousted by a 1962 revolution.

Confidence was further boosted in July when the government resumed diplomatic relations with West Germany, which immediately promised to support development projects worth $5,000,000.

This diplomatic move represented a major success for the government's "open door" policy, which aims at establishing good relations with East and West and obtaining economic aid.

FOREIGN FIRMS

The government also is offering incentives to attract foreign business firms and banks.

Big Arab and foreign business firms in the neighboring Southern Yemen Republic (formerly British Aden), have opened branches in Hodeida, Yemen's Red Sea port town and the main business centre.

The government's chief worry is the strength of the rial, whose value fell during the war.

As a remedial measure, the government is offering foreign investors five-year relief from customs duties and income tax, as well as facilities for transferring profits, engaging foreign skilled personnel and acquiring land for industrial projects.

9 IN MEMORIAM

MOORE — In loving memory of Mother and Dad — Annie Maud and John Joseph, who passed away August 27, 1962, and November 27, 1966.
The flowers we place upon your grave,
May wither and decay,
But love for you who sleeps beneath,
Will never fade away.
—Remembered always by their loving daughter and son-in-law, Vera and Cecil Holt.

RAE—In loving memory of my beloved husband, David L. Rae, who passed away on Aug. 27, 1968.
—Always remembered by his loving wife, Eileen.

4 stores — 10,000 sq. ft. lot

This is on one of the areas busiest intersections where 3 main arterials meet. Across from one of the busiest food stores on the peninsula, the potential for building another storey is here. Two stores are leased to 1972. The other stores are now facing a rent increase. Asking only $52,000 with easy financing. Owners may accept clear title rental house for their equity of $22,000, or you can assume an agreement at only 8½ per cent. This is a must for the commercially minded property owner. ENGLISH TUDOR TYPE

Once again we present a rare and much in demand roomy cottage style home, having four bedrooms, wide hallways, a good den, twenty foot living room and a dining room now furnished with authentic heirloom oak pieces as is the rest of this splendid home. Heated by a sound oil hot-water furnace, economy is obvious by the construction of the home whereby one takes only six steps to the upper bedrooms and six down to the basement. Ample attic storage is available through six more steps behind a cleverly concealed entry. I like this home very much and so will you, especially should you need to park a boat or trailer or several cars where they are out of view behind the house which is cunningly concealed behind trees from the traffic and public gaze. Here is a house built to order for the person who knows what he wants in a classic style which holds its value at all times. Also, IMMEDIATE POSSESSION. Please call LYNETTE DELAHUNT, 385-7707 anytime for complete details.

We can provide this for you in a 5-year-old home with three bedrooms — the large cathedral entrance leads to a charming living room with ranch rock floor to ceiling raised hearth fireplace. From the living room there is a wide approach to a lovely dining room at one end of which is the convenient sparkling kitchen with built-in oven and range. Sliding glass doors open to a large well-located sundeck. The full high daylight basement has rumpus room with fireplace and a lot of space for further development. The reason for the low price — some finishing still required.

152 WATERFRONT PROPERTIES

THE BLISSFUL COVE in NORTH SAANICH

Only a few minutes from the SWARTZ BAY FERRY, yet facing due south with an uninterrupted view from the sundeck of the ocean dotted about with ships, small craft and islands. No reminders of the harsh world of commerce here, the property is nearly an acre of seclusion and beauty. The southerly boundary 174 feet, and the beach has a gentle slope of sandy shingle that DOES warm up for swimming, yet collects logs and driftwood for the fireplace. If you make your home here the vegetable garden with its own well and electric pump — is already in top class shape. Dinghy platform and the boat anchorage are there. If you want to enlarge the 1,100 sq. ft. 2 or 3-bedroom home with its polished log interior and ECONOMICAL electric heating, you can — but you don't NEED TO. You could insulate the extra cottage on the point and put a bathroom there, or you could alter the LARGE GARAGE for extra visitors. The only snag with this beautiful property is that all your friends are bound to ask to stay. Main water, hydro and arbutus on site.
THE PRICE $45,000 — Probably worth half as much again in a few years. PERFECT RETIREMENT, SEMI-RETIREMENT, PEACEFUL RETREAT or JUST BLISS, 35 minutes from Victoria.

Local Purges Hit China

HONG KONG (AP) — Purges are again taking a toll of some local government officials in China, Western government analysts of Chinese affairs said today.

Members of local governments in a few areas have been arrested and summarily shot by the People's Liberation Army, reliable reports say.

The new, tough policy in the provinces is in line with a joint editorial published Sunday in the three most authoritative government publications in China—the People's Daily, Red Flag and the Liberation Army Daily. The editorial urged the Chinese people to continue criticizing officials who follow the policies of deposed President Liu Shao-chi.

But experts on Chinese affairs said it is still too early to tell who is behind the current purges, or if there are any targets other than provincial and county officials.

"The aim of the purge at the moment seems to be shaping up half-hearted officials while giving the kids some hope of better things to come," one Western government analyst said.

The new campaign appears to be part of Communist party Chairman Mao Tse-Tung's renewed attempt to attack so-called "conservatives," who still retain power in many areas despite Mao's attempts to oust them during the Cultural Revolution.

Books, Equipment Cost $35 Million

VANCOUVER (CP) — Books, equipment and services — including a $20,000 earthquake simulator—cost the University of British Columbia nearly $35,000,000 during the university's fiscal year that ended March 31, a financial statement said Monday.

UBC also spent $37,000,000 on wages and salaries for its administrative and academic staff and $4,200,000 for awards and grants to graduate and undergraduate students.

The major sources of income came from the provincial government, with $37,000,000; students fees, $10,000,000; sponsored and assisted research grants, $11,000,000; gifts, grants and bequests, $7,000,000, and the federal government, $2,700,000.

Included among the foreign equipment purchases was a $20,000 machine for simulating earthquakes by a civil engineering research group, a $43,000 electro - hydraulic loading system for civil engineering, a $11,000 bio - medical recorder used in dentistry and a number of spectrophotometers ranging in price from $1,100 to $32,000 each.

Bursar William White said the university has more than $16,000,000 of debts incurred for the construction of residences and other self-liquidating projects.

Helicopter Found

EDMONTON (CP)—The pilot and passenger were found uninjured Tuesday in an Okanagan Helicopters Ltd. Bell helicopter near Fort McMurray, Alta. Pilot George Donays and his unnamed passenger were reported missing Monday. The craft landed after running out of fuel.

Invasion Feared

NUERNBERG (Reuters) — A Romanian stowaway stepped from the baggage compartment of a German airliner Tuesday night and said he had fled Romania because he was afraid Russia would invade it, police said.

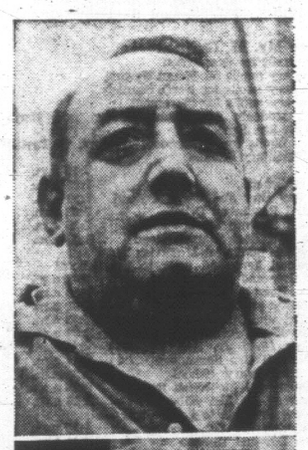
CANADIANS AT WORK



FARMERS, FISHERMEN, SECRETARIES, SALESGIRLS, MECHANICS, OIL MEN... are but a few of the important people who make up the work force of Canada. It takes many people doing many jobs to keep a country going. And the people who are doing this so well, are the citizens of this country...

You, The Workers!

In this issue, Weekend Magazine salutes A NATION AT WORK.

Also spotlighted this week:

TRANSPORT DRIVERS... If you've ever wondered about the life of the men who drive those roaring transports across our country... wonder no more. Weekend Magazine's James Quig travelled across Canada in a truck cab and his graphic impressions are set down for your reading in THE LONG, LONELY ROAD, this Saturday.

CONCILIATOR... That's Bryce Mackasey, Minister of Labor. Since receiving his portfolio in the Trudeau Cabinet, Mr. Mackasey has brought a new look to Labor-Management relations. Why has he been so successful? You'll know more about what makes Bryce Mackasey and Labor-Management tick after you've read CANADA'S ONE-MAN CONCILIATION BOARD by Robert McKeown.

French Language Experts to Visit

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian government is trying to arrange a visit to this country by leading international experts on the French language—a visit that may bring Phillippe Rossillon back to Canada with an official welcome.

An external affairs department spokesman said plans for the visit are still in the formative stage and there is no certainty that Mr. Rossillon will or will not be part of the visiting group.

Mr. Rossillon, secretary of the French government's Haut Comite pour la Defense de la Langue Francaise, attached to the premier's office, stirred controversy here last spring when he visited French-speaking communities in Manitoba.

Prime Minister Trudeau, in an unprecedented diplomatic move, criticized Mr. Rossillon for disguising his visit to Manitoba as a private one when he should have informed the federal government officially of his activities as part of a cultural agreement Canada has with France.

The external affairs department spokesman said the department for some months has been discussing plans for an official visit to Canada by a group representing the Conseil International de la Langue Francais.

COMITE IS A MEMBER

This is an international body, based in Paris, comprising government industry, and academic representatives of France and other countries interested in promoting use of the French language. A major member is Mr. Rossillon's Haut Comite.

The government here wants to invite an international delegation to discuss its bilingualism and biculturalism program. The visitors would come to Ottawa and Quebec, and perhaps other parts of Canada where there are significant numbers of French-speaking Canadians such as New Brunswick and Manitoba.

Before the Judge

Dennis G. Newstead, 9495 Maryland Drive, a former sales representative for Pacific Petroleum Ltd., pleaded guilty in provincial court Tuesday to unlawfully obtaining $685 from the firm.

He also pleaded guilty to two other charges of obtaining through false pretenses goods and cash in excess of $50 from the same company.

He was remanded to Sept. 3 for pre-sentence report.

Det. Lorne Johnson testified that Newstead bought flags and buntings for service stations, plus personal goods, and charged them to the company.

Some of the merchandize included camping equipment and plants.

The plants, he said, were given away by Newstead to business associates and friends.

Newstead said all the plants were given away only to business associates.

While the law now allows homosexuality between consulting adults, it does not permit such activities with juveniles, Judge Ostler told Richard A. Cleverdon, 540 Simcoe.

The 39-year-old man was concurrently sentenced to six months in jail for indecent assault on a male juvenile and six months for indecent exposure.

Rose Headberg, 901 Selkirk Ave., was fined $350 after pleading guilty to impaired driving.

Robert J. Painton, 1037 Tillicum, was found guilty of common assault and was fined $50.

He was accused of striking the manager of a night club on the head when he was being forcibly evicted from the premises.

Painton said he hit the man in self defence.

Posh Riviera Resort Area Forest Fire Threat Gone

CANNES (Reuters) — Forest fires which seriously threatened posh resort towns along the French Riviera were reported either extinguished or under control.

At one point the town of Cannes appeared about to be engulfed by fires. Flames were halted on the edge of town late Saturday.

Almost 100,000 acres of pine woods, vineyards and gardens were destroyed in the fires and officials estimated it would take up to 20 years to repair damage to such tourist attractions as the Bois Fleuri (wood of flowers) and the Valee Verte (green valley).

The fires were the biggest in the area in 13 years but no casualties were reported.

Although some of the fires were close to Cannes and nearby Nice—an area containing hundreds of holiday villas—only four houses were burned down. A fire engine also was destroyed.

Fire experts did not exclude the possibility that some of the fires were started deliberately and police in Marseille said they have arrested a man accused of starting a fire

SCHOOL DISTRICT NO. 63

(SAANICH)

School Bus Information And Schedules for the School Year 1969-70

School Board Policy—Pupil Transportation

School bus transportation, subject to available seating space, will be provided for:

Grade 1- 3 pupils who live more than two miles from the nearest Elementary School.
Grade 4- 7 pupils who live more than two and one half miles from the nearest Elementary School.
Grade 8-12 students who live more than three miles from the nearest Secondary School.

Mileage distances are calculated by the most direct route on established roads or walk areas. The distance is computed from the home property access at the road to the entry at the school site.

All occupational students, except those who have been advised to attend North Saanich Junior Secondary School, will attend at Mount Newton Junior Secondary School.

Special classes have been established at Brentwood, Keating and McTavish Road Elementary Schools. All pupils who will attend these classes have been advised.

The bus schedules for the morning runs are as indicated. The afternoon runs in general will be the reverse of the morning runs. The schedules are subject to change if circumstances require. All times given are approximate and subject to adjustment as required.

$700,000 Sunken Treasure Awarded to Skin Divers

HALIFAX (CP) — Ownership of 8,800 gold and silver coins was finally determined Tuesday, 244 years to the day after the French pay ship carrying the treasure foundered on a rock off the Cape Breton coast with a loss of 310 lives.

The Nova Scotia Supreme Court's appeal division gave Alex Storm, a Dutch native now living in Louisbourg, N.S., possession of the hoard, valued tentatively at $700,000, after more than three years of legal manoeuvering which began after disclosure of the find on April 4, 1966.

The decision altered a 1967 ruling by Supreme Court Justice Vincent Pottier that Storm, who recovered the treasure, receive 75 per cent of proceeds from sale of the treasure and that a group headed by Robert MacDonald, of Glace Bay, N.S., receive the remaining 25 per cent.

LEGAL TERM

Chief Justice A. H. McKinnon based his decision to allow Storm's appeal on the doctrine of laches, a legal term meaning an undue delay. The decision was also signed by appeals Judges F. W. Bissett and T. H. Coffin.

It said that between Feb. 8, 1965, when Storm notified MacDonald's group that he was ending his association with them, and April 7, 1966, when MacDonald launched legal action for ownership of the treasure, "all the plaintiffs acted together as a group and their acquiescence, together with their failure to assert any right they had under the partnership agreement, makes necessary the application of the doctrine of laches and the dismissal of the plaintiffs' action."

CLAIM SALVAGE

The plaintiffs were Mac- injunction April 7, 1966, preventing Storm or anyone working on his behalf from disposing of the coins. They were locked in a Sydney bank vault.

Storm and fellow skin divers Harvey MacLeod and David MacEachern had disclosed three days earlier that they had recovered thousands of French coins after three years of searching.

Major Overhaul Soon Of Criminal Code

OTTAWA (CP) — The government intends "in the next few years, beginning this fall" to start a major overhaul of the Criminal Code by a national law reform commission, Justice Minister John Turner said Tuesday night.

He said recent code amendments which took effect Tuesday in the fields of therapeutic abortions, homosexuality, publication of evidence and other issues represent a "comprehensive review and reform of the code" but "crying areas" of reform remain to be treated.

Mr. Turner said a national law reform commission, which the government will set up "as soon as we can," should "tear the code apart right from the ground up because in many areas it is an outmoded document."

He said laws on wiretapping and bail urgently need reform.

The justice minister noted that apart from a "thorough housecleaning — and some sweeping under the rug—in 1954," and the amendments bill passed this year, the code is a 19th century document.

Among the amendments which came into effect Tuesday were new laws against forging passports, controls on harassing telephone calls, more liberal uses of suspended sentences and a law making the possession of a tool for breaking into a coin-operated machine punishable by up two years in prison.

Mr. Turner estimated a thorough reform of the code by a commission would take "two to three years of intensive outside study."

The abortion amendment which came into effect Tuesday allows termination of a pregnancy where the life or health of the prospective mother could be endangered.

The amendment on homosexuality permits homosexual acts in private between consenting adults.

Story of Bishop's Role Told in New Bonn Play

By RALPH BLUMENTHAL

BONN (NYT) — The case of the Most Rev. Matthias Defregger will be portrayed in a West German play that will call members of the audience to the stage to re-enact spontaneously the moral problems of a man ordered to kill.

The play scheduled to open here in November will be the first of at least three productions based on the story of the auxiliary bishop of Munich who was recently revealed to have delegated a wartime order for the reprisal murders of 17 Italian civilians.

The other productions are films, also under way. One a co-operative effort by Osvaldo Civiani, the Italian director who made "Lucretia Borgia," and his German partner, Theo Maria Wener of Munich, is described as a documentary.

COLOR FILM

The color film will be based on eyewitness accounts of the June 7, 1944, massacre in Filetto de Camarda, Italy, on other interviews and on court records.

The other film, by Robert Azderball of Munich, a Polish-born director, has been described so far as a non-documentary.

The play, "Eine Dutsche Szenerie" or "A German Scenario," is being written in Munich by Hans-Georg Behr, a relatively unknown 30-year-old Austrian who has written two other plays soon to be performed on the West German stage.

"We want to show Defregger in all his conflicts," said Olaf Tschierschke, 32-year-old director of the Bonn Municipal Theatre.

"This is not actually a play about Defregger," he said in a telephone interview. "He is the person involved, but we want to widen it. Our aim is to get people of the audience to take part.

SAME TIME

"The play will be a series of scenes based on the boigraphical documentation of Defregger's life. During the biographical portrayal, associated scenes will be taking place at the same time.

"When it's time for the shooting of the people of Filetto, we will offer machine guns to people in the audience and ask them to come upon stage to decide whether to "Shoot" or to do nothing at all.

"Meanwhile," he went on, "while the audience members with the guns are hidden offstage deciding whether to shoot, the audience will be shown a documentary film of an actual execution."

Tschierschke said that the play could not be categorized as pro or anti Bishop Defregger. "We want to portray the moral agony," he said.

His description of the production would appear to place the play in the tradition of such semi-documentaries as Rolf Hochhuth's "The Deputy," which partrayed Pope Pius XII as failing to help save the Jews from Hitler's holocaust.

The director added: "Bishop Defregger will not be defamed and so there is no expectation of any lawsuit." Neither the bishop nor the Munich Archdiocese, he added, had been consulted on the production. "But they will be sent invitations," he said.

ANGLICAN PAY SCALE TO GO UP

By ELINOR READING

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP) — Salaries of Anglican Church of Canada personnel should be comparable to salaries of members of other professions, the church's general synod decided here.

Rt. Rev. G. N. Luxton, bishop of Huron, said that salary increases are needed to enable church personnel to give their families the accepted amenities of life.

The resolution for higher salaries was passed after a lengthy discussion in which some delegates questioned how increases could be justified in the light of world poverty.

But other delegates said that ministers have responsibilities towards their families and unless salaries were raised, the clergy would lose personnel to better-paying professions.

The 265-member synod also voted to establish a national personnel office to co-ordinate the church's employment policies and to study the problems of men who leave the ministry.

The positions of bishop, archdeacon, dean and rural dean are to be redefined and training is to be made available. New positions for better guidance and support of ministers may also be created.

In other business, the synod approved a resolution presented by the diocese of Calgary urging church deaneries, vestries and synods to put church funds into limited-dividend housing projects and to work for improved housing conditions.

Also accepted was a resolution which urges the federal government to incorporate a bill of rights into the constitution. Church members were also asked to "make a deliberate effort" to understand and enter into communication with French-speaking Canadians.

'Neurotic, Unstable' Society

EDINBURGH (CP) — Writer Malcolm Muggeridge helped celebrate the opening of the Edinburgh Festival of The Arts by attacking 20th century culture.

Speaking from the pulpit of St. Giles Cathedral in the official opening service, he noted that at no previous time in history have the arts received as much material help and encouragement from public bodies and funds.

"Out of all this comes the most crime-ridden sex-ridden, fear-ridden, lawless and neurotic and unstable society ever to be known on earth," he said.

"Past civilizations had been destroyed by barbarians from outside, but we are doing this ourselves. Our artists may safely be left to destroy art, our writers to destroy literature, our scholars to destroy scholarship, our moralists to destroy morality, and our clergy to destroy religion."

For the last 23 years the most noted personalities in music, painting and theatre have come to this Scottish capital for the annual festival, often patronized by the British royal family.

This year more than 50 "fringe" drama companies have almost cast the official program into the background.

One play will show two men in homosexual embrace. Another features two girls naked from the waist up. A third includes a sketch about the sexual organs of primitive man.

Record Vote Seen After Slow Start

Rain Dampens Early Polling

An expected record number of voters today were picking the captain and crew to sail the good ship British Columbia into the 1970s.

Rain slowed early voting on the Mainland in the provincial election but some polls in Victoria and Saanich and the Islands did a brisk business in spite of it.

And area voters were coming out along with the sun at mid-morning to begin setting a steady pace expected to result in a record turnout of voters by 8 p.m.

Television coverage of election results begins on Channels 2, 6 and 8 at 8 p.m.

Generally cloudy and showery weather across the province will last through the day and a few thunderstorms are expected in the Interior.

NO INCIDENTS

Early voting was "quite heavy and steady" in Victoria; "fairly heavy" in Saanich and the Islands; "picking up" in Esquimalt and "lighter than usual" in Oak Bay.

The expected record turnout will reflect the almost 400,000 increase in eligible voters since the 1966 election.

No serious incidents were reported from area polls and provincial registrar of voters Ken Morton said things appeared to be going smoothly all across the province.

The number of voters arriving at the polls and finding their names not on the voters' list appeared to be reduced this time because of the enumeration carried out earlier this year.

HOLIDAYS CITED

In Oak Bay returning officer Ken Murphy said voting was lightest in the Gordon Head area.

The large number of people on summer holidays is also believed to have slowed early voting—a vacationer isn't likely to leap out of bed at 8 a.m. to cast his vote, one official suggested.

About 116,000 people are eligible to cast ballots in the four area ridings, being contested by 16 candidates. Polls close at 8 p.m.

A considerable increase in absentee balloting—B.C. residents visiting Victoria can vote here if they missed the advance poll in their own ridings—has been reported.

The election will tell whether Premier W. A. C. Bennett's biggest-ever gamble at the polls has succeeded with the 1,151,806 voters eligible in the province.

This is the sixth time the premier has asked for a mandate since Social Credit crushed the Liberal - Conservative coalition government of Byron (Boss) Johnson in 1952 to form a minority administration.

Mr. Bennett, who celebrates his 69th birthday a week today, is risking a five-seat majority in the 55-seat legislature in an election some observers say could result in a minority government.

But the premier, who still had two years to run in the mandate he won in a 1966 provincial election, has never been wrong before. Mr. Bennett is predicting Social Credit will win 33 to 45 seats.

Legislature standings at dissolution: Social Credit 31, NDP 17, Liberals six, one seat vacant. Standings following the Sept. 12, 1966, election: Social Credit 33, NDP 16, Liberals six.

LOST A SEAT

(Social Credit lost one of its two seats in the Vancouver South riding in a byelection to the NDP's Norman Levi. The vacancy is due to the resignation of former attorney-general Robert Bonner in the Cariboo riding prior to issuance of the election writ.)

There are 177 candidates running for the 55 seats in B.C.'s 29th legislature, including full slates by the three major parties.

CHARLES
. . . to Ottawa

PORTER
. . . posted here

A Vancouver Islander who began his naval career as an ordinary telegraphist in November, 1939, will take over command of Canadian armed forces on the Pacific coast.

Commander H. A. Porter, 49, of Chemainus, will be promoted to rear-admiral and become commander of Maritime Forces Pacific Sept. 11.

The new admiral succeeds Rear-Admiral J. A. Charles, 51, who will take up duties as deputy comptroller-general in Ottawa Sept. 22. Charles has been in command of West Coast operations since Aug. 1, 1966.

With his new appointment, Porter becomes the second Vancouver Islander to rise from the ranks to admiral. He leaves Halifax where he was senior Canadian officer afloat.

BOY SEAMAN

The first was Rear-Admiral P. D. Budge, 3096 Cadboro Bay, who began his service career as a boy seaman and retired in 1962 while chief of naval personnel at Ottawa. His last West Coast appointment was Commodore of HMCS Naden, from 1954 to 1958.

Porter rose from the ranks in 1942 when he was selected for officer candidate training and promoted to sub-lieutenant.

A specialist in communications, Porter also qualified as a pilot in naval aviation. Part of his wartime service was spent in the destroyer Kootenay.

Various appointments have seen Porter in command of the ocean escorts La Hulloise and Lauzon, and officer in charge of the communications school at Halifax.

CADET TRAINING

In 1955 he became director of naval communications at Ottawa. Two years later he came to Esquimalt to act as armed forces co-ordinator of B.C. centennial activities. He later became commander of

70 Protest Death Of Picket

VANCOUVER (CP) — About 70 persons, half of them oil workers, marched with placards Tuesday night outside the Shelburn refinery in North Burnaby to protest a picketer's death early Tuesday.

James Gordon Harvey, 43, father of eight and a Shell employee for 16 years, died after being hit by a truck entering the plant at 1:30 a.m.

Immediately following Harvey's death, Neil Reimer of Edmonton, Canadian directors of the oil workers' union announced that all negotiations across Canada were suspended.

In Vancouver, union officials cut picketing in the strike to a minimum to guard against trouble. They also suspended plans to picket service stations located near Pacific 66 stations that are not involved in the dispute.

However, there was no traffic into the plant as the protesters waved signs that read "scabs are killing" and "company hires killers."

RCMP said Harvey was picketing by himself when the accident happened.

Three fellow-pickets drinking coffee in a parked car nearby witnessed the accident. They said he was crossing Kensington, which leads to the refinery, in an unmarked crosswalk parallel to Hastings when he stopped and bent down as though tying his shoelace.

At that moment, a large tractor-trailer tanker owned by Trimac Transportation System and driven by David Slobodian of Saskatoon made a right hand turn towards the refinery and Harvey was hit.

'I Planned This Murderous Attack'

VIENNA (CP)—Colman Losonczy, the Hungarian-born Canadian who said he set fire to the Canadian Embassy Tuesday was quoted by Vienna police today as having told them "not even 2,000 dead would move me as long as I am able to revolt against Canada".

Friedrich Kuso, Vienna's chief of security, told reporters Losonczy said this when told the fire cause the death of two persons and injured 23 others.

Police said there no longer is any doubt that Losonczy committed the attack. Kuso showed reporters two letters written by Losonczy. One police found in his suitcase deposited at the Vienna Western railway station, the other he mailed to the Austrian interior ministry Tuesday.

Both letters, Kuso said, were filled with filthy words against Canada. Both were written in French.

Kuso said they amounted to this:

"I very well planned and calculated this murderous attack. The murderous attack against the Canadian Embassy is the final act of my personal tragedy. It is an act out of despair and the deed of a revolting slave against the capitalist extortionist state Canada. Canada is like England. I want to kill as many English as possible for all the humiliations and suppressions I have suffered. My deed is designed as a protest against the tyranny and against Canada."

Losonczy had walked up to a police official at the site of the blaze and said: "I have set the fire." But one witness who said he had seen a man who threw the gasoline-filled bottles, said this man did not look like Losonczy.

WITNESS CHANGED MIND

The witness was later confronted with Losonczy. Losonczy was asked to clench his teeth and the witness said he now recognized Losonczy.

Kuso said Losonczy appeared to be a peaceful person, but the moment the word Canada was mentioned his face took on an "unrecognizable grimace."

Evidence police presented included a nylon bag with thin wires, which they retrieved from Losonczy's trunk. The wires were similar to others found at the fire scene. Other items were rubber bands, found in the trunk and also tied around a bush knife rolled in a coat in the embassy. An embassy employee found the coat and thought it belonged to a colleague.

Kuso said the bottles were no ordinary Molotov cocktails, but fire bottles, for which the wires were used.

QUARREL CITED

Police said they are not certain what made Losonczy commit the deed. Kuso said it could be in connection with the quarrel Losonczy had in the embassy here in 1967.

At that time Losonczy asked an embassy employee for financial support, but when he was told to take a job, he threw his passport to the floor and said "with this land I no longer want to have anything to do with."

Police records say Losonczy then tried to enter Hungary, but Hungarian authorities were only willing to admit him if his sisters promised to support him in case of need. The sisters refused to make the promise and Losonczy at the end of 1967 was deported to Canada.

Kuso said Losonczy left Hungary in 1944 as Soviet troops approached and moved to West Germany. From there he went to France and Belgium and after studying law went back to West Germany.

FACES LIFE

From there he moved to Canada. Canadian immigration authorities said this was in 1951.

His professional status was never cleared up.

If tried and convicted of murder, Losonczy will face life imprisonment. Austria has abolished the death penalty.

Two Austrian employees of the embassy were killed in the fire and 23 others were injured, some severely.

The only injured Canadian is Clive England, 31, of London, Ont., a communications tech-

Blasts Rock London's Stock Market

LONDON (AP) — A series of explosions shook the London stock exchange shortly after it opened for business today, hurled manhole covers into the air and turned the financial heart of the city into chaos.

Firemen and police, fearing a chain reaction from the underground gas network, removed manhole covers, surrounded them with barricades and an officer blared to the thousands of pedestrians:

"Please move away from the manhole covers and out of the streets unless you want to go up when it blows."

Firemen traced the origin to the basement of the stock exchange, and there was a theory that an electric transformer may have become overloaded. The explosion followed and dealers on the floor of the famed trading mart were engulfed in choking smoke and dust.

Lower Island Location For Hatchery Unlikely

By PAT DUFOUR

It will be late 1970 before the federal department of fisheries decides where to build the $1 million dollar salmon hatchery promised for British Columbia, but it likely won't be on lower Vancouver Island.

Dixon MacKinnon, chief biologist for the fisheries department in Vancouver, said this week that 18 streams will have to be surveyed before the final decision on the site is made.

"Among other factors, we have to study the character of the donor stocks of salmon in the streams and make sure there is groundwater which, with its early warm temperature, will allow the chinook and coho to be developed sufficiently by the time they're released."

●

An Ottawa release has set the building date of the hatchery for 1971.

MacKinnon said that Sooke and Goldstream would be among the streams to be tested but doubted that either would be used for the site because of the need to increase water resources to service the growing city of Victoria.

He warned that in spite of recent improvements in hatchery production, survival of hatchery-raised juveniles, particularly chinook, is still much lower than that of naturally-produced fish.

"Studies at the experimental hatchery will be directed toward improving survival of the hatchery product and will involve many comparative studies of wild and hatchery-reared juvenile salmon."

He said the decision to concentrate on chinook and coho was primed by the fact that experimentation with sockeye had proved uneconomic.

●

Attempts to propagate sockeye salmon in B.C., largely of an experimental nature, had failed. The Leavenworth hatchery in Washington had abandoned sockeye raising after four years and transferred to coho.

MacKinnon said his department had three main projects:

Premier Silent On Renter Grants

Premier Bennett today refused to confirm or deny a Social Credit candidate's claim that the provincial homeowners' grant will be extended to apartment dwellers next summer.

"On election day I make no comments," Bennett said repeatedly in a telephone interview from his home in Kelowna.

He would not say whether he ever discussed the subject with John Edmondson, Socred candidate in New Westminster.

When asked Tuesday why Bennett had not announced the plan himself, Edmondson said "he probably had other things on his mind."

Edmondson said apartment tenants will receive 50 per cent of the homeowner grant in the form of a rent reduction. The present homeowner grant is $150 yearly.

The other half of the grant would be placed in a trust fund paying interest.

"At any time over five years, the tenant will be able to draw on his accumulated (trust) funds to assist in building or purchasing a home and the amount will be added to the $1,000 grant currently available for new home construction," said Edmondson.

"If the tenant waits the full five years, this program would give him approximately $500 added to the other grants already available (and) he could have $1,500 toward a down payment on a new home."

Tenants would have to file affidavits that they had lived in an apartment 12 months to qualify for the grant but it was not certain yet whether persons who rented houses would qualify.

"I was given the tenant grant information because I made it a point to ask about possible aid to tenants."

Premier Bennett during the campaign told several audiences he would extend financial assistance to house renters who wanted to buy their landlords' houses or other old houses but would not elaborate.

Infiltration By N. Viets Seen Reduced

WASHINGTON (AP) — The North Vietnamese have reduced their infiltration into South Vietnam below their casualty rate, and thus their forces in the South may be getting smaller in number, a state department spokesman said today.

The spokesman, press officer Robert J. McCloskey, reaffirmed a state department view that the infiltration cut is "significant" but added that the United States still seeks a mutual U.S.-North Vietnamese withdrawal deal.

While North Vietnamese combat losses in excess of replacements "will eventually have the same effect as a withdrawal by North Vietnamese forces," he said, it would be a slow process and "we prefer to end the conflict by negotiation" leading to a pullout of all non-South Vietnamese troops.

McCloskey gave no figures in saying "there has been a considerable reduction in North Vietnamese infiltration into South Vietnam."

Politics First; Marriage Second

By COLMAN McCARTHY

NEW YORK — For many, Bernadette Devlin is Ireland's latest warrior-hero in its endless fight with the British.

She belongs on the glorious list that goes back to the rising of 1916, back to the famine, back to the poetry of Pearse and the blood of MacSwiney, to the social martyrs described by Yeats who "had to face their ends when young."

She mounted the hood of a car on Fifth Avenue in front of the British Overseas Airways Corp. ticket office and let them have it, as a marching Dubliner said "square in the cash register."

"Don't buy anything British," said Miss Devlin. "The Westminster government supports Unionism in Northern Ireland and Unionism helps suppress the Northern Irish poor."

"We know, Bernadette," came a brogue from the crowd. "BOAC—that stands for Bring Over American Cash."

She laughed, and the crowd caught the merriment in her eyes. Returning it, they hoisted high the money buckets, like glasses of Guinness.

After half-an-hour of post-speech questions and seeing the protest against BOAC turning into a pep rally for her, the young woman from Bogside made her way to a loft on Lexington Avenue. There, in the offices of a Catholic trade union, as dim as a boxcar and with crucifixes and sayings of Pope John on the wall, she rested.

Tiny, slightly mournful, not caring about coolness in a town that has made a virtue of it, with little pump in her handshake despite her being an Irish politician, Bernadette Devlin has only one hatred: the arrogance of the British government.

It has consumed her since Oct. 5 last year, "When I began my campaign for parliament. Before that, I was one of 5,000 students at Queen's University in Belfast.

Plans Research Later

"I majored in psychology, because when I'm through with politics—which will be when the British government lets the Irish people run their own lives—when I'm through, I want to be a research psychologist. On mental retardation among children. The retarded are not really as retarded as we conveniently think."

Miss Devlin, whose mother died three years ago and whose father died 10 years before that, has four sisters and one brother. In the tradition, now disappearing, of Irish families who give at least one child to God, her sister is a nun, in the order of the Daughters of Jesus.

Miss Devlin planned to marry next year but the engagement was broken. "I haven't been to a dance since last fall, and have been to the film show only twice. So I have no social life, only social issues. You can't get married on that, even if a young man asks you. People say I left behind the boy I loved, but sometimes I think I've left myself behind."

In the context of Ireland's culture, where the men usually marry late or leave the homeland early, Miss Devlin's turning down marriage for politics is a rare gesture. It suggests that she is serious when she says quietly "I'm not standing at the barricades because I like to protest; I'm there because I like to survive."

Thinking quietly herself for a moment, lost a little, Miss Devlin brought herself back. "I hear the government in Northern Ireland is jumpy at my being over here. They're trying to get parliament to send over two members to present their side. I hope they come, too.

"I've been trying to debate them over there for some months. But now if they come here, I can take them on in Carnegie Hall—and still knock them for a loop."

Maybe she will have her wish. The unionist party has announced that two MPs are on their way to the U.S.

Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Bourne were entertained on the weekend on the occasion of their golden wedding anniversary by their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon L. Harwood, 2451 Evelyn Place.

Mr. and Mrs. Bourne were married August 23, 1919, in St. Savior's Anglican Church, Victoria, by Rev. Robert Connell.

Salesgirls Study Fashions For Wool-Wise Victorians

Victorians are astute buyers when it comes to wool, said the president of the Wool Bureau of Canada.

And to help store clerks and retailers keep pace with the up-to-date ideas in Victoria, the bureau held a workshop to give those in the stores a "complete assessment of the Canadian fashion market for the fall."

Joy McGillawee of Toronto, recently back from the Paris haute couture showings, is travelling across Canada giving fashion workshops on behalf of the Wool Bureau of Canada, a non-commercial organization representing international wool producers and Canadian wool manufacturers.

She is the only woman president of the 24 country member organizations in the International Wool Secretariat.

With Mrs. McGillawee in Victoria for a two-day visit was vice-president A. B. Anderson. Mrs. McGillawee conducted the women's fashion workshop Monday and Mr. Anderson directed the workshop for men on Tuesday.

"This area (Victoria) is the highest recognition area for the Woolmark," said Mrs. McGillawee, suggesting that the English background of Victorians might be a factor in their knowledge of wools.

The Woolmark symbol is placed on all products of Canadian manufacturers which meet standards set by the Wool Bureau.

Approximately 200 women were invited to attend the Monday evening session in the Empress ballroom, a total Mrs. McGillawee said has risen from the first workshop number of 15 or 20.

The first workshop in Victoria 1½ years ago stressed fashion types and individual silhouettes. This year, silhouettes, accessories and the total look dominated.

"I find Canada has the same fashions right now as Paris does," said Mrs. McGillawee. St. Laurent's collection was mainly double-knit wools with many other designers using wool as their basic fabric.

"Wool is a natural for the fashions coming in now," stated Mrs. McGillawee.

"It clings to the body, it moves with the body."

Adult Groups Play Games With Cardboard Troubles

By PHIL CASEY

WASHINGTON — It had to happen. They've invented a game in which we sit around and party it up in misery and despair.

It's called "sensitivity" and, though the game brochure doesn't say so, it seems to be designed for the man or woman who has everything but enough trouble.

It comes from Boston, and the firm producing it says it is "an adult group game not to be played by persons under 17."

The inventors of the game, which they claim is "akin to therapy grouping and sensitivity training," are Jonah Kalb, a Boston advertising man, and Dr. David Viscott, a Boston psychiatrist. The game seems, however, closer to psychodrama than to sensitivity training.

In this game, a bunch of people sit around and pretend to be other people with other troubles. The company provides the characters and the troubles in cardboard folders.

And what troubles. Every character seems to have come straight from TV, or possibly life.

LIFE IS A MESS

Each player has a folder with information on some character whose life is a mess, and each player, in turn, pretends to be the character, explaining it and answering questions from other players.

And what characters. One guy is in hock for $43 for books to overcome his wife's frigidity and to help him beat the legal fees on their separation agreement. His dentist says his son's teeth need $2,500 dollars worth of work, his wife's lawyers are threatening him and his girl friend cancels a dinner date.

Besides all that, his wife says she didn't mind his running around with other women, but she's sore about his bum investments. His daughter tells him that mommy let his tropical fish die and the kid had to clean out the bowl.

And there's another man, a contractor. His son has died, a school building he built has collapsed and he is being sued, he can't get steel supplies because he's short of money, the north wall of a supermarket he built is cracking, he's installing inadequate floor supports in another building, and his wife's last monthly bill for her psychiatric sessions was $420.

Moreover, his daughter goes to Antioch and she's going to picket in a civil rights demonstration in support of black employment, and one of the companies she's picketing is his.

There's a salesman in hock for $14,480 for perfume, coats and shoes and a Jaguar for his girl friend; his son needs $250 to get home from school for the holidays, and his wife says if he brings any more business prospects home for dinner, she'll feed them tuna fish.

When this first phase of the game is over, there's something equally jolly coming up. It's called Crisis!

Each player gets a crisis card and starts answering questions about his crisis.

There are some great crises:

"You have just found out that you (or your lover) is pregnant."

"You awoke this morning in a strange motel room, and sleeping beside you was a partner that you swear you have never seen before."

After all this, you do anything you want: drink, dance, or laugh, if you feel up to it.

Record Vote Seen After Slow Start

Rain Dampens Early Polling

An expected record number of voters today were picking the captain and crew to sail the good ship British Columbia into the 1970s.

Rain slowed early voting on the Mainland in the provincial election but some polls in Victoria and Saanich and the Islands did a brisk business in spite of it.

And area voters were coming out along with the sun at mid-morning to begin setting a steady pace expected to result in a record turnout of voters by 8 p.m.

Television coverage of election results begins on Channels 2, 6 and 8 at 8 p.m.

Generally cloudy and showery weather across the province will last through the day and a few thunderstorms are expected in the Interior.

NO INCIDENTS

Early voting was "quite heavy and steady" in Victoria; "fairly heavy" in Saanich and the Islands; "picking up" in Esquimalt and "lighter than usual" in Oak Bay.

The expected record turnout will reflect the almost 400,000 increase in eligible voters since the 1966 election.

No serious incidents were reported from area polls and provincial registrar of voters Ken Morton said things appeared to be going smoothly all across the province.

The number of voters arriving at the polls and finding their names not on the voters' list appeared to be reduced this time because of the enumeration carried out earlier this year.

HOLIDAYS CITED

In Oak Bay returning officer Ken Murphy said voting was lightest in the Gordon Head area.

The large number of people on summer holidays is also believed to have slowed early voting—a vacationer isn't likely to leap out of bed at 8 a.m. to cast his vote, one official suggested.

About 116,000 people are eligible to cast ballots in the four area ridings, being contested by 16 candidates. Polls close at 8 p.m.

A considerable increase in absentee balloting—B.C. residents visiting Victoria can vote here if they missed the advance poll in their own ridings—has been reported.

The election will tell whether Premier W. A. C. Bennett's biggest-ever gamble at the polls has succeeded with the 1,151,806 voters eligible in the province.

This is the sixth time the premier has asked for a mandate since Social Credit crushed the Liberal-Conservative coalition government of Byron (Boss) Johnson in 1952 to form a minority administration.

Mr. Bennett, who celebrates his 69th birthday a week today, is risking a five-seat majority in the 55-seat legislature in an election some observers say could result in a minority government.

But the premier, who still had two years to run in the mandate he won in a 1966 provincial election, has never been wrong before. Mr. Bennett is predicting Social Credit will win 33 to 45 seats.

Legislature standings at dissolution: Social Credit 31, NDP 17, Liberals six, one seat vacant. Standings following the Sept. 12, 1966, election: Social Credit 33, NDP 16, Liberals six.

LOST A SEAT

A Vancouver Islander who began his naval career as an ordinary telegraphist in November, 1939, will take over command of Canadian armed forces on the Pacific coast.

Commodore H. A. Porter, 49, of Chemainus, will be promoted to rear-admiral and become commander of Maritime Forces Pacific Sept. 11.

The new admiral succeeds Rear-Admiral J. A. Charles, 51, who will take up duties as deputy comptroller-general in Ottawa Sept. 22. Charles has been in command of West Coast operations since Aug. 1, 1966.

With his new appointment, Porter becomes the second Vancouver Islander to rise from the ranks to admiral. He leaves Halifax where he was senior Canadian officer afloat.

BOY SEAMAN

The first was Rear-Admiral P. D. Budge, 3096 Cadboro Bay, who began his service career as a boy seaman and retired in 1962 while chief of naval personnel at Ottawa. His last West Coast appointment was Commodore of HMCS Naden, from 1954 to 1958.

Porter rose from the ranks in 1942 when he was selected for officer candidate training and promoted to sub-lieutenant.

A specialist in communications, Porter also qualified as a pilot in naval aviation. Part of his wartime service was spent on the destroyer Kootenay.

Various appointments have seen Porter in command of the ocean escorts La Hulloise and Lauzon, and officer in charge of the communications school at Halifax.

CADET TRAINING

In 1955 he became director of naval communications at Ottawa. Two years later he came to Esquimalt to act as armed forces co-ordinator of B.C. centennial activities. He later became commander of

70 Protest Death Of Picket

VANCOUVER (CP) — About 70 persons, half of them oil workers, marched with placards Tuesday night outside the Shelburn refinery in North Burnaby to protest a picketer's death early Tuesday.

James Gordon Harvey, 43, father of eight and a Shell employee for 16 years, died after being hit by a truck entering the plant at 1:30 a.m.

Immediately following Harvey's death, Neil Reimer of Edmonton, Canadian directors of the oil workers' union announced that all negotiations across Canada were suspended.

In Vancouver, union officials cut picketing in the strike to a minimum to guard against trouble. They also suspended plans to picket service stations located near Pacific 66 stations that are not involved in the dispute.

However, there was no traffic into the plant as the protesters waved signs that read "scabs are killing" and "company hires killers."

RCMP said Harvey was picketing by himself when the accident happened.

Three fellow-pickets drinking coffee in a parked car nearby witnessed the accident. They said he was crossing Kensington, which leads to the refinery, in an unmarked crosswalk parallel to Hastings when he stopped and bent down as though tying his shoelace.

At that moment, a large tractor-trailer tanker owned by Trimac Transportation System and driven by David Slobodian of Saskatoon made a right hand turn towards the refinery and Harvey was hit.

'I Planned This Murderous Attack'

VIENNA (CP)—Colman Losonczy, the Hungarian-born Canadian who said he set fire to the Canadian Embassy Tuesday was quoted by Vienna police today as having told them "not even 2,000 dead would move me as long as I am able to revolt against Canada".

Friedrich Kuso, Vienna's chief of security, told reporters Losonczy said this when told the fire caused the death of two persons and injured 23 others.

Police said there no longer is any doubt that Losonczy committed the attack. Kuso showed reporters two letters written by Losonczy. One police found in his suitcase deposited at the Vienna Western railway station, the other he mailed to the Austrian interior ministry Tuesday.

Both letters, Kuso said, were filled with filthy words against Canada. Both were written in French.

Kuso said they amounted to this:

"I very well planned and calculated this murderous attack. The murderous attack against the Canadian Embassy is the final act of my personal tragedy. It is an act out of despair and the deed of a revolting slave against the capitalist extortionist state Canada. Canada is like England. I want to kill as many English as possible for all the humiliations and suppressions I have suffered. My deed is designed as a protest against the tyranny and against Canada."

Losonczy had walked up to a police official at the site of the blaze and said: "I have set the fire." But one witness who said he had seen a man who threw the gasoline-filled bottles, said this man did not look like Losonczy.

WITNESS CHANGED MIND

The witness was later confronted with Losonczy. Losonczy was asked to clench his teeth and the witness said he now recognized Losonczy.

Kuso said Losonczy appeared to be a peaceful person, but the moment the word Canada was mentioned his face took on an "unrecognizable grimace."

Evidence police presented included a nylon bag with thin wires, which they retrieved from Losonczy's trunk. The wires were similar to others found at the fire scene. Other items were rubber bands, found in the trunk and also tied around a bush knife rolled in a coat in the embassy. An embassy employee found the coat and thought it belonged to a colleague.

Kuso said the bottles were no ordinary Molotov cocktails, but fire bottles, for which the wires were used.

QUARREL CITED

Police said they are not certain what made Losonczy commit the deed. Kuso said it could be in connection with the quarrel Losonczy had in the embassy here in 1967.

At that time Losonczy asked an embassy employee for financial support, but when he was told to take a job, he threw his passport to the floor and said "with this land I no longer want to have anything to do with."

Police records say Losonczy then tried to enter Hungary, but Hungarian authorities were only willing to admit him if his sisters promised to support him in case of need. The sisters refused to make the promise and Losonczy at the end of 1967 was deported to Canada.

Kuso said Losonczy left Hungary in 1944 as Soviet troops approached and moved to West Germany. From there he went to France and Belgium and after studying law went back to West Germany.

FACES LIFE

From there he moved to Canada. Canadian immigration authorities said this was in 1951.

His professional status was never cleared up.

If tried and convicted of murder, Losonczy will face life imprisonment. Austria has abolished the death penalty.

Two Austrian employees of the embassy were killed in the fire and 23 others were injured, some severely.

The only injured Canadian is Clive England, 31, of London, Ont., a communications tech-

Blasts Rock U.K. Stock Exchange

LONDON (AP) — A series of explosions shook the London stock exchange shortly after it opened for business today, hurled manhole covers into the air and turned the financial heart of the city into chaos.

Firemen and police, fearing a chain reaction from the underground gas network, removed manhole covers, surrounded them with barricades and an officer blared to the thousands of pedestrians:

"Please move away from the manhole covers and out of the streets unless you want to go up when it blows."

Firemen traced the origin to the basement of the stock exchange, and there was a theory that an electric transformer may have become overloaded. The explosion followed and dealers on the floor of the famed trading mart were engulfed in choking smoke and dust.

Lower Island Location For Hatchery Unlikely

By PAT DUFOUR

It will be late 1970 before the federal department of fisheries decides where to built the one million dollar salmon hatchery promised for British Columbia, but it likely won't be on lower Vancouver Island.

Dixon MacKinnon, chief biologist for the fisheries department in Vancouver, said this week that 18 streams will have to be surveyed before the final decision on the site is made.

"Among other factors, we have to study the character of the donor stocks of salmon in the streams and make sure there is groundwater which, with its early warm temperature, will allow the chinook and coho to be developed sufficiently by the time they're released."

●

An Ottawa release has set the building date of the hatchery for 1971.

MacKinnon said that Sooke and Goldstream would be among the streams to be tested but doubted that either would be used for the site because of the need to increase water resources to service the growing city of Victoria.

He warned that in spite of recent improvements in hatchery production, survival of hatchery-raised juveniles, particularly chinook, is still much lower than that of naturally-produced fish.

"Studies at the experimental hatchery will be directed toward improving survival of the hatchery product and will involve many comparative studies of wild and hatchery-reared juvenile salmon."

He said the decision to concentrate on chinook and coho was primed by the fact that experimentation with sockeye had proved uneconomic.

●

Attempts to propagate sockeye salmon in B.C., largely of an experimental nature, had failed. The Leavenworth hatchery in Washington had abandoned sockeye raising after four years and transferred to coho.

MacKinnon said his department had three main projects:

Premier Silent On Renter Grants

Premier Bennett today refused to confirm or deny a Social Credit candidate's claim that the provincial homeowners' grant will be extended to apartment dwellers next summer.

"On election day I make no comments," Bennett said repeatedly in a telephone interview from his home in Kelowna.

He would not say whether he ever discussed the subject with John Edmondson, Socred candidate in New Westminster.

When asked Tuesday why Bennett had not announced the plan himself, Edmondson said "he probably had other things on his mind."

Edmondson said apartment tenants will receive 50 per cent of the homeowner grant in the form of a rent reduction. The present homeowner grant is $150 yearly.

The other half of the grant would be placed in a trust fund paying interest.

"At any time over five years, the tenant will be able to draw on his accumulated (trust) funds to assist in building or purchasing a home and the amount will be added to the $1,000 grant currently available for new home construction," said Edmondson.

"If the tenant waits the full five years, this program would give him approximately $500 added to the other grants already available (and) he could have $1,500 toward a down payment on a new home."

Tenants would have to file affidavits that they had lived in an apartment 12 months to qualify for the grant but it was not certain yet whether persons who rented houses would qualify.

"I was given the tenant grant information because I made it a point to ask about possible aid to tenants."

Premier Bennett during the campaign told several audiences he would extend financial assistance to house renters who wanted to buy their landlords' houses or other old houses but would not elaborate.

Infiltration By N. Viets Seen Reduced

WASHINGTON (AP) — The North Vietnamese have reduced their infiltration into South Vietnam below their casualty rate, and thus their forces in the South may be getting smaller in number, a state department spokesman said today.

The spokesman, press officer Robert J. McCloskey, reaffirmed a state department view that the infiltration cut is "significant" but added that the United States still seeks a mutual U.S.-North Vietnamese withdrawal deal.

While North Vietnamese combat losses in excess of replacements "will eventually have the same effect as a withdrawal by North Vietnamese forces," he said, it would be a slow process, and "we prefer to end the conflict by negotiation" leading to a pullout of all non-South Vietnamese troops.

McCloskey gave no figures in saying "there has been a considerable reduction in North Vietnamese infiltration into South Vietnam."

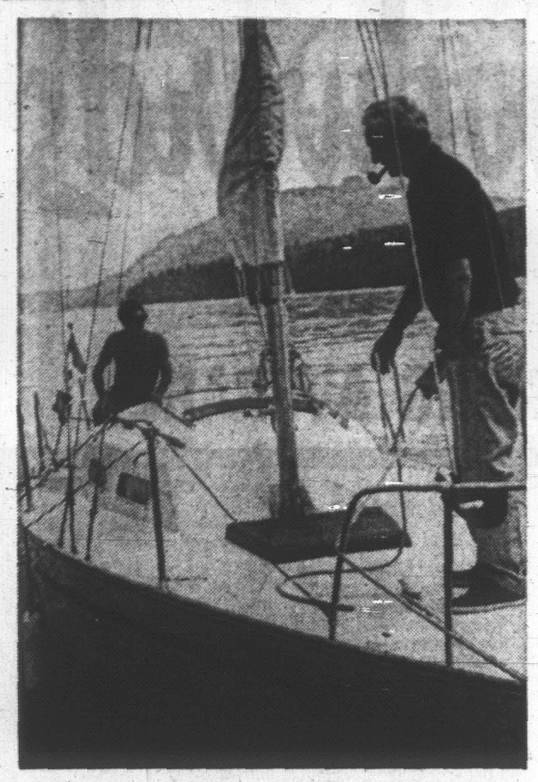
Navy Ships Blamed For Up-Island Havoc



TOWN PLANNERS planning a weekend of sailing competition are Tom Loney, left, of Saanich, and Geoff Greenhalgh, of Victoria, who are gearing for Saturday and Sunday's Maple Bay Regatta. Loney, skipper of the 30-foot shark Hammerhead, said he intends to win by "threatening from astern and with luck and fluke will win". (Ed Gould photo).

The Canadian Forces Base at Esquimalt today is investigating complaints that three destroyer-escorts left a wake of shoreline damage from Mill Bay to Cowichan Bay when they were exercising Sunday.

One Cowichan Bay resident said he was hosed down by a sailor on one of the ships when he went out to ask them to slow down.

One Mill Bay resident said, "The havoc was worse than anything we've known through winter storms.

"I estimate they were steaming at 15 knots at times. The water along the shore was brown with earth and seawalls eaten away by the backwash."

An investigation is being held and naval officials say a report will be issued when the findings are complete.

The three ships are the Yukon, Columbia and Chaudiere, commanded by Cmdr. Peter May, Cmdr. Trevor Shuckburgh and Lt. Cmdr. Philip Bissell.

'COWBOYS, INDIANS'

One of the hardest-hit areas was a Mill Bay marina operated by Percy Perkin.

Perkin said. "They just played cowboys and Indians out there in the inlet. It's too bad they had to be so silly in confined waters. They went up and down, making sharp turns, and the wash they created was just like a tidal wave."

He said that an eight-foot section was ripped out of one of his big floats, cables were snapped, mooring lines broken and boats smashed.

HANDS RAW

One of the men who helped Perkin try to salvage his gear said the marina operator's hands were raw by the time the ships left the vicinity Sunday evening.

"We were kept busy from 11 a.m. on until they steamed out full belt that evening. They went out at full speed — they couldn't have cared less. Perkin is a veteran and almost blind, it's just too darned bad."

Perkin and owners of boats moored at the marina have sent bills to Rear-Admiral J. A. Charles, commander maritime Pacific.

"We've tried to make very honest estimates of the damage and I feel that the admiral should be reasonably concerned about the whole affair."

B.C. TEL WORKERS TO STAND TRIAL

NANAIMO (CP) — Two 38-year-old men charged with assaulting a British Columbia Telephone Co. supervisor earlier this month pleaded not guilty Tuesday in provincial court here.

William Henry Dyer, of Ladysmith, was remanded to Sept. 16 for trial and David McCree Patterson, of Nanaimo, was remanded to Sept. 4. Both are B.C. Telephone employees.

They were charged Aug. 4 with assaulting James Ross, 49, of Burnaby, who was working in Nanaimo during the recent strike of telephone workers.

Judge Easy on Young Driver Who Lost Parents in Fire

DUNCAN — A Koksilah girl was given a one-month suspended sentence for driving without insurance or a driver's licence after she told Judge George Hallett her parents had been killed in a fire the day before the offence.

Alfreda Marianne Daniels pleaded guilty. She told the court she was driving last Friday because there was no one else to drive.

Miss Daniels, 20, and three teen-age sisters were left orphans after parents Clarence and Clara Daniels were killed in a fire that gutted their home on the Trans-Canada Highway.

Trial Ordered

VANCOUVER (CP) — Edison Burgess Dixon, 52, has been committed for trial on a manslaughter charge in the death of Hoi Lau, 78. The victim died in hospital July 10, a month after he suffered a broken hip in a beating in his apartment.

Parents Protest Travel Aid Curb

DUNCAN — A delegation of parents from Shawnigan Lake area appealed to Cowichan school board Monday night to take a second look before changing present travel assistance for driving children to school.

The complaint was referred to the transportation committee.

C. A. Latter, spokesman for the four parents, complained that a letter had been received by 18 parents stating the board would only continue to pay $1 a day assistance as long as parents drove their own children in their own cars.

A spot check would be carried out to ensure the regulations were being adhered to.

Chairman Bruce Devitt said the check was necessary because there had been charges that some parents were abusing the privilege. Parents were using car pools but applying for the $1 a day anyway.

Latter said the fee barely covered the cost of driving, especially last winter.

Middle-Aged Groover Seeks Help for 'Help'

By ROBIN BURGESS

"Help" needs help.

"Help," a youth-aid organization in Port Alberni, is looking for a house to rent.

"I would prefer a place with land around it," said Hendrik Roelants, chief organizer and director of operations.

"It must be outside the city limits to avoid hassle with neighbors."

Despite the beads and bare feet, Roelants isn't the typical youth leader.

For one thing, he's not a youth, but a 44-year-old biochemistry teacher at Alberni District Senior Secondary School. His hair though shaggy is unmistakably grey.

Confident, articulate, he discussed the origin of the three-month-old aid organization and his plans for developing help into a different kind of Cool-Aid.

"It really started by accident a few months ago," said Roelants.

"There was a B.C. Teen Town Conference in April and a group of us in different professions got mixed up on a panel on drugs. There was a parole officer, a psychologist, a student teacher, me as a biochemist and some others."

The panel members were made aware of "the great need" in Port Alberni for a place where young people and adults can go to for help, shelter and a concerned ear.

At the end of the conference, seven members of the panel, including Roelants and psychologist Art Tinnery, formed Help.

At the moment Help consists of two telephone numbers, Tinney's and Roelants'.

Tinney deals with adults and Roelants with young people.

Runaways, young people who've "freaked-out" on drugs and teen-agers just looking for someone to talk problems over with can and do arrive at the door of Roelants' small cabin outside of town and stay for a night or a few days.

But the space just isn't adequate.

Unlike Victoria's Cool-Aid, which is more of a drop-in centre where young people can get help for a night or at most a few days, Roelants sees Help developing into a more settled co-op.

While he hopes to run the co-op without any rules, everyone will be expected to do his share of the work.

"The ones who do not work would not eat."

KEEP CULTURE JUDGE TELLS NEW CITIZENS

DUNCAN — New citizens give up their political past but do not cast away their intellectual or moral past, Judge Norman Oreck told six new Canadians on Tuesday.

Oreck told them Canada had opened its doors to refugees but still had lots of room "in our hearts and in our territories," for many more. The judge said Canada had never menaced other lands but had been friends with large and small countries.

The new citizens are Mr. and Mrs. Sime Arbanas from Yugoslavia; Mr. and Mrs. Wilhelm Ternath from Germany; Kurt Adelborg from Denmark and H. D. Miggitsch from Austria.
